His Plan to End War.

The admiral's plan to end war, put the form of a proclamation for the dent to issue, which has in it ses from the Declaration of In- endence and the Monroe Doctrine, ows:

"We hold these truths to be self- dent, that the human race, to at- its highest development, must in peace and harmony, that all ions are dependent on each other, their prosperity is bound togeth- by a chain of business and trade, any two nations that go to war endangering the peace and safety others. The people of the United tes, therefore, make this solemn clamation:

"1. If any matter shall be in dis- te between the United States and other nations, the United States ees to offer to submit such dispute arbitration.

Proposes Arbitration.

"2. If any nation shall declare or ge in war without first stating reason and offering to submit the tter in dispute to arbitration we ould consider such an act as dan- rous to our peace and safety and as anifestation of an unfriendly dis- sition towards the United States.

"3. That in the event of any nation aking the Kellogg pact or going to e against the decision of the inter- tional court the United States will pply that country, directly or directly, with money, food or stores f any kind whatever."

Admiral Kerr said this plan, put o effect, would be the greatest step ward world peace since the Monroe octrine. That doctrine, he said, was riticised adversely in its time but now universally praised.

"In order to keep goods from enter- g the borders of a country that en ged in war against the terms of proclamation the admiral would ve a schedule kept of goods that ss over the borders in peace time d would not allow that to be ex- ded in war time.

A Plea to Reduce Arms.

Reduction of armament brings a re- sion of war-mindedness, the ad- al said. He read as follows from letter which he received three years m the great war from Prince enry of Prussia, then in command the German high sea fleet:

"I have just passed your fleet at ew. What a magnificent spectacle! It is awful to think of our two coun- ies being at war, but the army wants it. They are screwed up to such a pitch of discipline that there is no relaxation except through war. The captains are 35. There is no pro-

GIRL IS DROWNED IN PARK LAGOON, VICTIM OF JOKE

A practical joker caused a girl to drown in the casting pool at Ogden park yesterday and was nearly drowned himself trying to rescue her.

At the brink of the pool, wearing her new sun tan bathing suit, stood Miss Ann McMahon, 20 years old, 5321 South Sangamon street, an Irish immigrant, here only two months from County Clare. Up behind her stole the practical joker, Michael Hunt, 30 years old, 6841 Justine street.

"I'll wet that suit for you," he chortled, and pushed her. She pitched into the pool, struggled a moment for footing on the shallow bottom at the edge, then slipped off the shelf into eight feet of water.

"She can't swim," screamed the girl's sister, Mrs. Mary Carey, beside whom she had been standing. Hunt dove and the drowning girl locked her arms around his neck in a death grip. He broke her grip in a two minute struggle and was about to sink, exhausted, when John Gambon, 7012 South Elizabeth street, plunged in and rescued him.

Seized with cramps while swimming under water near dam No. 2 of the Des Plaines river yesterday, Benjamin Zidlak, 13 years old, 3524 Grace street, was drowned.

SOMEBODY SHOT IN WILD CHASE OF CAR THIEVES

Upon leaving the county hospital early this morning after questioning the slightly injured victim of an automobile accident, Policemen John Fogarty and John Knowles of the Warren avenue district sighted four youths prying at the locked doors of an expensive sedan parked at Congress and Lincoln streets. As the officers hailed them the four scurried to a small green sedan and took flight.

Pursued through three police districts by the officers in a flivver, the fugitives finally wrecked their car against a light pole at Polk and Paulina streets and escaped on foot. Examination of the car, which bore no license plates, indicated that thirteen of the thirty shots fired by the policemen had struck the machine and that one or more of the fugitives had been wounded. The back seat was a welter of blood.

Testify Oliver Lost $174,000 on Racing Bets

Testimony that Gene G. Oliver, member of the board of assessors, placed bets on horse races resulting in a total loss of $174,000 for 1926, 1927 and 1928 was introduced late yesterday in his trial before Federal Judge Woodward on charges of evading income taxes.

Charles Karlskind, a bookmaker, identified Oliver's canceled checks totaling $56,000 in 1926, $78,000 in 1927 and $40,000 in 1928. All represented losses, he said.

Tells of Borrowing $5,000.

When questioned by Assistant United States Attorney Cassius Poust, Karlskind testified that he borrowed $5,000 from Oliver in 1927 with which to operate a race book. He said there was an agreement whereby Oliver was to get half of a 2½ per cent commission from "laying off" bets with other bookmakers, and that Oliver's share from such profits during a little over a year was $12,500.

Checks paid by Karlskind to Oliver, representing winnings on the races, totaled $45,000. These were introduced by the government.

The defense does not contend that all of Oliver's losses were his own, admitting that he often placed bets for his friends, but it is contended that his personal losses exceeded his winnings.

The government contends that even if Oliver lost more than he won on the races, the evidence will show that his net income, after all deductions were made, was approximately $272,000 for the three years, while Oliver only paid taxes on $43,000.

Shares in Electric Rabbit.

Testimony that Oliver owned fifty shares of stock in the Electrical Holding corporation, which controls patents on electrical rabbits used in connection with dog racing, was given by John A. Woodrow, an official of the concern. He identified a check for $506, representing Oliver's dividends for 1926, and said there was no record that Oliver paid anything for the stock.

Four checks of $500 each given Oliver for "special" and for "legal" services were identified by Miss Jennie Gedwell, bookkeeper for the Fitzpatrick-McElroy company, former buyers and sellers of theaters.

MRS. FAIRBANK CHANGES STAND ON PROHIBITION

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, former Democratic national committeewoman and hitherto a supporter of prohibition, announced her allegiance yesterday to the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform. She was immediately appointed to the organization's executive committee.

"In the beginning of prohibition I believed the experiment worthy of a test," said Mrs. Fairbank. "The attitude of the country prior to the passage of the amendment was well known. It was one of resentment against the liquor interests, which stopped at nothing to enlarge their business.

"We have had a test of prohibition and I reluctantly have come to believe it a great failure. I am convinced that legislation of that kind is impossible of success in a democracy. Prohibition has created general disintegration of respect for all laws. The only hope is for repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

BANKS WILL BAR ACCOUNTS FROM GANG MEMBERS

Business Offers Aid to Alcock.

$55,825 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,825 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter. The information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in Room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock was notified yesterday that banks are coöperating with him in his drive to disrupt criminal organizations by refusing to handle the accounts of known gangsters, and insurance companies are refusing them insurance.

The police boss made a few more changes yesterday after adding 700 men to the uniformed patrol service in his order on Thursday. Col. Philip R. Crippen was removed as department secretary, being replaced by Sergt. Thomas Fitzgerald, and Hans L. Johnson was promoted to be acting department inspector of personnel, succeeding Chester F. Mitchell.

Loesch Reports Banks' Action.

Alcock was making preparations for other changes intended to give a greater measure of protection to the citizenry when a letter from Frank J. Loesch, chairman of the Chicago crime commission, was received. Mr. Loesch reported the assistance of banks and insurance companies and his letter then summarized the activities of the last month of the 28 men listed as gang leaders and public enemies.

"There has been concerted action on the part of the law enforcing authorities, among the most notable being the raiding and destruction of two sources of Capone liquor supply by the federal government," Mr. Loesch wrote. "In addition there has been a noticeable tightening of police surveillance of gangsters and their operations have been increasingly difficult.

"Not only had there been pressure upon the 28 public enemies but there is evidence of a general assault all along the lines upon professional criminals. The various law enforcing agencies have shown a commendable spirit of coöperation and the newspapers have aided materially in widespread publicity is driving the gangsters, the racketeers and the professional criminals to cover at least temporarily.

Tells of Blows at Gangsters.

Regarding the activities of the gangsters, Mr. Loesch cited the following:

William Niemoth was convicted of a payroll robbery in Baltimore and faces twenty-five years' imprisonment. Insurance companies have rejected applications for life insurance of Alphonse Capone, James Belcastro, Joe Aiello, Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, and George Barker. Capone's application was for $50,000 insurance, and O'Donnell's for $25,000. The other amounts were not given.

Alphonse Capone is still in Miami, Fla., where his court appearances received daily publicity, while in Chicago his breweries and stills were raided by the government and his gambling places in Cicero were closed by the sheriff, and his brother, Ralph, was sentenced to three years' imprisonment for income tax frauds.

Gangsters Out of City.

Frank Rio is pushing beer out in the county. Lawrence Mangano, Jack Zuta, Anthony [Mops] Volpe, Jack Gusick, Frank Diamond, George [Bugs] Moran, Joe Aiello, Joe Saltis, Frank McErlane, Vincent McErlane, Lanny Stanton, William [Klondike] O'Donnell, William [Three Finger] White, Joseph Genere, Leo Mongoven and James [Fur] Sammons have not been seen in Chicago recently. Gusick was arrested in New York with other Chicago undesirables.

Spike O'Donnell was reported in control of the Sterling Beverage company, 1521 West 76th street. Myles O'Donnell was arrested June 4, but was discharged. Frank Lake and

Set New Mark if in Air on Sunday Morn

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Only 27 hours away from a world's record and a place in aviation's hall of fame, the City of Chicago, with Kenneth and John Hunter at the controls, soared about in the darkness early today continuing its aimless wandering about the sky over Sky Harbor airport.

At dusk the orange and black cabin plane flew low over the field and dropped a note scrawled in a tired, shaky hand. It said: "Feeling fine. Everything o. k." Doggedly the flyers kept their craft on its wavering course, but through the day they drank large quantities of black coffee, apparently fearing that sleep, brought on by the monotonous buzzing of their motor, might rob them of ultimate triumph, or cause disaster.

Motor Sounds Well.

Last evening the City of Chicago passed into its 17th day in the air. At 3:40 this morning it had been up 395 hours. Members of the ground crew who listened intently to the hum of the motor during the evening said there was no indication that it would falter before the flyers passed the existing world's record of 420 hours 21 minutes and 30 seconds made by the St. Louis Robin. Just after dawn, at 5:01 tomorrow morning, the flyers will pass that record, but they must keep on for another hour before they can be officially credited with bettering it.

"The engine sounds good for another 700 hours," said Walter Hunter, who with his brother Albert are handling the refueling plane. "Big Ben," which periodically carries food and fuel to the other Hunter boys. "The boys look like they can stick it out as long as the motor keeps going." Walter had just returned from a trip to the endurance plane. Four contacts were made yesterday with less difficulty than was experienced Thursday, when blustery winds buffeted the plane about.

Crawls Onto Catwalk.

Spectators who watched from the ground saw one of the flyers crawl cautiously from the cabin and out along the narrow catwalk toward the motor. There, with one hand grasping a strut and another wielding a grease gun, he lubricated the engine parts. Only inches separated his hand from the whirling propellor and a sudden lurch of the plane might easily have shaken the flyer loose from his perilous perch and into the air. He wore no parachute.

The crowd of spectators drifting into Sky harbor from north shore suburbs and from Chicago has been growing steadily as the flyers approach the world mark. Last night the crowd numbered 1,000. Among them was Will Rogers, cowboy comedian, who went aloft with the refueling plane.

May Refuel Southern Cross.

Shortly after the night's fuel was stored aboard, the City of Chicago dropped low to throw out another note. It was addressed to Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and his companions on the trans-Atlantic hop of the Southern Cross and expressed their admiration of the adventure and their congratulations on its success.

The refueling Hunters, Albert and Walter, may have another job to do Wednesday. Word came yesterday from officials of the Wright Aeronautical company that the Southern Cross may circle over Chicago on its transcontinental nonstop flight to California in order to take on fuel. The Hunter boys were asked to be ready to deliver 200 gallons of gasoline to the trans-Atlantic plane. They planned last night to do the refueling over Curtiss airport and Sky Harbor.

SENATE VOTES TO CONFINE QUIZ TO PROHIBITION

Turns Down Appeal for $250,000.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 27.—[Special.]—There was another head-on collision between the President and congress today—this time over the question of the investigation of prohibition and other law enforcement.

The senate voted to reduce the appropriation for the Wickersham law enforcement commission for the next fiscal year to $50,000, with the proviso that it should be employed for the investigation of prohibition enforcement only.

President Hoover retorted with an announcement that the commission will continue its inquiry into law enforcement in general, financing its work with regard to laws other than prohibition from funds privately contributed. He estimated that donations totaling $100,000 would be required to enable the commission to carry on without curtailing its original project.

Called to White House.

As soon as he heard what the senate had done Mr. Hoover called the members of the commission to the White House. Chairman George W. Wickersham, Henry W. Anderson, Ada L. Comstock, M. M. Lemann, and Roscoe Pound responded. They agreed to continue the work with the aid of private funds which the President said he was sure he could raise.

Altogether there will be $138,000 for the prohibition inquiry, the senate having made available in addition to the $50,000 new appropriation an unexpended balance of $88,000 of the appropriation for the current fiscal year which it provided should be devoted to no other purpose than the prohibition study.

The parliamentary situation is such that the house cannot amend the senate bill but must accept or reject the $138,000 appropriation. If it should reject the senate provision the commission would be entirely without funds. The appropriation of $250,000 asked by the administration was stricken out of the house bill on a point of order that it had not been authorized by law.

President in Grim Humor.

President Hoover was in a grim humor when he retorted to congress with his announcement made at the press conference.

"I note," he said, "that the appropriation requested by the law enforcement commission for its work outside of prohibition has failed in the senate. This deleted part of the appropriation is that devoted to investigation into the cause and remedy for crime in general and for the determination of reforms needed in our judicial and administrative machinery.

"As a matter of fact, the enforcement of any one criminal law necessarily involves the machinery by which all criminal laws are enforced, and the country is concerned over the cause of increasing crime in general. Nothing indicates the situation better than the fact that in the last two years there was an increase of persons in federal prisons for serious offenses from 8,400 to over 13,000, whereas in the previous two years the increase was from 7,100 to 8,400—in other words, an increase of 1,300 in the first period and an increase of 5,600 in the last period. Seventy per cent of these prisoners are for other crimes than those arising out of prohibition. Our state prisons show about the same story.

Will Not Abandon Project.

"There can be no doubt that the more vigorous enforcement of laws has had something to do with the federal situation. What the causes and remedies are in respect to these 70 per cent is of vital importance. With growing crime of all kinds and with insistent recommendations from every bar association and public body concerned that we should have an accurate study of the reforms necessary in our whole judicial and administrative machinery, that we should have some constructive program for decrease and control of crime as a whole, I cannot abandon the question for one moment or allow the work of this commission to cease. I have asked the commission to proceed with its full program of work and it has consented to do so.

"I have no doubt that there are private citizens sufficiently anxious for the nation to know the whole truth as to what constructive remedies may be suggested by so eminent a body of men and women as this commission that I shall be able to secure from private sources the $100,000 necessary to carry this work forward to completion.

"The commission comprises volunteers serving solely out of regard to public interest, and all funds, whether congressional or otherwise, are solely for investigation work.

Will Function in Dual Capacity.

"The commission will, of course, need to set up a separate division to take charge of the nonprohibition section of their work and will, of course, preside over it in a separate capacity."

When he said that 70 per cent of the persons in federal prisons are confined for crimes other than violation of the prohibition law the President ignored federal prisoners in county jails, two-thirds of whom, the department of justice recently reported, are prohibition law offenders. There are approximately 25,000 federal prisoners in federal and county institutions of whom nearly 50 per cent are prohibition law violators. More than 15,000 or 60 per cent are confined for violation of either the Volstead or the Harrison narcotic act.

Glass and Jones Clash.

The final action of the senate followed a spectacular clash between two drys, Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.] and Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] and two rollcalls, on one of which by a vote of 30 to 29, a $250,000 appropriation recommended by Mr. Hoover for continuation of the commission's program was approved.

A moment later Senator L. S. Overman [Dem., N. C.] demanded and won a reconsideration of that vote by 33 to 32 and on the third roll call the senate reversed itself, rejecting the Jones $250,000 amendment by 30 to 35. That left the $50,000 provision intact.

Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.] assistant majority leader, who voted against the $250,000 appropriation on the first roll call, switched to favor it in the final test. Senators C. S. Deneen and Otis Glenn [Rep., Ill.] voted for the $250,000 amendment on both roll calls.

The Roll Call.

The roll call on rejection of the $250,000 fund follows:

Jones and Glass clashed when the former appealed to the senate to "sustain the commission" in activities which, he asserted, had been authorized by congress. Glass heatedly contended that the authority to investigate enforcement of "other laws," as well as prohibition, was inserted in the original appropriation by a conference committee, and that it was the intent of congress that the proposed inquiry should be limited specifically to the enforcement of prohibition.

Questions Jurisdiction.

"The question, as I view it," said the Virginian, "is whether the senate will vote to waste $338,000 on investigation of matters over which the federal legislature has no jurisdiction or whether it will require the commission to do what it was directed to do in the first instance, and that is to make a searching inquiry into the problem of enforcing prohibition.

"I challenge the senator from Washington to show one page in the discussion in the senate covering the pages of the Congressional Record which indicates that anything was to be investigated except prohibition. The senator cannot deny that the major, primary, and exclusive purpose of the appropriation made at my suggestion was to investigate the problem of prohibition enforcement."

"But I do deny it," shouted Jones, pounding the desk. "Whatever was discussed, as it became law, nobody can construe the language in any other way than it reads—'prohibition together with other laws'."

"That is all an evasion of the proposition," retorted Glass. "What I said here is that no sane member of this body would say that we would have appropriated $250,000 for the investigation of the enforcement of prohibition had it been known that only $8,025 of the $250,000 would be applied to that purpose, and that $25,000 would be spent for hotel bills here and $22,000 for railroad and Pullman fare."

Fox River Valley Banks to Defend Against Bandits

Business men, bankers, and police officials of northeastern Illinois met yesterday in Geneva, at call of the Fox River Valley federation, to map a program to protect the region from bandits who have been raiding banks in that vicinity. Plans were laid for pooling police and sheriffs' forces through radio and telephone communication. Bank officials agreed to hire special guards.

FLYERS' HOP TO COAST DELAYED TILL NEXT WEEK

May Be Forced to Omit Chicago Visit.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 27.—[Special.]—The crew of the Southern Cross gave itself up to New York today and the plans for a quick getaway for the west, with Chicago as the first stop suffered a change.

"I had hoped to visit Chicago," said Maj. Charles Kingsford-Smith late today, "but we are going to be held here until Wednesday or possibly Thursday. This makes it look like a nonstop flight to California, for I am eager to complete the trip. However, we may make one stop. If we do it will be Chicago. I cannot say definitely until next week. We appreciate the messages we have received frim Chicago and would like to stop there, as THE TRIBUNE is one of the backers of our flight."

It had been suggested to the flyers that they refuel over Chicago in case of a nonstop flight to the coast, but they said that "if we go by way of Chicago we'll probably stop."

Flyers Dodge Pomp.

Today was filled with busy hours for the four men who came over in the Southern Cross. They did succeed in dodging an elaborate civic reception, going direct to city hall from the hotel, but they rode back through a paper storm, just the same. A crowd of 5,000 spectators and several hundred city, state and national dignitaries were present when Mayor Walker officially welcomed the flyers to the city.

Returning to the hotel after an advertising club luncheon, Co-Pilot Evert Van Dyk, Capt. J. Patrick Saul, and John W. Stannage, the radio operator, went for a plunge in the Roosevelt hotel swimming pool. Maj. Kingsford-Smith remained in his room to talk by telephone with his bride to be, Miss Mary Powell, who is in Melbourne, Australia.

Here's What He Said.

This is one end of the conversation: "Hello, dearest. It gives me a thrill to talk to Australia. Hello, hello. Yes, darling; how are you, honey?

"I'll be here for a few days in New York, then we may fly nonstop to San Francisco. No, no, I won't fly the Atlantic again. You ought to have more faith in me.

"We had a marvelous reception. Yes, they threw paper all over us. No, honey, I'm going to sell the Southern Cross in Frisco, then take a train and boat back to England as fast as I can.

"That date for September stands good." (Maj. Kingsford-Smith is going to marry Miss Powell in September.)

City's Guests at Dinner.

Tonight the Southern Cross flyers were entertained by the mayor's reception committee at a private dinner. Later they went to the Palace theater to view pictures of their arrival at Roosevelt field.

From the theater Maj. Kingsford-Smith went by train to Schenectady, where he will speak over a short wave broadcast to Australia Saturday morning. Anthony Fokker will send a plane to Schenectady for the major and he will return to Teterboro airport, N. J., Saturday afternoon.

Officials of an oil company will meet him and take him to their New York office where a tablet dedicated to "heroes of the air" will be unveiled. Later in the day he will go to the customs house to sign final papers that were not presented when he landed yesterday. There is no official program for Saturday night and Sunday.

Lunch with Hoover Monday.

Monday the flyers will go to Washington in a Fokker plane and pay their respects to the British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, and afterwards have lunch with President Hoover. No plans have been made for Tuesday, and Wednesday, or at the latest Thursday, the Southern Cross and its crew will depart for the west to complete a flight around the world for the sturdy old plane and its commander.

Southern Cross, Blinded by Fog, Guided Across Atlantic by Its Radio "Eye"

BY MAJ. CHAS. KINGSFORD-SMITH

[Copyright: 1930: Throughout the world by the New York Times company and The Chicago Tribune. All rights reserved.]

New York, June 27. — Some day, when it has become a regular routine to fly heavier than air machines across the Atlantic, the log of the flight down to the most minute detail will be recorded minute by minute. We could not do that on this flight.

Such log as we have is pretty sketchy. Nothing like an orderly record of the journey was written down, nor does it remain in our minds. Some things stand out more than others and to us these are the important items. In telling them to others, in writing them for lay readers, there is perhaps the danger of frequent and monotonous repetition. However, I feel that their importance to aviation is general and to all the world—for all the world is fast taking the air—is so great that I am going to risk being a bore and return to my two favorite themes in flying, particularly in transoceanic flying, radio and blind piloting.

Radio Was Chief Standby.

I shall try to reconstruct for the readers of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE the mechanics of radio navigation as the crew of the Southern Cross used it. In the first place, contrary to the belief of many, we carried no radio compass. This valuable instrument is, in its present stage, too heavy for a trans-Atlantic plane which must carry so much fuel. But we made use of the radio direction finder all the way across.

Picture to yourselves John Stannage, our wireless operator, and Capt. Saul back there in their tiny dark compartment. Stannage, with his short wave transmitter, could send out his calls almost around the earth. His long wave was good for from 200 to 500 miles. Some ships had no short wave and so Stannage would call shore stations, ask them to notify all ships at sea to listen in on their long wave and stand by to give us bearings.

How They Kept Their Course.

This is the way it was done: Stannage would pick up a ship southeast of us and ask for our bearing in relation to that ship, getting which is known as a position line. He would then fish around in the air for another ship, say to the northeast or southeast, and obtain from the operator aboard a bearing or position line in relation to that vessel. Quickly he would turn the figures over to Saul, who plotted them on his chart. The intersection of these two position lines would then be our position, not only in relation to the two ships but our approximate position in relation to the rest of the world. Thus we knew where we were at that particular moment, and no longer.

But then the task was to find out where we were going, to check our compasses, and in our case to provide almost a complete substitute for navigation by observations. Poor Saul could make little use of his sextant without any celestial bodies to see.

Stannage Always Busy.

Immediately Stannage had obtained two position lines and their intersection, he would send out his call for more bearings from other ships, or perhaps a few minutes later get them from the vessels his original messages had come from. Saul would then plot our course again.

With the help of the compasses for checking and these frequent observations, we could correct our drift, something impossible to accomplish in any other fashion when we were flying without seeing the ocean for so many hours. A plane, of course, can point its nose on the correct bearing and still not be going with any degree of accuracy toward its wished for destination. Side winds may be pulling it off the course at the rate of twenty miles an hour or more, but the pilot cannot know this without the aid of his drift indicator and the waves or smoke or some other external indication by which he can check his own travel.

A Difficult Task.

Some of the difficulties Stannage and Saul met and the speed and accuracy that they had to attain can be imagined when one considers all the factors of their problem. Remember, our plane was changing its position at the rate of 90 or 100 miles an hour. The ships from which we were obtaining our bearings were moving at 10 to 18 knots on their particular courses. Thus there was no opportunity to repeat and go over a bearing and correct it. Those boys in the "back room" had to be right the first time and all the time. So just as fast as they obtained one position they went after another, completing at least three operations and computations on each finding.

When bearings began to come in slowly Stannage would call his shore stations on the short wave and ask them again to notify ships that might be in our vicinity to listen for our long wave.

Whole World Helped.

I do not know that I have made this radio navigation clear to the layman. The theory is simple enough, but it takes some doing. It takes especially the complete coöperation of other stations, and we certainly had that. They helped us most enthusiastically, those operators on shore and shipboard that kept up their unending watch over our passage.

I would like to mention them all here by name, operators and ship captains, owners of the shore stations and the men at the keys; but unfortunately I can't. Perhaps they or their friends will see these words and receive my thanks through them. I will mention my friends Messrs. Heintz and Jack Kaufman and their radio chain, which aided us all the way across.

Atlantic Vs. Pacific.

As I look back over the two flights, the Pacific and the Atlantic, I am inclined to believe that the old Atlantic is the more uncomfortable for flying even if the distance from land to land is shorter. We had the same radio facilities over the Pacific, but fewer ships. In compensation for that we had more stars and fewer overcast skies, so that we could take celestial observations.

It is not yet clear to me how we came to deviate so far from our course as we approached Newfoundland. It may be that the rapid magnetic variation had something to do with it. Then, too, it may be that we were tired, and were not holding the Southern Cross up to her work as we did earlier in the flight.

It certainly was rather awkward for three or four hours. There we were, flying a hundred miles an hour, minute after minute, and going nowhere, apparently. It was all blind flying, and this condition, if a pilot keeps it up long enough, isn't conductive to accurate piloting.

It is possible that we were circling. Our compasses certainly seemed to tell us so. They were going all around the place, our master compass and all. The instruments worked all right for us as we came down the coast to New York, but there seems to be some condition up there off Newfoundland that affects the compasses. Col. Fitzmaurice tells me that Koehl and himself found the same difficulties in about the same position, 300 or 400 miles off Newfoundland.

Then Stannage got his radio bearings again and we discovered that we still had 200 miles or so to go before reaching land, when we thought we were right over it.

It is merely a guess on my part, but I believe that it is possible that the Frenchmen, Nungesser and Coli; Capt. Hinchcliffe and others, got almost to Newfoundland and then, coming up against those magnetic variations when they were tired, flew in circles and went down or wandered off up into the wilds of Labrador. There was no radio to straighten them out and set them on their way again.

How Crew Was Gathered.

It might be of some interest to say how our crew came to be gathered. When the flight was first projected, and even after I had committed myself to it, I had not picked a single one of the crew. I knew of the thorough way in which the Dutch pilots are trained, especially to fly blind. Those men that take out the Royal Dutch Air Line ships are trained for weeks to fly in an absolutely blind cockpit, guiding their ship by instruments alone.

I took up the matter in Holland, where the Fokker company was doing everything possible to help me get ready, and my only stipulation was that the man should know his flying and that his family was able to get along if something happened. I made this stipulation in the case of each member of the crew. Four men were finally selected and Van Dyk was chosen from the four. It certainly was a happy choice. Van Dyk knows blind flying better than most.

Knew Stannage of Old.

In England I was casting about for a radio operator and one day Stannage walked into my club. I knew his ability of old. He was the radio man aboard the rescue plane that came after us when we were lost in Australia. His resourcefulness, courage, knowledge, and speed made him the man for the job.

Well, we chatted a while and finally he said: "You don't happen to be looking for a radio operator to fly the Atlantic, do you?"

I signed him on then and there. Then all I needed was a navigator.

We were in Ireland then making the last preparations. The Irish did everything possible to further our plans and I suggested that if one could be found who had the ability and wanted to go I would like an Irish navigator. I was promptly informed that Ireland could furnish me any number of good navigators, and that is how we got Pat Saul.

The way in which each one of them carried out his assignments is proof of how fortunate the selections were.

There were several other points in connection with the Atlantic flight and the whole flight around from Oakland that I would like to say something about, particularly in reference to the future of air transport over wafer. These I will take up in my next article.

NAVY DIRIGIBLE RIDES OUT GALE AT SEA IN DARK

Los Angeles Blown Away from Mooring Mast.

Lakehurst, N. J., June 27.—[Special.]—The dirigible Los Angeles, pride of the navy lighter than air fleet of aircraft, was nearly lost to the government during the last twenty-four hours, it was revealed today after it finally was housed with great difficulty because of the strong winds from the west.

On its return from a flight over the dedication ceremonies of Floyd Bennett field, New York, and the intercollegiate eight oar regatta at Poughkeepsie it was found impossible to get the dirigible moored here in the sudden squalls and rainstorms. Late last night, blown three miles from the mast against the full ground, and operating crews of the air station, Lieutenant Commander H. V. Wiley, who was in charge of the dirigible, decided to ride out the storm at sea.

Starts Return Home.

Without food or water aboard, the ship was wheeled about to flee from the fast traveling storms. Off the coast it cruised around throughout the night, steadily holding one position at times by pushing its stubby nose straight into the wind. At dawn it started its return home and arrived over the hangar at noon.

Still fighting the winds, the tired, hungry and thirsty crew utilized all their knowledge of dirigible habits and forced the craft near the stub mast where a half inch steel cable was attached to the nose.

Reeling the cable in to moor the craft the ground crew struggled against terrific odds as the 3,700,000 cubic foot ship was battered by wind and cross-currents, straining every rivet and stay in the delicate frame.

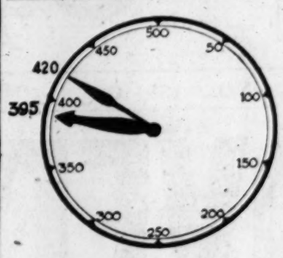
With success in sight, however, the steel cable snapped. Its sudden release from tension made it snap through the envelope. A gaping hole was torn in the outer covering, but the inside balloonettes holding the great volume of helium were not cut. The airship blew away from the mast so fast that the ground crew was unable to check it.

Two Hours of Maneuvering.

After nearly two hours more of intricate maneuvering another cable was passed to the stub mast. Taut under the strain, the Los Angeles was slowly drawn down and moored to the ball engine anchor, but its officers did not desert their posts. Fearing the wind might again wreak havoc with the delicate ship, they ordered it reprovisioned. Water rations were installed and the entire personnel stood by ready to release the giant ship in case the wind grew too strong to withstanding the strain.

At sundown the wind abated slightly and the commanding officers seized the opportunity to house the dirigible.

Flying Against Time



The hands point to the number of hours the City of Chicago has been in the air at Sky Harbor and to the 420 hour mark established by the St. Louis Robin, which the pilots are out to beat.

THAD W. ROWDEN IS NEW DRY BOSS IN CHICAGO AREA

The man who will be directly in charge of enforcing the dry law in Chicago after the transfer of prohibition to the justice department will be Thad W. Rowden, now assigned to St. Louis, Attorney General Mitchell announced yesterday at Washington.

Mr. Rowden will be deputy director of prohibition for the Chicago area under Col. John F. J. Herbert, who will be director for Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana. Both are expected here next week, following the transfer on Tuesday.

E. C. Yellowley, present dry administrator, said yesterday he would remain in the treasury department as supervisor of alcohol permits for some administrative area, probably Chicago. George Hurlburt, assistant administrator, will be assigned to a post on the western coast, in charge of special agents, it was reported yesterday. Alexander Jamie, head of the special agents here, will retain his present post.

Other Illinois deputies will be Arthur E. Hamilton for East St. Louis and James A. Eaton for Springfield. William Frank Cunningham will continue as deputy for eastern Wisconsin and Ray J. Nye for western Wisconsin. Howard Long will be stationed at South Bend and John W. Wilkey at Indianapolis.

Totes a Gun to Chicago; It Shoots His Son's Wife

Having heard of the perils of Chicago in his native Clarksville, Tenn., Dr. John B. Lahiff deemed it wise to carry a pistol when he came here last week to visit his son, John Jr., 5511 Dorchester avenue. Preparing to return home last night he was wrapping the weapon in a newspaper when it was discharged, wounding his daughter-in-law, Alicia, 23 years old, in the leg. Hyde Park police took her to the Woodlawn hospital.

COPS FIND MUTE ALMOST CLOTHED WITH CURRENCY

Albin Johnson, 52 years old, a deaf mute of 3316 Southport avenue, went to visit his sister at 1424 Thome avenue last evening and was fumbling with the door bells when other tenants, taking him for a prowler, notified Summerdale police.

Sergt. Thomas Foley, who answered the call, searched Johnson and decided he was, indeed, a dangerous character. Packed in the soles of his shoes, pinned to his underwear, and gripped under his garters was currency to the sum of $3,443.

But Johnson was able to prove his good standing. He produced a bank book showing deposits of $7,000 and a pass card identifying him as a book binder for Rand, McNally & Co., the map makers. The police decided to hold him over night for his own safety.

CHICAGO TOLD PRICE OF MILK CAN'T BE CUT

Dr. King Asserts City Pays for Quality.

No hope of lower milk prices in Chicago was held out yesterday during a conference of 30 leading producers and distributors with Dr. Clyde L. King of Philadelphia, who made a survey of Chicago's milk supply in 1928 and in 1929 served as milk strike arbitrator here.

When asked why Chicago could not have a lower price than 14 cents per quart when 16 other cities had been given reductions since Jan. 1, Dr. King answered that it was because of the high quality of milk now being demanded and given to the city and its suburbs.

Higher Quality Here.

"Chicago milk dealers could not sell the quality of milk that is being sold in those 16 cities which reduced their retail price since January," he said. "The only cities which approach the quality of milk here among those 16 are Pittsburgh and Detroit. Pittsburgh lowered its price one cent to 13 cents and Detroit took the same step, but their production factors differ from Chicago's."

Following the conference, which was held at the La Salle hotel, Dr. King was asked what factors of higher cost are traced to quality production. His answer was that the 200 mile producing radius around Chicago is getting closer farm inspection, and also the milk is receiving better inspection at receiving, bottling, and distributing centers. Also, he said, equipment costs are higher for this type of production than is prevalent elsewhere.

The farmer in the Chicago area is getting 5.2 cents per quart at his farmhouse door; the milk wagon driver is getting about four cents per quart for his labor; two cents is allotted to the dairy inside worker; and the remainder goes to costs of bottling and pasteurization and to the dealer, according to estimates made by Dr. King.

A Series of Meetings.

The largest meeting of the series conducted by Dr. King was held at South Bend, Ind., on Tuesday. More than 1,000 persons, mostly farmers, attended the session and agreed to strive for better quality milk. Other meetings this week have been held at Joliet, Aurora, Elgin, Waukegan, Beloit, and Janesville. Another one was held last night at Gary.

"Farmers invested around $8,000,000 in replacing and rebuilding their herds during the tuberculosis test work," said Don Geyer, one of the spokesmen of the Pure Milk association which is the producers' organization in the Chicago area. He said that they have also recently invested more than $2,000,000 in better equipment in order to meet the strict pure milk requirements.

CITY EMPLOYES PAID TO JUNE 16; TEACHERS WAIT

Plans for raising $4,400,000 from the sale of school tax warrants to pay salaries of the school teachers and civil service employés of the board of education were discussed yesterday at a conference held in the office of City Controller Schmidt. Officials stated that no definite arrangements had been made for disposing of the warrants, but that attempts would be made to sell them to Chicago banks. The city's 13,000 school teachers started their vacation without pay yesterday.

Many city employés, including police and firemen, were paid yesterday for two weeks' salaries due prior to June 16 out of a $1,400,000 fund collected by Controller Schmidt through an advance of $1,000,000 from the Commonwealth Edison company on its franchise tax and by scraping miscellaneous city funds.

The salaries of city employés that fell due after June 16 will not be paid until money is raised as provided in the financial relief bills, according to the officials. This money is not expected to be available before July 15.

REPORT CAPITAL OF BOLIVIA TAKEN BY REBEL ARMY

Loyal Troops Surrender After Long Battle.

BUENOS AIRES, June 27.—(AP)—Dispatches to La Nacion from Antofagasta, Chile, today reported on the strength of messages received from Oruro, Bolivia, that the troops in La Paz, capital of Bolivia, loyal to ex-President Siles, had surrendered to the soldiers of the revolutionary junta.

The report was received from Oruro at 4 p. m. Quiet prevails in that city, which is a railway and industrial center and the headquarters for the insurgents.

(An Associated Press dispatch from Lima, Peru, said it was "insistently reported that troops commanded by Gen. Blanco Galindo, chief of the Bolivian insurgent movement at Oruro, had captured La Paz after threatening the military directorate with an assault if his demands were not satisfied. The insurgents are reported to have entered La Paz at 4:30 p. m.")

Fight in Streets of Capital.

Other reports from numerous South American sources today indicated that sanguinary fighting has been going on since Sunday in La Paz.

The principal information came from Bautista Saavedra, former president of Bolivia, who reached the frontier from the capital. Señor Saaveda said a provisional government has been set up as a military directorate composed of Cols. Toro, Benzer, and Gonzales.

Wednesday night cadets and noncommissioned officers of the military academy, he said, aided by civil elements and other troops, revolted against the directorate and defeated the loyal Yngavi regiment sent against them.

The fighting continued all night Wednesday and all of yesterday with great loss of life, Saavedra added. He said only two regiments remained loyal to the government, and were fighting the rebels from positions in Murillo square and Comercio street.

How Disorders Started.

The former president said a young Bolivian girl student spoke to a group of demonstrators Sunday concerning the recent resignation of President Hernando Siles, asserting that Dr. Siles was trying to regain the presidency and exhorting her listeners to be men and oppose Siles.

Saavedra said that in the midst of her fiery address the police fired, killing the girl and her companion on the platform, a young man student who had spoken previously.

With that the crowd became enraged and charged the police, who mounted machine guns on trucks and repulsed wave after wave of the demonstrators. Señor Saavedra estimated the dead at forty or more and the wounded at sixty.

Move Spreads to Other Centers.

The rioters finally withdrew, carrying the bodies of the boy and girl through the city and shouting accusations of an outrage against the police.

Others were said to have been killed Monday when public burial was sought for the slain. Police fired to disperse the crowds.

The former president, accused by government supporters of sponsoring the rebel movement, said the revolution had spread to Sucre, Potosi and Cochabamba. In addition, the Camacho regiment holds the town of Oruro and its officers have issued a manifesto calling for a new government.

BRITISH PROPOSE DOLE FOR BABIES OF POOR FAMILIES

State Would Pay $1.20 Per Week.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 27.—State doles for babies from birth to 15 years of age is the latest proposal of Socialist and trade union leaders.

The proposal is the outstanding point in both the majority and minority reports of the living wage committee of the trade unions and Socialist movements, which were issued tonight. The reports recommend large scale expenditures of state funds on family allowances and social services.

Committee Worked Two Years.

The committee, which has been sitting for two years, recommends a dole of five shillings [$1.20] weekly for the first child and three shillings [72 cents] weekly for each succeeding child from birth to school leaving age. These payments are to be made to the working class of people whose wages are too low to bring them within the income tax limits.

The committee's suggestions are backed by the argument that middle class parents who pay income taxes receive family allowances from the state to the extent of the tax on $300 for the first child. The members do not see why this advantage should not be extended to the nontax paying workers.

Would Cost $70,000,000 a Year.

The cost of the additional allowances, which the committee recommended be paid in cash to the mothers through the postoffice, it is estimated will total more than $70,000,000 yearly.

MAYOR JIMMY'S MICHIGAN PIE IS PIED IN LANDING

New York, June 27.—[Special.]—Today was Mayor Walker's unlucky day on presents. He lost two. One was a cherry pie from Michigan which got itself cracked up in a plane landing and was unfit for presentation, and the other was a salmon. He decided that to receive that fish from an angling club was to accept a gratuity.

As for the cherry pie, Miss Signe Holmer of Travers City, Mich., queen of the Michigan cherry festival, flew all the way to New York to present the pie. She arrived at city hall, tearful and apologetic, and explained that when the plane landed at Roosevelt field the pie was pied beyond all resetting.

LAWYER KILLS SELF; HALTS BIG STEEL LAWSUIT

Ends Life Just Before Court Opens.

Youngstown, O., June 27.—(AP)—L. A. Manchester, chief counsel for the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, killed himself today at the moment of the opening of court for the third day of trial in the injunction suit to prevent merger of the Youngstown company with Bethlehem Steel corporation.

The suicide caused abrupt adjournment of the trial after a dramatic episode in the Mahoning county Common Pleas court. July 8 was set as the date for resumption of the rehearing.

News of the attorney's act was brought to President Eugene Grace of the Bethlehem corporation in the courtroom as the score or more attorneys settled in their places to await opening of the third day's session.

The chair immediately behind former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, acting as chief counsel for all the defendants in the suit, was vacant.

Court Ritual Interrupted.

President Grace called Baker and Attorneys F. H. Wood and James B. Kennedy aside for a whispered conference. Judge David G. Jenkins entered. The bailiff rapped his gavel and began the ritual, "Hear ye! Hear ye!"

As he continued, "God save this honorable court," Attorney Kennedy leaped to the judge's dais and pushed that official through the door leading to chambers. Spectators and opposing counsel, unaware of the tragedy, gasped.

Finally Baker, Wood, and Luther S. Day of Cleveland, the latter chief counsel for the stockholders fighting the merger, were called into chambers.

Baker emerged first. He was crying. The atmosphere was charged with excitement. At first the spectators thought there had been an out of court settlement of the suit.

Judge Jenkins emerged and rapped his gavel. "For good and sufficient reasons, this court is adjourned," he said. It was several minutes before newspaper men and spectators learned what had taken place.

Killed Self in Office.

Manchester's death occurred at 8:55 a. m., just five minutes before court was scheduled to open. From his office at the headquarters of the Youngstown company J. C. Argetsinger, associate counsel, heard a shot. He rushed into Manchester's office.

The attorney was slumped over his desk, dead. A bullet had pierced his right temple. A revolver lay on the floor.

James A. Campbell, chairman of the board of the Youngstown company, said the attorney was overworked and attributed his act to a nervous breakdown.

Manchester in 1917 became chief counsel of the company. He was married and had one daughter. He was born at Canfield, O., May 6, 1883.

In Youngstown he was identified with many civic enterprises. He was president of the Youngstown Y. M. C. A., and yesterday was elected to the same position in the Community corporation, which handles the finances for 30 charities.

MOB AFTER 7 NEGROES; DIXIE TROOPS CALLED

Raleigh, N. C., June 28 (Saturday). —(AP)—Gov. O. Max Gardner shortly after 1 a. m. today ordered out one company of the Concord National Guard to prevent mob violence by a crowd of several hundred persons which surrounded the Cabarrus county jail at Concord, where seven Negroes are held in connection with the rape of a white girl.

The governor's action was taken following a conference with the adjutant general of North Carolina, J. B. Van Metts. Gen. Metts was notified by private citizens of the Concord situation, he said.

Maj. Paul Younts of Charlotte was ordered by Gen. Metts to go to Concord immediately to survey the situation and, if he thought necessary, call out the Charlotte National Guard troops.

NAVY DIVIDES ON WHETHER TREATY GIVES U. S. PARITY

Adams and One Group Say It Does by 1936.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 27.—[Special.]—Senator Frederick Hale [Rep. Me.], chairman of the senate committee on naval affairs, issued today an abstract of views on the navy limitation treaty showing how the navy has divided on the principale questions involved.

On the question whether the treaty establishes Anglo-American naval parity by 1936 Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, Admiral William V. Pratt and Rear Admirals Harry E. Yarnell and William A. Moffett held in the affirmative while the negative was supported by Admiral Charles F. Hughes, Vice Admiral William C. Cole and Rear Admirals Arthur J. Hepburn, J. M. Reeves, Henry H. Hough, George C. Day, William H. Standley, H. A. Wiley and Mark L. Bristol.

Gun Caliber Question.

On the question of gun caliber Rear Admiral Hepburn joined Admiral Pratt and Rear Admirals Yarnell and Moffett in defense of six inch gun cruisers while eight inch gun ships were pronounced superior by Admiral Hughes. Vice Admiral Cole, and Rear Admirals Hillary P. Jones, J. R. Pringle, J. V. Chase, William D. Leahy, Rudley Mc Lean, M. M. Taylor, R. E. Coontz, L. M. Nulton, S. S. Robison, Bristol, Reeves, Hough, Day, Standley, and Wiley, Capt. W. W. Smyth and Commander H. C. Train.

Senator Arthur R. Robinson [Rep. Ind.] attacked the navy treaty in a radio address this afternoon.

"Our building program," he said, "has called for a minimum of twenty-three 8 inch gun cruisers, but before the London conference the navy general board [composed of the best informed experts on this question] stated 21 such cruisers represented the absolutely irreducible minimum we should have for American security.

Ultimatum of Safety.

"Notwithstanding this ultimatum of safety requirement, our delegation agreed to cut the number to eighteen, building up the balance of our tonnage in six inch gun ships for which we have no need, and which some of the best experts of the navy advise us not to construct, even though permitted to do so under the treaty.

"The agreement expressly forbids us from completing the last two such cruisers allotted us, during the life of the treaty, and since another conference is scheduled for 1935 when other and possibly more stringent conditions may be imposed upon us, we are entirely prevented from achieving parity or anything approaching it, during the life of the treaty we are now asked to ratify, while to gratify the whim of Great Britain we have agreed to build a type of cruiser for which we have no naval use.

Still Remain Fortified.

"As for Japan, we have granted her a raise in ratio to 5-5-3½ in cruisers and 5-5-5 in submarines, though we have received absolutely nothing in return and our possessions in the far Pacific must still remain unfortified."

Aroused by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest L. Jahncke's letter indicating that a mysterious project for the creation of a league of nations army and navy was involved in the discussions at the London conference, Senator William E. Borah [Rep Idaho], called at the navy department and asked to see the secret document embodying the plan. He found that the project dated from the Wilson administration and went away relieved.

BANKS WILL BAR ACCOUNTS FROM GANG MEMBERS

Business Offers Other Aid to Alcock.

Terry Druggan were in Federal court on income tax fraud charges June 20 and their case was continued to July 14.

Two bombings yesterday morning were credited by Lieut. Paul Riccio of the Canalport district to the police activity against stills and breweries. The first bomb was exploded at 1650 Allport avenue, where, according to Lieut. Riccio, there had been a still that was put out of business by police. The other was at 2021 South Racine avenue, where the explosion directed attention to a miniature brewery of 15 barrels a day capacity.

Since Alcock assumed the office of commissioner after the resignation of William Russell, a special search has been under way for stills and small breweries hidden in garages, homes, and ramshackle buildings, it was explained, and jealousy on the part of some still or brewery owners who were put out of business was believed to be responsible for notification to the police of the whereabouts of "plants."

Cops in Civilian Clothes.

Another Alcock order yesterday reduced from four to two the uniformed police attached to each district flivver. Those policement transferred from the detective bureau to patrol duty who have not yet obtained uniforms were ordered to pin their stars on their coat lapels while they are on duty. Many passersby thought it strange yesterday when at State and Adams street they saw a man in civilian clothes and straw hat, star pinned on outside of coat, blowing a whistle and directing traffic.

The police changes were brought about following the slaying of Alfred Lingle, TRIBUNE reporter, whose affairs are still under investigation. State's Attorney Swanson announced yesterday that he has not yet obtained "concrete evidence" to take before the grand jury, but a full statement of the financial status of Lingle would be issued shortly.

Support from Business Men.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, called on Alcock yesterday and assured the commissioner that he had the united support of the business leaders of the city in his efforts to reorganize the police department. In an interview earlier in the day Col. Randolph said the surge of crime and the increasing power of gangs was due directly to prohibition legislation which had given the hoodlum element vast profits from traffic in illicit booze.

BUSINESS MEN URGE FRANCHISE AS CIVIC BOON

See Better Car Service, Work for Jobless.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Attorney Frank J. Loesch, veteran battler against crime, placed his approval on the proposed transportation ordinance yesterday with this sentence:

"I am satisfied in my own mind that, after more than 30 years of agitation, it is the best ordinance that could be worked out."

The fate of the ordinance will be decided by the voters in a referendum next Tuesday.

Joseph K. Brittain, real estate dealer, said in a statement that he had been unable to find anything in the arguments of the opponents of the proposed franchise which offers any improvement in transportation. "I believe the ordinance is essentially sound and fair," he asserted.

Lewis M. Sentel, another real estate dealer, said: "It is inconceivable that the ordinance should be defeated."

John F. Rushkewicz, 2405 Augusta street, was quoted by the McDonough general committee favoring the ordinance as saying: "Passage of the ordinance Tuesday will relieve unemployment and improve transportation."

Sees Relief for Jobless.

Albert F. Keeney, another real estate dealer, was quoted as follows: "I'm for the ordinance 100 per cent. In addition to providing transportation, it will relieve unemployment."

L. H. Mills, builder, said: "Expenditure of $300,000,000 in 10 years, of which not a penny will be from taxes or bond issues, will promote prosperity in Chicago and immensely help the employment situation."

Former Ald. A. O. Anderson gave out a long statement telling why he is supporting the ordinance.

"I have no sympathy with those who scoff at each plan proposed and who refuse to accept it because they have a perfect alternative in their minds," wrote F. E. Lackowski of the Northwest Trust and Savings bank. "The acceptance of this ordinance will give thousands work, help real estate, aid in building, and generally benefit the city."

Criticizes Present System.

Elmer Rich of the South Central association, said: "The present inadequate system is costing the car riding public millions of dollars in money or hours in denied rest, pleasure, or recreation through the loss of time spent in traveling. It is to the public's interest to vote 'Yes.'"

Albert Hancock, chief potentate of Medinah temple, commented as follows: "The people have a real opportunity to render themselves and the community a great civic service by voting for the ordinance."

George W. Dixon, president of the Arthur Dixon Transfer company, said: "Public welfare is to me a guiding principle in considering this ordinance and the benefits seem to far outweigh any of the arguments against it, even granting for the sake of argument that there may be some basis for them. It offers so much in easing the way of life for thousands of our citizens by giving them easy access to their work, making it possible for them to establish homes in territory now inaccessible, that I believe it is entitled to the support of all citizens."

Club Woman for Franchise.

Mrs. Harry F. Atwood of the Chicago's Woman's club, says in part: "I am going to vote for the ordinance and use every bit of influence I have to make the facts known to my friends before next Tuesday."

Maj. R. F. Kelker, engineer for the council local transportation committee, summarized the benefits of the ordinance yesterday noon before the West Town Chamber of Commerce. Then he added:

"It seems beyond reason that Chicago, through lack of information or sense of duty in going to the polls, would fail to clinch the greatest victory for adequate transportation, probably, ever offered any city."

A total of 224 civic, labor and business organizations were reported yesterday by the McDonough committee as having indorsed the proposed ordinance. The aldermen said two dozen more are yet to be heard from.

Opponent Brings New Charge Against Transit Franchise

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The opponents of the transportation ordinance who issued statements against it yesterday included Carter H. Harrison, Carl D. Thompson, Harold L. Ickes, F. J. Bertram, W. H. Holly, Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago, William Hughes Clarke, and Peter Foote. Mr. Foote presented a new charge against the proposed franchise.

"In the promised $200,000,000 for improved transportation," reads his statement, "is an item of $31,740,000 for 'contingencies including replacements and betterments.' What is that $31,740,000 to be spent for?

"In the month of newspaper discussion it has neither been referred to nor explained. Four engineers representing the city say it is in the $200,000,000. These four are George M. Wisner, E. J. Noonan, David A. Wallace and R. F. Kelker. They studied for months last year to develop a physical plan. They allotted a cost to all improvements and were only able to forecast an expenditure of $168,240,000. But they were assigned to spend $200,000,000, so they added on the item of $31,740,000 for 'contingencies, including replacements and betterments.'

"If the money is to be spent for replacements, then the $260,000,000 valuation of the transit properties is $31,740,000 too high. If for betterments, why couldn't the engineers find them? If for contingencies, where is the money to go?"

Prof. Merriam cabled from Cambridge, England, as follows:

"Proposed ordinance grants perpetual franchise based on high valuation with inadequate service. It surrenders Chicago's last chance for effective control of local transportation service."

Mr. Holly argued that the enabling legislation on which the franchise is based permits the new company to evade its obligation in building $200,000,000 worth of extensions.

Protests Against Trustee.

Mr. Clarke protested against a trustee for the new traction fund. He said: "There is no excuse for a banker custodian, nor for the extra salaries and expenses involved, if the ordinance did not require a bond trader and a note broker to dabble in bankers' acceptances and traction securities with city and car riders' money."

Mr. Ickes charged that Ald. Joseph B. McDonough, chairman of the committee favoring the ordinance, has been handing out indorsements from "paper" organizations.

Mr. Thompson also attacked McDonough, who had illustrated municipal ownership and operation by citing the city's experience with its garbage plant.

"Mr. McDonough for once has a real argument," reads the Thompson statement. "He and his kind have proven that the present city administration is utterly incompetent, so low in its moral and civic tone and ability that it cannot be trusted with the administration of a garbage heap. If the present political administration of the city is so weak, so corrupt, so inefficient that it cannot manage a garbage plant, then it certainly has neither the brains nor the ability to draft a suitable traction ordinance. We have shown that this ordinance is bad, deceptive, treacherous, and dangerous for the people."

Harrison Attacks Fisher Anew.

In his first statement former Mayor Harrison criticized Attorney Walter L. Fisher, who returned the slap. In his second statement, yesterday, Mr. Harrison spoke of the "usual glib impertinence" of Mr. Fisher and said "traction has been and is a fairly good meal ticket for him.". The former mayor charged the ordinance is framed to make the "Insull elevated useful." He referred to "a rapid transit system made up of buses, trolleys, and elevateds, with a dinky subway in the downtown district, constructed for the benefit of State street merchants."

"I have been hoping Chicago would wake up some day to the weak, futile, flabby, spineless, supine, jellyfish character of its civic leadership and remain aroused long enough to demand the kind of traction service in keeping with its standing as a community," said Mr. Harrison.

$80,000 STOCKS FOUND: CLEW TO MISSING FURRIER

A clew in the disappearance of Mark Reisapfel, a furrier of 5 South Wabash avenue, who vanished last Dec. 17 from his home at 5136 North Kimball avenue, turned up yesterday in Los Angeles, according to dispatches received last night.

Los Angeles police discovered in possession of a Los Angeles business man $80,000 in stock certificates, which, according to the dispatch, were missed after Reisapfel disappeared. At the time the furrier vanished, bankruptcy proceedings had been started against him, and he left a note to his wife indicating he contemplated suicide because of losses on the stock market.

The stock certificates turned up in a Los Angeles brokerage house when the present owner tried to collect coupon dividends. The owner is said to have purchased the stocks through a New York concern which, in turn, bought them from a Chicago investment house.

Niles Chief of Police Is Sentenced for Bribe

Peter Oszakowski, chief of police of Niles, who was convicted of trying to bribe prohibition agents, was sentenced to six months in the Lake county jail and fined $600 by Federal Judge Fred L. Wham yesterday. Oszakowski was charged with giving $149 to the agents in an effort to obtain the dismissal of charges against his brother, Mike, whose saloon was raided last Nov. 6.

Sing Sing Warden Lays Gang Power to Prohibition

Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing prison blamed the rise of crime and sudden wealth of gangsters on the prohibition law and its "manner of attempted enforcement" yesterday in a brief conversation while changing from a Hollywood, Cal., train for one bound to the east coast.

INSULL BACK IN U. S. AND REFUSES TO TALK ABOUT SACKETT ROW

New York, June 27.—[Special.]—Samuel Insull, public utilities magnate of Chicago, who sailed three weeks ago for Europe and attended the world power conference in Berlin, returned today on the Mauretania.

He declined to be interviewed about his controversy with Frederick Moseley Sackett, American ambassador to Germany, as to whether Sackett should read an address before the Berlin power convention criticizing the cost of power to the consumer in America.

NEW CLEVELAND UNION TERMINAL OPENS THIS NOON

Cleveland, O., June 27.—(AP)—Business and railroad leaders arrived here tonight to celebrate the formal opening of Cleveland's new $220,000,000 Union terminal development as workers or the project tore away the last pieces of scaffolding and touched up shiny concourses and a new fleet of electric locomotives.

Tomorrow noon the leaders will lunch with 2,500 guests of the Cleveland chamber of commerce, address the gathering and hear now O. P. and M. J. Van Swearingen, Cleveland's railroad magnates, brought their dreams of a terminal here to a reality.

ASHLAND AVENUE WIDENING CLEAR OF LEGAL KNOTS

Damages Are Awarded and Work Can Go On.

An order entering judgment against the city for property to be taken in widening Ashland avenue between 31st and 47th streets was signed yesterday by Circuit Judge Craig A. Hood, removing the last obstacle to completion of the project. Property owners were awarded $4,086,735, which will be paid out of the Ashland avenue bond fund voted at the April primary.

Start Widening at Once.

Work of wrecking and moving back buildings to make room for widening the street from 66 to 100 feet will be started immediately, according to Joseph McClory, secretary of the board of local improvements. An application will be made Monday in County court for confirmation of the special assessment roll for paving the widened thoroughfare which is expected to start by Sept. 15.

Although the bond issue included only sufficient funds to pay property owners for their land, the improvement board, according to McClory, intends to proceed with the paving. A portion of the paving will be paid by the assessed property owners and the remainder will remain an indebtedness against the city.

New North to South Drive.

With completion of a stretch between 31st and 47th streets and of another strip between Lake street and Irving Park boulevard, where buildings now are being wrecked, Ashland avenue will be widened and paved from Devon avenue to 95th street. The only break is at the north branch of the Chicago river. A bond issue is needed, according to McClory, for construction of a bridge there.

The city also plans a connecting drive of one block between the terminus of Ashland avenue at 95th street and Beverly avenue which will provide a route to the south.

The proceedings in the condemnation suit were started June 23, 1923, and had been heard by two judges before the case came before Judge Hood.

PREACHER SLAIN AT PENTECOSTAL MEETING; 3 SHOT

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 27.—(AP)—The Rev. Edgar R. Woods, an evangelist, was shot dead and two other persons were wounded tonight during service at the Pentecostal mission here. The shots are alleged to have been fired by Frank Ross. One of the wounded was Ross' wife from whom he had been parted for several months. a bullet entering the woman's breast near the heart. A man, unidentified by the police, was wounded in the leg.

Japanese Fisherman Slain by Russian Navy Patrol

TOKIO, June 28.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—Vernacular newspapers today received dispatches saying a Japanese crab fisherman had been killed and the captain and crew of his vessel taken prisoner in a clash June 24 with a Russian patrol boat in waters off Kamchatka peninsula. The destroyer Matsurkaze sailed from her base at Ominato, northern Hondo, two days ago under secret orders.

GUARD AGAINST FIREBUG AFTER 2D AIRPORT FIRE

Rum Running Angle Seen by Investigators.

Following the second airport fire in two days, operators of major flying fields in and about Chicago last night took special precautions to guard against a firebug, who yesterday tried to burn the planes at the Palwaukee airport, south of Wheeling. Officials of aviation concerns believe the fire-bug may also have been responsible for the fire at the Municipal airport Wednesday morning in which $1,000,000 worth of planes and hangars were destroyed.

The Palwaukee fire broke out early Saturday morning, about the same hour that the fire at the Universal hangar at the Municipal airport was discovered on Wednesday morning. While Municipal airport officials first said the fire there was accidental, the breaking out of a second fire led them to believe that both were of incendiary origin.

See Rum Running Angle.

Police, searching for a possible motive for incendiarism, noted a coincidence which they believed might throw light upon the fires. They pointed out that both airport fires started in planes owned by the Texas Oil company. They recalled that a plane which prohibition agents recently seized, charging that it was used by Capone men in bring liquor here from Canada, had been sold by the Texas company and later came into possession of the Capone men. It was known that the Capone rum runners were dissatisfied with the plane.

If Edward Erickson, night watchman at Palwaukee field, had not caught the fire early it might have destroyed 27 airplanes parked in two hangars, officials of the field said. The only damage was the burning of a wing on a Stinson cabin plane owned by the Texas Oil company.

Finds Fire After Man Goes.

Erickson reported that a young man of slight build, with his head swathed in bandages, stopped at the field at 2:45 a. m. and asked to make a minor repair on his automobile under the light over the south hangar. Erickson went into another hangar when the man drove under the light. When he came out the man was gone and smoke was coming from the hangar.

"I am convinced that this was a deliberate attempt to fire the place," said Capt. Duncan Hodges, manager of the field. "An inspection of the ship showed that a hole had been punched in the wing from the under side, close to the gasoline tank, through which a burning match might have been pushed. Footprints on the mat showed where some one had climbed to reach the wing."

Hodges notified all other airport operators so they may be on the lookout for a vandal or firebug. Maj. E. W. Schroeder, head of the $3,000,000 Curtiss airport near Glen View, and George Fisher, manager of Sky Harbor, last night instructed their men to patrol the hangars regularly through the night. Other airport managers have taken precautions against incendiarism.

DAWES STARTS BACK TO LONDON; HE TALKS OF FAIR, NOT CRIME

New York, June 27.—[Special.]—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, returning to his post in London after a two weeks' visit to the United States, was a passenger on the White Star liner Majestic, which sailed tonight.

The ambassador, who was accompanied by his nephew and private secretary, Harry Dawes, talked with reporters before the ship sailed, but declined to discuss either the Chicago crime situation or the details of his visit to Washington last week.

He said the financial difficulties which the city of Chicago has encountered recently will have no effect on the coming world's fair to be held in Chicago in 1932. One of the buildings for the fair is already finished, he said.

The ambassador today visited Gen. James G. Harbord, chairman of the Radio Corporation of America, an old friend, before he boarded the Majestic. W. W. Mills of Chicago, an uncle of the ambassador, was also a passenger on the ship.

Ambassador Dawes expressed pleasure when he heard that Horace D. Taft, head of the Taft School for Boys and a brother of the late Chief Justice Taft, was a passenger on the Majestic and revealed that he and Mr. Taft had been classmates together at the Cincinnati Law school when they were young men.

Carrie Nation Kin Paroled to Psychopathic Ward

Los Angeles, Cal., June 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Anna Butcher, 70, sister of the late Carrie Nation, militant prohibitionist, was under parole to the county psychopathic department today on complaint of her daughters, Mrs. Alice Blewett and Mrs. Leonard Wilson, that she refused to abide by terms of her guardianship, and that she was unreasonably suspicious.

U. S. Tourist Tries to Shake King's Hand; Foiled by Cop

SOUTHAMPTON, June 27.—(AP)—An enterprising tourist attempted to shake hands with King Alfonso of Spain today while the ruler was inspecting the German liner Europa. Detectives, who intervened, said the would be handshaker was an American.

FARM BOARD MAY TRY COLLECTIVE WHEAT PLANTING

Washington, D. C., June 27.—[Special.]—Wheat acreage adjustment through collective planting by farmers will be the subject of a series of discussions by Chairman Alexander Legge of the federal farm board and Secretary Arthur Hyde of agriculture, beginning July 3.

An outlook report on the world wheat situation, indicating the long time trends in world production and prices and the facts that growers should consider as a basis for planning their operations, will be issued July 3 by the department of agriculture. Chairman Legge and Secretary Hyde will join in a national radio broadcast on July 3 to discuss the report and the need for adjustments in wheat production in the light of the long time outlook and with a view to the present foreign and domestic wheat situation and the present efforts to aid farmers.

Chairman Legge and Secretary Hyde will attend several meetings in western states during July to discuss the wheat situation.

Retail Price of Beef Drops 10 Cents at Kansas City

Kansas City, Mo., June 27.—(AP)—Retail meat prices dropped to the point today where the bargain hunting housewife could purchase a soup bone for ten cents, in comparison with a quarter not long ago. The retail price of meat in Kansas City has dropped approximately ten cents a pound over the entire range of beef cuts.

Filling Station Robbed Two Nights in Succession

For the second time in 24 hours, the till of a Sinclair filling station at 63d street and Michigan avenue last night was cleaned of its cash by robbers just before 11 p. m., the closing time. A lone robber took $80 from the attendant, Grady Edmonson, 1421 East 55th street, on Thursday night. Three gunmen took $90 last night.

Stop to See City

Three New England governors, Gov. William Tudor Gardiner of Maine, Gov. John H. Trumbull of Connecticut, and Gov. Norman S. Case of Rhode Island, spent several hours in Chicago last night en route to the 22d annual national conference of governors which opens Monday at Salt Lake City. John W. Haigis, state treasurer of Massachusetts, represented Gov. John G. Allen of that state.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, who was to have accompanied the party, changed his plans and went instead by way of St. Louis.

Gov. J. G. Pollard of Virginia passed through earlier during the afternoon.

GERMAN CABINET APPROVES BOOST IN INCOME TAX

BERLIN, June 27.—(AP)—The German cabinet today approved the financial program of Dr. Hermann Dietrich. It will be sent to the reichstag tomorrow.

Dr. Dietrich, appointed by Chancellor Bruening as minister of finance yesterday, has devised a graduated scale for an increased income tax, with a modified plan of emergency levy upon government salaries lighter than proposed by Dr. Moldenhauer, who resigned recently.

So firmly convinced of the soundness of Dr. Dietrich's program was the chancellor said to be that official circles expected him to push the plan through, even at the cost of dissolving the reichstag.

C. W. Bryan Enters Race for Governor of Nebraska

AMOS AND ANDY (IN FLESH) RUINED HOME, WIFE SAYS

Funny to Husband, but Bores to Her.

Reno, Nev., June 27.—[Special.]—Amos and Andy, noted radio entertainers, may be funny over the radio, but when invited to one's home they are plain bores, according to assertions made by Virginia Carson Elwood, who divorced John Worden Elwood, vice president of the National Broadcasting company, here yesterday. Mrs. Elwood confided to friends here that "her life was just one round of bum jokes after another."

"And my husband thought they were funny," she sighed.

Mack Sennett likewise failed to impress Mrs. Elwood as being anything out of the ordinary as a laugh provoker. There were others, too, Mrs. Elwood said, too numerous to mention. There was an endless string of them who performed for her husband's broadcasting circuit, but she found them at close range not near so funny as some people do who listen to them over the air. Amos 'n' Andy, however, were the most objectionable of all from a standpoint of boredom, Mrs. Elwood said.

Her husband, she asserted, seemed to regard their home as a reception parlor for all the entertainers. Her Park avenue home in New York was the gathering place, she said, and her English butler was so disgusted on one occasion with Amos 'n' Andy that he threatened to leave and go back to England.

SIFT HOLDING OF GIRL IN HOME FOR FEEBLE MINDED

Lieut. Michael Golden of the Kensington police district planned today to question John Papenlaur, 302 West 111th street, on his reason for allowing his 24 year old daughter, Bessie, to be confined for the last ten years in a state institution for the feeble minded at Union Grove, Wis.

Bessie was taken in custody yesterday at her parents' home by Kensington police at request of the superintendent of the Union Grove institution. After questioning her, Lieut. Golden averred he found the girl a person of average intelligence. When a representative of the institution called during the afternoon to return her to Union Grove, Lieut. Golden refused to grant him her custody, using the technical excuse that the agent lacked credentials.

"It was my first chance to escape, and I took it," said Bessie. "I crawled out of a window on June 18 and came straight home. They made me scrub floors and toil all day, but otherwise treated me like an infant. If I appear not as smart as I should, it's because I've been there so long among queer people."

Fortune Teller's Magic Makes Her Money Vanish

Mrs. Clara Schmidt, 55 years old, of Lansing, complained last night to the highway police at Homewood that a fortune teller had defrauded her of $2,057 which she had borrowed on the advice of the seeress. With magic ritualistic accompaniment, Mrs. Schmidt said she placed the money in an envelope Tuesday. She was to keep it under her pillow for three days without looking at it. Yesterday she opened the envelope and found it contained nothing but paper.

REVISION OF CENSUS SETS POPULATION OF CHICAGO AT 3,375,235

An analysis of census figures and the addition of a number of persons who were out of the city when the census roll was taken brought Chicago's population up to 3,375,235 yesterday. This figure, announced by the census bureau, represents an addition of 1,483 citizens.

The revised figure shows that Chicago's population has grown 673,530 since 1920, the city's greatest gain for any decade. The census bureau announced that completed figures show a population of 4,655,826 in the metropolitan area, the region included within a 35 mile radius of the loop. This is an increase of 1,134,037 since 1920. The census books show that 90 per cent of the entire population increase in Illinois during the last ten years took place within the Chicago metropolitan area.

76 COUNTIES IN KENTUCKY SHOW DROP IN CENSUS

Louisville, Ky., June 27.—(AP)—The population of Kentucky is 2,603,831, as compared with 2,416,630 in 1920, on the basis of preliminary reports from the state's 13 census supervisors. This is an increase of 187,201, or 7.74 per cent. The reports showed 32,607 persons unemployed, with 14 counties unreported on these statistics. Large growth was shown in Louisville and in the mountain counties and large decreases in population in the western part of the state. Of the 120 counties, 46 showed increases and 74 showed decreases.

Maine Gains 4.1 Per Cent.

Washington, D. C., June 27.—(AP)—The 1930 population of Maine today was announced by the census bureau as 799,662, an increase of 31,648 over 1920 or 4.1 per cent.

ARGUE QUASHING OF WARRANT IN RAID ON GREIN

The question of quashing the warrant on which Joe Grein's malt and hop store at 210 West Madison street was raided by dry agents was argued yesterday afternoon before United States Commissioner Walker and the case was continued to July 11.

Clarence Darrow, veteran criminal lawyer, is a member of Grein's counsel, but only Capt. William F. Waugh argued for Grein yesterday. The government was represented by Victor La Rue and Alfred W. Bosworth.

The defense contends that the warrant was improperly obtained and improperly executed, and that Grein's $50,000 stock should be returned. Criminal charges against Grein and his associates have been dismissed by the commissioner and the government is awaiting the outcome of a civil libel action against the stock to determine whether to start criminal proceedings before the grand jury.

Passenger Steamships Open the Summer Season

A busy summer season in the great lakes will start today when 18 steamships begin their trips from the Navy pier, according to officials of the several companies operating boats from Chicago. Rotarians returning home to northern parts will comprise a large part of the first passenger list.

Ports which will be visited this summer by steamships of the various lines are Michigan City, South Haven, Detroit, Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, Ludington, Milwaukee, White Lake, Saugatuck, Holland, Muskegon, Grand Haven, Grand Rapids, Mackinac islands, St. Ignace, Manistee, Harbor Springs and other popular summer resort regions.

INDIANA COURT RULES CITY MAY BAN BILLBOARDS

High Tribunal Upholds Zoning Ordinances.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 27.—[Special.]—Upholding the validity of the zoning laws and ordinances, the Indiana Supreme court today ruled that all Indiana cities have the power to prohibit by ordinance erection and maintenance of advertising bill boards within 500 feet of parks or boulevards.

The decision was in the appeal of an outdoor advertising company against the Indianapolis park board.

Entitled to Compensation.

The opinion, written by Judge Clarence R. Martin, Indianapolis, upholds the constitutionality of the ordinance, but rules that unless it can be shown that boards already erected are a nuisance owners are entitled to compensation for their boards before they can be removed.

The decision today was the first ruling the Indiana Supreme court has made on constitutionality of the zoning laws which also restrict buildings and types of business.

Aside from one other case, decided by the Supreme court of Pennsylvania in 1927, this is the first American case in which ordinances which sought to prevent erection of bill boards within certain specified areas were upheld.

Refers to Other States.

The Indiana court refused to follow cases decided in Massachusetts in 1905, in Illinois in 1911 and in Missouri and Ohio in 1912, in which it had been held such ordinances were void, but pointed out that since these decisions, city planning and zoning ordinances have been upheld in each of the states under laws which were more stringent than the bill board ordinances.

Father and Son in Race for Same Office in Omaha

Omaha, Neb., June 27.—(AP)—Harry Pearce, the father, will oppose Harry Pearce, the son, for the Republican nomination for city register of deeds. Both have filed under the same name.

Some housewives blame their cooking for the poor coffee when the trouble is with an inferior grade of coffee.

They overlook the fact that low price in coffee means just one thing: poor flavor. The roaster of cheaper blends has just one thought in mind—keeping down cost—he can't afford to bother about how his coffee tastes.

Fine flavor is the important thing in the buying, roasting and blending of McLaughlin's Manor House Coffee.

STOP CONSTIPATION AT THE START

You May Pay If You Don't

When you realize that about 90% of all sickness begins with constipation, you won't want to take chances. If you have the symptoms—bad breath, coated tongue, always tired—put a stop to them now!

But do it the natural way. Not with pills and drugs, which give but temporary relief and must be taken in increasing doses. Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—an appetizing deliciously flavored cereal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN sweeps the system clean of wastes and impurities. Its action is natural; the roughage carries with it the poisons which clog your system.

In addition, ALL-BRAN is rich in iron. Scientific research shows that nearly all this iron goes into the blood, making it give the rich glow of healthy color.

You'll like ALL-BRAN. Ready-to-eat with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Physicians recommend it. And we guarantee it to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. Two tablespoonfuls daily — with every meal, in recurring cases.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers in the red-and-green package. Served in hotels, restaurants and dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

ELIMINATE BAD RAIL CROSSING ON N. W. HIGHWAY

Detours for Week-End Are Listed.

BY HAL FOUST.

A few of the bad detours in the metropolitan area have been eliminated this week and others are to be removed before the Fourth of July crowds are on the highways.

Two grade separations on the North Western railroad near Crystal Lake, Ill., have been opened, eliminating the dangerous crossing on the Northwest highway. Lincoln avenue has been opened between Peterson and Kedzie avenues with the completion of the pavement on the approaches to the sanitary canal bridges.

Washington boulevard, widened and paved through River Forest, is to be opened next Wednesday. The barricades also are to be lifted next week from Lake street between 9th avenue and Thatcher avenue. The detours on both of these important thoroughfares are over the rough bricks of Madison street.

Harlem avenue between Grand and North avenues is to be opened next week.

Some of the other detours in the metropolitan area this week-end follow:

St. Charles Road—Closed between Eastern avenue and Mannheim road in Bellwood. Traffic is directed north over Villare street.

Railroad Avenue in Evanston—Closed between McCormick boulevard and Isabella street. Traffic is directed west over village streets.

Illinois Route 4 (Ogden avenue)—Closed between 47th street and 63d street. Traffic is directed west on 47th street to Willow Springs road, south on Willow Springs road to Route 4.

Illinois Route 55 (22d Street)—Closed between Des Plaines avenue and 1st avenue. Traffic is directed south on Des Plaines avenue to 31st street, west to 1st avenue, then north to 22d street.

95th Street—Closed between Torrence avenue and Ewing avenue. Traffic is directed north on Colfax avenue to 92d street, east to Ewing avenue, then south to 95th street.

Illinois Route 60 (Rand Road)—Closed between Des Plaines and Palatine road. Traffic is directed south on Graceland street in Des Plaines to the Northwest highway, northwest to Elmhurst-Wheeling road, north to Palatine road, then west to Rand road.

Roosevelt Road—Closed between 17th avenue and Mannheim road. Traffic is directed south on 17th avenue to 22d street, west to Mannheim road, then north on Mannheim road to Roosevelt road.

Illinois Route 21 (Milwaukee avenue)—Closed between Touhy avenue and Half Day. Traffic is directed north on Waukegan road to Illinois Route 22, west to Milwaukee avenue.

Dearborn Street—Closed between Elm street and Burton place. Traffic is directed west on Superior street to Clark street, north to North avenue, east to Dearborn street.

United States Route 20 and 12 (Standard Avenue and Dickey Place)—Closed to through traffic between Forsyth avenue in Whiting and Guthrie avenue in Gary. Traffic is directed not to turn east on 119th street in Whiting, but to continue south on Forsyth avenue in East Chicago, five miles to Michigan avenue in Hammond, east on Michigan avenue to 5th avenue in Gary, thence east on 5th avenue to the Dunes highway.

The summary of road conditions was prepared by the central traffic bureau.

TEXAS POLICE SAVE NEGRO WHO ATTACKED 8 WOMEN FROM MOB

Port Arthur, Tex., June 27.—(AP)—Officers here today successfully fought off a mob that attempted to seize and lynch Rainey Williams, 38, Negro, who confessed to attacks on eight white women, and safely lodged the prisoner in the county jail at Beaumont.

The Negro was taken the 22 miles to Beaumont in 15 minutes in Fire Chief J. C. Enright's automobile after members of the mob had almost succeeded in dragging him from the rumble seat which had been closed on him.

Tear gas bombs hurled into the crowd milling about the city hall here caused members of the mob to relinquish their grips on the prisoner and allowed the car to speed out of town. Officers fired several shots into the air.

Williams was arrested after the eight women had been attacked on a highway near an oil refinery over a period of thirty days. The last attack occurred last Wednesday night.

After Williams had been lodged in the Beaumont jail a grand jury was called to investigate the crimes.

RAID SANITARIUM, JAIL OPERATORS, REMOVE PATIENTS

Hyde Park police yesterday raided a sanitarium at 4240 Drexel boulevard, alleged to have been operating without a license, and removed eight women patients. Six of the patients were sent to the psychopathic hospital and two were turned over to relatives. Mary K. Senton, 52 years old, and her husband, James B. Senton, 50, were arrested charged with operating a hospital without a license.

A warrant for the raid was issued by Municipal Judge Joseph L. McCarthy after Dr. I. D. Opat, 610 Groveland park, said he had obtained a court writ to move furniture he had sold to the Sentons and for which he had received no money. Dr. Opat told the police that the sanitarium was being operated without a license.

Police were refused admittance to the house and had to break in the front door. They called ambulances and removed the patients. The health department has started an investigation of conditions at the hospital, according to the police.

Pope Sees Few Callers Owing to Hot Weather

VATICAN CITY, June 27.—(AP)—The pope's audiences were curtailed considerably today because of extremely sultry weather. There were only six morning callers who were received privately. Soon after the private audiences the pontiff greeted 200 Corsican pilgrims, speaking to them in French.

INDIA THREATENS VIOLENCE UNLESS GANDHI IS FREED

Viceroy Receives Warning of Native Wrath.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, India, June 27.—The rising tide of Nationalism in India today shows signs of breaking out in armed revolt unless the British authorities release Mahatma Gandhi, the leader and inspirer of the civil disobedience campaign, who was swiftly abducted at the dead of night last May 5 and "interned" in a fort near Poona without trial under the terms of a law passed in 1827.

Lord Irwin, viceroy of India, is receiving many open letters from native leaders calling for the release of the idol of the Hindu masses and bitterly denouncing the repressive ordinances which daily grow sterner in all sections of the peninsula.

Bombayite Sends Ultimatum.

One of these letters, written by C. F. Buharucha, one of the leading figures in the Nationalist element in Bombay, warns the viceroy that neither martial law, nor ordinances, nor police clubs, nor all the weight of his armed followers will be able to check the wrath of native India if the mahatma is not speedily released.

In other communications the viceroy is bitterly denounced for permitting atrocious treatment to unarmed and non-resisting members of the Nationalist party and harmless school children. He is styled as "a defender of Bourbon bureaucracy," "protector of the rule by cold steel," "custodian of British interests," and "unconscious digger of Great Britain's grave in India."

Picketing Recruits Increase.

The Nationalist flag is being raised throughout India, while reports also come of increasingly aggressive measures against Gandhi adherents. In the Punjab alone the arrests have reached a total of 1,600. At Ahmadabad 103 picketers were arrested today. Jails throughout India are overflowing. But as nonviolent picketers are arrested others spring up to take their place, and the flow of recruits to the Nationalist standard seems endless.

Despite the adverse weather conditions caused by the rainy season it appears that India is at the brink of momentous happenings, since everywhere both sides are active and seem ready to battle to a finish. Gandhi partisans are being dismissed from provincial and municipal services throughout the country and the press ordinance has just been applied to Burma as well as to the most remote sections of India. With Indian Nationalists becoming increasingly aggressive as a reaction to the Simon report, the British also show their determination to take a firmer stand.

INFERNAL MACHINE KILLS TEXAS WOMAN IN AUTO; MAIMS SON

Amarillo, Tex., June 27.—(AP)—What police believe was an infernal machine, killed Mrs. A. D. Payne, wife of an Amarillo attorney, and probably fatally injured her 14 year old son as they were driving toward the business part of the city today.

Mrs. Payne's body was blown to pieces. The boy's left side, which was next to his mother, who was driving, was mangled—his left leg and left arm having been almost torn from his body.

Payne had walked to his office, almost three miles from his home, and left the automobile for his family's use as they shopped and completed final plans for a vacation they were soon to start.

He said he could ascribe no motive for the plot, although he agreed with police that the explosion must have been caused by an infernal machine. He said he did not know of any enemies who would go to such lengths to wreak vengeance against him.

Tex Thornton, nitroglycerine expert, after an investigation, said the blast was not caused by gasoline or dynamite but, in his opinion, nitroglycerine or T. N. T. had been used.

The explosion occurred after Mrs. Payne had driven about ten blocks after leaving her home. The chassis of the car was left intact and the gasoline tank was not damaged. Detectives said they found bits of wiring and pieces of dry cell batteries in the wreckage. Investigators believed the charge had been placed directly beneath the driver's seat.

Payne had been a candidate for district judge, but withdrew recently. In the course of his practice he had participated in several sensational murder trial in the Panhandle during the last year.

MEXICAN REBEL LEADER FLEES CHIHUAHUA CITY

MEXICO CITY, June 27.—(AP)—Dispatches from Chihuahua City tonight said that Manuel Jesus Estrada, who was declared governor of Chihuahua Wednesday by the faction which drove out Gov. Francisco Almada, had fled with his followers and that Almada had been reëstablished with the aid of troops.

Agents of the federal government meanwhile are investigating the trouble. Gov. Almada returned to Chihuahua City by airplane from El Paso, and the four government investigators, headed by Gen. Augustin de la Mora, chief of the presidential military staff, also came by air. They said their investigation would determine whether Almada or Estrada should have federal recognition. Pending the investigation the government is supporting Almada.

Chief of Police Slain.

Laredo, Tex., June 27.—(AP)—Felipe Flores, chief of police in Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, was shot to death early today and Emilio Antun, customs house employé of Nuevo Laredo, was held in jail, charged with murder. Antun was reported slightly wounded.

VIRGIN ISLANDS APPEAL FOR AID; INDUSTRY RUINED

Thousands Out of Work as Sugar Plants Close.

BY LEON MARSAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, June 27.—Owing to the economic crisis caused by the slump of the sugar industry, the 15,000 people forming the population of St. Croix, the largest of the islands in the Virgin group, are faced with hunger. Bitter things are being said by the islanders, who contrast their present situation with the former conditions under Danish rule. The islands were purchased by the United States from Denmark in 1927 for $25,000,000.

While an appeal for help may be made to the American Red Cross, considerable hope is being placed in the arrival of Herbert D. Brown, chief of the bureau of efficiency, who is said to be empowered to spend $47,000 for relief as he sees fit. This is part of the $500,000 appropriated by congress for the support of the Virgin islands.

Appeal for Food.

The local papers are full of open appeals for food, clothing, and money to assist nearly seven-tenths of the population, who were formerly regularly employed in the sugar cane fields.

The Bethlehem sugar factory, which carried the largest staff, with a payroll of more than $4,000 a week, has had to close its doors. Other smaller mills, handicaped by the fluctuating sugar market, were recently forced to follow suit.

Little hope is seen in the attempt to foster the cattle raising industry and in time transform the abandoned sugar plantations into cattle ranches, as there is the drought problem to face. The water shortage is acute and it is feared that the $15,000 set aside for sinking wells in the appropriation made by congress may not be of value this year.

Points to Danish Régime.

Alluding to the time when St. Croix was prosperous and its principal exports were sugar and rum, the St. Croix Avis, a local newspaper, in an editorial said:

"During the Danish régime, low as was the price of sugar, purchasers could have been found who were ready to invest in estates and plantations in St. Croix. Now abandonment threatens to leave a hard working population settled for two centuries, breadless and penniless. Where can we put the blame? On whom must reflection be cast? The reflection must certainly be cast upon those that handle the reins of government, whether as executives or representatives."

BRITON CALLS ON U. S. TO PUT AN END TO WAR

Admiral Lays Peace Plan Before Rotary.

motion except through war. They would sooner fight the French than you, but they would sooner fight you than no one at all."

As to the London naval treaty, Admiral Kerr said the press of the United States had made extremely good comment on it, and that as the United States, Great Britain and Japan all found it unsatisfactory, it looked like a fair proposition.

He explained the needs of his country much as Prince Tokugawa had explained those of Japan the previous day.

Britain's Position on Seas.

"If England's sea communications are cut off for two months she starves," he said. "For this reason she requires a lot of small cruisers to protect the veins. The United States is self contained and can wait for her trade to come in at a convenient time. The small cruiser with the smaller guns is no menace to the large cruiser."

It is the duty of the English speaking nations, the admiral said, to take the lead in matters of international understanding.

"What a powerful lead this would be," he declared, "when one remembers that the two English speaking nations own a quarter of the world and contain nearly half the population."

Rotary's Work for Peace.

Five speakers took part in a symposium on what Rotary is doing in various parts of the world to promote peace. W. De Cock Buning of The Hague said Rotary was making progress in central Europe but had had little influence yet in determining national policies, and that no one nation in the world considered loyalty to mankind superior to loyalty to nation. Peter E. Soudal of Jaffa, Palestine, said there was just as much hate and religious differences as ever, and spoke of soldiers guarding the holy sepulcher to maintain order among the Christian sects there.

Hoover Friend Heads Rotary.

Almon E. Roth, controller of Leland Stanford university and a personal friend of President Hoover, was elected president for the coming year. He received 2,216 votes to 1,119 for R. J. Knoeppel of New York. The following directors were elected: Clinton P. Anderson, Albuquerque, N. M.; Howard W. Selby, West Palm Beach, Fla.; Richard C. Hedke, Detroit, Mich.; Claybrook Cottingham, Pineville, La., and Will Taylor, Springfield, Ill.

The 1931 session of Rotary International will be at Vienna, Austria.

FABULOUS FORTUNE IS FOUND IN ANCIENT TEMPLE IN GUATEMALA

MEXICO CITY, June 27.—(AP)—The newspaper La Prensa says it has learned that a fabulous fortune in gold, silver, and antique jewelry has been discovered in the ancient "Temple of a Thousand Grottoes," in the department of Izabel, Guatemala. Troops have been thrown about the temple and no one is allowed to approach it without authorization from authorities, the paper adds.

The temple is of Maya origin. It is situated in wild jungle country and only a small portion of it protrudes above ground. It is built over a larger number of deep crevices, some of which are of undetermined depth. The fortune was discovered recently hidden away in these crevices, La Prensa says. Precious metals and jewelry valued at $5,000,000 already is said to have been extracted.

The paper states that efforts have been made to keep the discovery secret and that the origin of the treasure is a matter of speculation. Some persons think it was stored away in the temple by followers of the Aztec emperor Montezuma at the time of the Spanish conquest, while others incline to the view that it was hoarded by the Guatemalan dictator, Estrade Cabrera, who carried the secret of its hiding place to the grave.

DETROIT MAYOR GETS A SETBACK FIGHTING RECALL

Detroit, Mich., June 27.—[Special.] Denied a delay by the State Supreme court of the litigation before Judge Arthur Webster in Circuit court, attorneys for the Bowles-Gillespie group this afternoon continued their attack on the petitions for the recall of Mayor Bowles.

Fred L. Vandeveer, Detroit street railway claims attorney, argued that Judge Webster had the right and the duty to investigate the plaintiffs' charges of wholesale fraud in the recall petitions, and Frank H. Dohany, state railway commissioner, followed with an argument that the reasons for the recall set forth on the petitions were misleading and insufficient to justify a recall election. They appeared as counsel for the "taxpayers," who filed suit for an injunction to restrain the city clerk from ordering a recall election.

In a unanimous decision the Supreme court denied a petition filed by Vandeveer on behalf of Charles W. Burton, Edward Gray and other "taxpayers" for a stay of proceedings to delay the case before Judge Webster.

The Supreme court also refused to oust Walter B. Cary, leader of the recall forces, as a party defendant in the suit before Judge Webster.

DOCTORS SAY IT'S NOT WHAT FOOD BUT HOW MUCH

Dietary Fads Discussed for Association.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., June 27.—[Special.]—"The truth about foods" might characterize the principal addresses given the closing meeting of the American Medical association here this afternoon. Almost 4,000 physicians left for their homes tonight after three days' attendance at the 81st annual convention.

Two physicians—Dr. Williard J. Kerr of Pasadena, Cal., and Dr. Clara Davis, Chicago,—delivered dictums in the sections on medicine and the diseases of children which led to the conclusions that a normal being may eat almost what he chooses with a good disregard for the prevalent food fads and the blatantly advertised "health giving" products. Dr. Stone, in particular, stepped hard upon the popular conception of diet.

Calls Cure from Diet Remote.

"That a change in diet may be followed by cure, as many believe," he said, "in conditions already characterized by progressive tissue changes affecting the arteries, heart, and kidneys, is remote. In general the kind of advice most needed for adult patients refers more to the quantity of food taken than particular constituents so often maligned."

"All scientists deplore the attitude of those who distort partial truths into misleading statements. The yeast fad is an outstanding example. Certain European teachers with dignified names have loaned [sic] their names to glowing advertisements advocating the use of yeast for nearly every human ill. That yeast may be beneficial under certain conditions is well recognized. The advertisements emphasize the need of vitamins B and D in the dietary. Since these substances are found in abundance in commonly used foods, it seems superfluous to stress the vitamin content of yeast in curing everything from 'that tired feeling' to 'nervous breakdown.'

Selling Appeal Not Facts.

"Reliable information usually has little selling appeal—what is necessary is something new. 'The dangerous food combinations' or the 'acid bunch danger' theories may be exploited. Physicians are constantly furnished to find in otherwise intelligent patients a belief in such theories. There has not been the slightest proof that foods, which are harmless when taken alone, can become harmful when taken together in any combination.

"There has never been the slightest proof that fruits such as oranges or grapefruit eaten with milk or cereals is harmful. A large part of the population has, for generations, been raised in a fairly successful way, upon meat and potatoes, a mixture of protein and starchy foods, also a menace of faddists.

"In recent years we have witnessed the propaganda for whole wheat bread. Its advocates attribute many of the ills of mankind to milling of grain which removes the bran. They assert that white bread is thus deprived of important vitamin constituents, ignoring the fact that these elements are supplied when white bread is made with milk, or eaten with butter, and in other constituents of the diet.

Bran Question Overdone.

"The necessity for roughage in the form of bran has likewise been greatly overrated. Bran is an indigestible and irritating substance not necessary for the well or ideal for the sick. The residue of cooked vegetables has much more to commend it."

"Those who believe in vegetarianism probably do secure an adequate amount of protein from milk, eggs, and cheese despite their restriction of meat. But, it is questionable whether the reduction of proteins to an amount smaller then necessary to maintain normal nitrogen balance in the body is desirable for prolonged periods."

"The tendency towards overweight among persons in their thirties should be met by a moderate restriction of sugar and a more rigid restriction of fats, Dr. Stone advised. "Such patients should think less of their waistline and more of their health."

This exposition led Dr. Stone to a series of conclusions in which he said that a rational diet for the young adults of average activity should include 2,500 to 3,000 calories. It should be a balanced diet of: proteins 80 to 100 grams; carbohydrates, about 400 grams; and fats, 80 to 100 grams. The carbohydrates should come largely from the so-called "protective foods," milk, cereals, vegetables and fruit.

Too Much Sugar Used.

"The most serious criticism of the diet of English speaking peoples," he said, "concerns the excessive use of sugar. It is safe to say that the average per capita consumption is more than double the amount necessary for health. For adults of lessened activity beyond the fourth decade, a subcaloric diet is often advisable. An overweight person suffers a physical handicap which is reflected in an increased mortality rate for his age."

Another conclusion was that "the term acidosis has become a popular fancy through the teachings of enthusiasts or food propagandists."

An experiment which lends force to Dr. Stone's statement was conducted in Chicago by Dr. Davis. A group of newly weaned infants, from six to eleven months of age, were allowed to eat at will from food trays comprising a full range of edible meat products, sea fish, eggs, nine vegetables, five cereals, six fruits, milk and sea salt.

Almost all the babies continuously liked: Meats, potatoes, beets, peas, apples, bananas, oranges and eggs. Generally unpopular foods were: Spinach, lettuce, turnips, and barley.

The babies often ate to excess of the amounts commonly consumed by adults, but they were exceptionally free from digestive disturbances and their gains in weight and vigor equaled and exceeded the highest standards.

BRITAIN TO EXCLUDE SOME U. S. APPLES IN FEAR OF FRUIT FLY

Washington, D. C., June 27.—(AP)—A proposed embargo by Great Britain on apples from every section of the United States between July 7 and Nov. 15, except for certain certified grades, was made known today at the British embassy, the state department was notified.

The proposed embargo was described as a step to prevent the entry into England of apples infected with fruit fly larvæ, and was explained as in no sense a retaliation against the recently enacted United States tariff act.

Under the embargo, all United States apples except the barreled grades of "fancy" and "fancy No. 1," and the boxed grades of "extra fancy" or "fancy" would be prohibited, and even these would be excluded unless bearing a certificate from a properly authorized inspector of the department of agriculture stating the shipment contained no other apples than the grades named.

Bill Goes to Hoover for His Signature.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 27.—[Special.]—Passed by the senate today the second deficiency supply bill with appropriations aggregating more than $70,000,000 included authority for the purchase of a new site for the projected Chicago postoffice as well as for the acquisition of a site for a new appraisers' store building in the same city. Both proposals already have been approved by the house.

In addition to setting aside $1,300,000 for the appraisers' store site the bill authorizes the sale of the so-called Marshall Field postoffice site, and the purchase of another, with air rights, adjoining the Van Buren street postal building which is also to be purchased outright by the government.

The latest site selected for the postoffice includes the property between the Van Buren street postal station on one side and Harrison, Van Buren and Canal streets on the other sides. To accomplish the new program the bill increases the limit of expenditure for the entire project from $14,250,000 to $21,000,000.

Among other important items in the bill as passed by the senate was the bitterly fought $10,660,000 initial appropriation for construction of the Boulder canyon dam.

TODAY STUDENT DAY IN WAR PLAY IN GRANT PARK

This afternoon is Student day at the military show and exposition at Soldiers' field in Grant park and a program of special features for young Americans will be presented, according to Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, the commander of the sixth army corps area.

One of the features will be an aerial battle in which the various classes of army planes and two large observation balloons will participate. These balloons will carry observers and will be raised 3,000 feet. The entire spectacle will portray the actual battle conditions as took place on the western front during the world war.

Maj. Gen. Stephen O. Fuqua, chief of infantry of the United States army, spent the day yesterday reviewing and inspecting the troops and the members of the R. O. T. C. in training at Fort Sheridan. Later he visited the military show and exposition on the lake front.

There will be an army monkey brigade, a field kitchen race, drills of army units, and the various uniforms worn by American soldiers from the days of the revolutionary war to the world war conflict.

Remember Fighters

While the rest of Chicago is out celebrating the Fourth of July in parks and playgrounds and excursions to summer resorts, the disabled veterans in army hospitals will not be forgotten. Volunteer workers for the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross were busy yesterday fashioning bits of cheer for the shut-ins. On their trays next Friday will be menu covers and favors as a special remembrance.

CHICAGO WOMAN FACES CRIMINAL CHARGE IN BERLIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 27.—Mrs. Corene Cowdery Davison, daughter of Edward Gilmore Cowdery, former vice president of the Peoples' Gas, Light and Coke company of Chicago, who recently charged that she was the victim of a plot by Russian refugees, who, she said, were trying to frighten her into helping their relatives to reach America, now faces a criminal charge.

Karlmann Braginski, a Russian landlord, had her arrested on June 15 on a charge of breaking a lease. Today Braginski received a postcard depicting a pig, with reference underneath to "good feeling." This is a criminal offense under German law.

Mrs. Davison was invited this afternoon in the Arbitration court to admit authorship of the card and pay a fine. She indignantly declined. Braginski threatens to institute criminal action

SENATE O. K. FOR VETERANS' BILL APPEARS LIKELY

Legion Officials Urge Prompt Passage.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

Washington, D. C., June 27.—[Special.]—Prospects for passage by the senate of the new administration world war veterans' bill substantially as passed yesterday by the house seemed favorable today after American Legion officials had announced their approval.

There was a likelihood, however, of a sharp debate in the senate which might run long enough to prevent adjournment of the regular session of congress quite as early next week as had been planned.

Debate Starts Monday.

The senate finance committee heard witnesses on the house bill in executive session today but failed to reach a vote. The committee will meet again tomorrow. A majority of the committee is expected to approve the house bill without material change. Debate on the floor of the senate will be deferred until Monday.

Democrats and radical Republicans were preparing to propose numerous amendments to increase pension rates to the level of Spanish war veterans and to add new compensation provisions. Even though they lose in the end they intend to make political capital against President Hoover in their senate speeches.

Urges Prompt Approval.

Principal witnesses before the finance committee were Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the veterans bureau, who approved the bill as passed by the house, and John Thomas Taylor, legislative representative of the American Legion, who presented a telegram from National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer urging prompt passage of the bill.

Two minor amendments were requested by Mr. Bodenhamer in his telegram. It is likely that these will be granted. One permits an extension of time in which to bring suit on insurance claims and the other provides that the controller general shall have no authority over the veterans bureau.

With reference to the new policy of pensions for veterans with disabilities not traceable to war service Mr. Bodenhamer said that this was a departure from the established policy of the Legion and that he was therefore in no position to comment upon it.

Senate O. K. Expected.

"The house has selected this new method of disability compensation in preference to the Legion proposal," said Mr. Bodenhamer in his telegram.

"I am sure that veterans and the American people as a whole will be happy to see this immediate relief for our disabled veterans. The Legion is unselfish and sincere in its desire for speedy action."

While the senate showed a disposition to go counter to the President's wishes in passing the original veterans bill the members are now confronted with the probability that the house will refuse to concur in any amendments which make material changes in the new measure. Hence the senate is expected to approve the bill after much oratory.

RURAL GRAIN CO. DEFICIT FOUND TO BE $185,131

Farm Concern Files Bankrupt Petition.

The Rural Grain company, which failed recently, has a deficit of $185,131, it was announced yesterday following a report by auditors who had been working on affairs of the concern since its suspension from the Chicago Board of Trade on June 17. The company filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in federal court yesterday.

According to S. J. Cottington, president of the insolvent farmer and farmer-elevator owned company, "all indications are that a deficit was partly due to unauthorized speculation in grain futures by E. V. Maltby, the general manager, although this has not been definitely established." Mr. Maltby had a $10,000 a year contract with an agreement not to deal in grain futures trades for himself or for the company, Mr. Cottington said. Mr. Maltby could not be reached yesterday. His home is at 15246 Lexington avenue, Harvey.

Six creditors stand to lose from $5,000 to $50,000 on various outstanding accounts. The audit statements list the Farmers National Grain corporation as facing a $80,000 loss; the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, $20,000; the Congress Trust and Savings company, $29,000; F. S. Lewis & Co., $35,000; Leland Farmers' Grain company, $5,000, and the Grain Stabilization board, $37,000. In addition there is the New Amersterdam Casualty company which had bonded Mr. Maltby for $25,000. Its representatives are scheduled to come to Chicago Monday for an investigation.

A receiver is to be asked today before Federal Judge Wilkerson.

One of them relates to an apparent discrepancy of $34,293 between the Chicago office accounts and those of a branch office at Peoria. Under Mr. Maltby's management, it is said, the Chicago books show that the Peoria branch owes the main office $25,763, while at the Peoria branch the accounts read that the Peoria office has a balance due of $8,525.

PREFERS JAIL TO ALIMONY, SUICIDE TO JAIL; JAILED

Five minutes after being sentenced to the county jail yesterday, William Politzer attempted to leap from a seventh floor window in the county building, but was caught and held by Kelsey K. Milner, bailiff to Circuit Judge Thomas J. Lynch, who had sentenced Politzer for contempt of court.

Politzer had been summoned before Judge Lynch on complaint of his divorced wife, Mrs. Esther R. Politzer, who said he was $70 in arrears in his alimony payments. The judge ordered him to pay his wife the amount due.

"I won't do it," Politzer shouted. "I'll go to jail first."

"All right," the judge replied. "I'll send you there and you'll stay until you change your mind."

As the bailiff started to take the prisoner to the sheriff's office, he broke away and ran to a window opening on the court of the building.

The Wholesale and the Main Retail Store of this Company will be closed all day Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5. The Suburban Stores will be open on July 5.

DRY SLAMS AT WICKERSHAM.

Senator Carter Glass, who sponsored the first appropriation for the Wickersham law enforcement commission, opposed further large money grants to the investigators. The Virginian is a dry, but he said the commission had proved itself a futility, making very dubious expenditures out of the $250,000 given it and getting nowhere, at least nowhere that Senator Glass thinks it worth while to keep on going.

The senator discovered on looking over the commission expense accounts a number of activities that he thought had nothing to do with the case of prohibition, including an item for the study of juvenile delinquency. "What has congress or the federal government," he asked, "to do with juvenile delinquency, no matter what this commission finds out? That is a matter exclusively for the police jurisdiction of the respective states. And what has this commission to do with a revision of the judicial systems of the several states? It is an inconceivable proposition."

If the eighteenth amendment is properly a part of the constitution, as Senator Glass thinks it is, then no condition in any state from whatever causes arising is alien to the work of the federal government and congress. Nothing, then, is exclusively for the police jurisdiction of the states. The eighteenth amendment, making the United States a policeman in matters of personal habit, made any other federal incursion into the domain of the states consistent with the new functions of the Union. Senator Glass may not care to indorse some of these enterprises, but they are a part of his prohibition system. The Volstead act may be as far as the Virginia senator wants to go with federal interference in state rights and responsibilities, but the persons wanting to go further have his amendment and his statute for their authority.

If the use of alcoholic beverages is a matter for federal intervention, juvenile delinquency is also. The federal truant officer has as logical a right in a Virginia school district as a federal prohibition officer has there. Illiteracy, maternity, reform of court procedure, sanitation, amusements, pedagogy, the practice of medicine, fortune telling, horse racing, cock fighting, and poker playing are all proper matters for federal concern, legislation, and administration if the eighteenth amendment is a sound section of the American federal government structure. If it is a part of the house, then all these other parts have their place. If a Virginia school district is so conducted that its principal product promises to be moonshiners and bootleggers for the Washington trade, then a logical government would look into the delinquency at its origin.

The senator will find many people agreeing with him that the Wickersham commission has been only summer lightning, but the noble experimenters have been largely responsible for that. There are some able men and women on the commission, but they seem to have thrown up the job in disgust. They soon discovered that it was a fraud. The country is doubled up in the cramps resulting from what it had taken into its system, and a commission honestly free to investigate would have gone at once into fundamental causes. On just an intimation that this would be done, notice was served that it would not be tolerated. The commission was to find that prohibition was a perfect instrument of government policy and that the eighteenth amendment was in the constitution by an exercise of the greatest wisdom the country ever used. Then the commissioners were to stir up the inside of the silk hat with the magician's stick and bring out all the conditions of a nation in a state of grace.

The commission was not that good at wizardry. The only things it could make pop out were more jails and more felons. The prohibitionists are an ungrateful lot. It is not enough for them that realities are ignored and facts evaded. They want miracles, and, if they do not get them, are going to have some hides.

MUSEUM PEACE, NOT TO SAY REPOSE.

Since the opening of the Adler planetarium it has been filled nearly to capacity at each evening demonstration. This fact should not escape the directors of other museums in Chicago. It is difficult if not impossible for many adults to visit a museum during the day, however much they may wish to do so. At week-ends the crowds are often uncomfortably large. To confer maximum benefits the museums should be opened at least on one or two evenings a week, particularly in summer. The added expense might be met, perhaps, by opening the doors several hours later one or two mornings a week.

The chief objection to remaining open in the evenings, we suspect, is the fact that it never has been done. Probably the earliest museums had to close toward sundown because artificial light was lacking. Probably, too, the earliest museums belonged to rulers, great or petty, who graciously permitted the lower orders to examine the palace treasures from time to time, the hours being arranged for the convenience of the monarch. He naturally preferred to keep the commoners out of the palace after dark, and we don't hold that against him. No man, and least of all a king, wants strangers wandering around the house at bedtime.

It is difficult to justify the closing of our museums in the evenings and even harder to justify the closing of such an institution as the Crerar library at 6 p. m. The Crerar is peculiarly a library for professional men. It is the only library in Chicago which contains the material required by many doctors, engineers and students of the physical and social sciences. These men and women, for the most part, are busy in their offices and laboratories during the day. If they wish to study, they must do so at night. We should think that if the resources of the Crerar enabled it to remain open only eight or ten hours a day those hours should be arranged to include the evening up to 11 o'clock. If it is a shortage of funds which keeps the Crerar closed evenings we should think the engineering, chemical, medical, and other societies, with their thousands of members in Chicago, would find no great difficulty in raising the money to maintain the service when it is most needed.

THE CONFLICT IN INDIA.

The Simon report on India, the second section recently released, has been generally accepted in Great Britain and rejected in India. A few English radicals did not think it was much, but all Indian revolutionaries thought it was nothing. It recommended extensions of suffrage, more preparation for a greater degree of self-government, and slow approaches to a country of federated states, with the withdrawal of Burma from Delhi control.

Both the British and the revolutionists seem to agree on one thing—that present difficulties will not find any remedy in conciliation. Gandhi's followers want dominion status now. The British government has no intention of granting it, not even the Labor government of Mr. MacDonald, which could be expected to be the most liberal of all. Conciliation being thus seemingly removed from possibility, the conflict passes into another stage, in which both repression and resistance are tightened up.

Charles Dailey, writing for THE TRIBUNE in Bombay, says that official India has taken the report as a basis for the extension of repressive ordinances, for tighter suppression of demonstrations, for more arrests and more severe punishments. The wearing of revolutionary symbols, such as Gandhi caps, is forbidden. Parades are not allowed and demonstrators are severely beaten. In resistance taxes are evaded, British goods are boycotted, the banks are losing deposits, and lawyers are leaving the courts. Gandhi's doctrine of resistance without violence mainly prevails, and revolutionists attacked by the police have taken severe punishment without striking back. Nevertheless force is being met by force and there is nothing in human experience with such conflicts to indicate that the decision can be by anything else.

The Indian leaders want one thing. The British want another. The two are not reconcilable. A native government with full powers cannot exist alongside a British government with superior powers. The Indians cannot be free under British restraint. If they gain their freedom the British are out, as they are in the white dominions. A free government of one color cannot exist under the overlordship of another. There can be various forms of participation in government, in representation, and on the civil list, but that will not be freedom and it will not give India the place of Canada or South Africa, in which the consent of the dominion decides its relation to the commonwealth. There are two conflicting orders of society. One may be regarded as better than the other, but they cannot be harmonized. The India of native government might not be as orderly, as well administered, as secure from internal disturbance or external attack, as safe on the side of public health or in the enjoyment of individual rights as British India now is. What the world generally regards as the best standards of civilization might not be so well maintained, but if the Indians must get them from the British they must get them as a subject people, and they are not seeking excellence of government or of living in such a status. They are not asking the improvements of white civilization from the British, but freedom from the constraints which must attend that civilization.

What they ask of Great Britain is its withdrawal. The conqueror is to pack his trunk and go back home. The demand is virtually for the surrender of occupied territory. It comes to that. The British are to furl their flags and get out. They are not likely to accept conditions which would make them take orders from the people they have ruled. Freedom means that and has no substitute for it. The British could abolish the salt tax and take that argument away from the revolutionists, but a correction of alleged abuses in government does not take the governed out from under the control of the governor.

The side which prevails will be the side with the superior force. It need not be superior because it is most violent. Passive resistance might wear out armed forces, particularly when a so-called liberalism fears to use all the deadly force it can. The settlement in India will be by the strongest having their way.

Editorial of the Day

SCHOOLS IN PLACE OF CHATEAUX.

[New York Times.]

From England, the land of rule of thumb and little by little, comes one more instance of a truth that is beginning to win wide acceptance. By the humdrum process of taxation one may get much the same results as by the dramatic methods of revolution. Visitors to soviet Russia are particularly stirred by the sight of former palaces of the czars and the high nobility now turned into hospitals, rest homes, and clubhouses for the working class.

A similar case, minus revolution, is Impington hall, the sixteenth century Cambridgeshire home of the Pepys family, figuring in the celebrated diary of the seventeenth century Samuel. Postwar taxation has made this historic house, like so many others of the stately homes of England, too expensive to live in. Impington hall having come on the market, it has been purchased and presented to the county education authorities as a "village college" for the population of the vicinity.

In the United States taxation has been extremely busy of late in providing the people with palaces of education, except that here we do not buy up and convert ancient manor houses, but build new, magnificent schools. The countryside has been blossoming with million dollar high schools, which are as significant for America as its skyscrapers.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

PRETTY SMART OF THE DOCS.

The docs have just held a convention over in Detroit, and among other things they did was to recommend a board in every county in this here Union to license automobile drivers. One of the members of the board will be a doc to see if the bird who thinks he can drive a car at forty or fifty miles through stop lights, traffic, and everything has his full quota of arms, legs, ears, eyes, and everything. The next member of the board will find out if the applicant knows the difference between the accelerator and the rear axle and which is his right hand and which the left; also what he thinks of the idea of beating the train to the crossing.

But the third member of the board is to be an ophthalmologist. He will find out if the applicant for a driver's card is able to see a brick wall if it fell on him, if he knows the difference between blue and black and white, and also does he believe fat pedestrians have any right to live, and if so, why. This is all to the good. The docs are right. Nobody should appear in public armed with a deadly automobile unless he has shown that he'd rather not scrape the fenders off another car if he can pass him without doing it. But besides these three members of the board there should be an orthologian and an orthoepist. An orthologian knows all about words and how to use them, but it takes an orthoepist to pronounce 'em.

However, these specialists would not turn loose on the public highways the sort of autoist who chirps at you, "What's the matter, funny face? Wyinell don't youse git somebody to learn youse to drive?" The orthoepist would instruct the applicant for an auto driver's license that there is no such phrase as "wit youse." According to Mr. Webster's justly celebrated but not widely read dictionary, the phrase is "with you." Also the suggestion that the man in the other car should get some one to "learn" him to drive is not the best orthological usage of the English language. "Why in (naughty word) do you not get some one to TEACH you to drive?" is preferred by leading orthologians. Also another grave mistake one often hears motorists make is the employment of the sentence, "Another chirp outta you, pie-face, and I'll drive yer nose outta the back of yer neck and tie it in a bow knot." The best orthoepists deplore the use of "outta" for "out of," and no one should be given a driver's license who commits this grave error. Another phrase which is a gross solecism is, we fear, too frequently heard among motorists, "Aw, shut yer head; yer great-grandfather wuz a monkey." This sentence is also in bad taste, as in many states of the Union the inhabitants are deeply shocked and grieved at the suggestion that their grandfathers at one time swung by their tails in the forests of Africa. Likewise, the double inquiry, "Hey, where yuh goin'? Yuh gonna be a farmer all yer life?" This, too, is unorthoepical and should not be employed.

THE STORY OF A PURPLE GOWN.

I said, "I'll buy a purple gown—
For, some day, I shall meet him . . ."
I went a-traipsing up and down,
Rehearsing smiles to greet him.

And he will see me thus, thought I—
So beautiful and costly—
And, humbly, he will scurry by,
Embittered to have lost me.

The sun came up The sun went down.
Numbed grew my heart with waiting.
I searched no more the crowded town.
Forgot my ancient hating.

And then, one afternoon, it rained.
I scuttled for a doorway.
Its dripping shelter safe attained—
Behold—who stood before me!

(A jade is retribution).
He bowed politely—murmured—passed—
I had my old blue suit on!

JUDY SHEA.

AND THIS is the season when the doorman can't make up his mind whether the visitor who insists on seeing the boss immediately is the president of the company or a college graduate hunting for a job.

ONE OF THE BEST ways of upsetting the poise of the high pressure auto salesman when he is lecturing about the used car he is trying to sell you is to refer to it lightly as "second hand." He goes straight into the air, spins groggily on his heel, and very probably falls heavily to the floor. In the meanwhile you gain time in which to think up some more dirty cracks.

"WON'T it be interesting in 1933," writes Long Skirts Suze, "to watch son-in-law coming down on the White House lawn when he visits pa-in-law in his aeroplane?" Oh, very, but not half so enthralling a spectacle as watching pa-in-law coming down on the 18th amendment.

REPETITION.

I wish some one had whispered
This year you would be gone
When spring danced down the highway
With silver slippers on.

When we talked of being true,
I called it forever,
When you pledged your faithfulness
You were being clever.

Oh, if spring should wander back
With green winds and wet clover,
I'd be fool enough again
To do the same thing over.

HELEN WELSHIMER.

LAGNIAPPE.

DO NOT be in error! The wets are rejoicing mightily and the drys are most indignant because of the erection of the monument to Mr. Buchanan. The impression seems to have got around that this is the same Mr. Buchanan who manufactured Scotch whisky in large quantities and of a most aromatic and delightful taste.

THE ENGLISH are celebrating at Ipswich the 400th anniversary of Cardinal Wolsey. The English just love anybody who got his head cut off. "Rather sporting of the dear old duffer, what!"

AIR-TOO-COOLED THEATERS.

A SMALL family group is having lunch. A 13 year old boy asks permission to go to the movies. The mother consents provided the boy will go to a theater where the air is not kept at 68 degrees. The thermometer in the shade registers 88 and the mother is unwilling for the boy to walk from the hot outside air and the still hotter sunlight into a darkened theater where the air has been cooled 20 degrees or more and to sit there inactive for two hours. Adjusting his heat procedure and heat loss to so radical a change, she regarded as too much of a strain. Any theater where the air was 10 degrees cooler than the outside air, she regarded as offering wholesome and comfortable conditions.

The Aerologist for August, 1929, carried an editorial entitled "Sixty-eight Degrees Cool," from which the following extracts are taken: "Passing a picture theater today, we observed a large sign suspended above the box office bearing the legend, 'Sixty-eight degrees cool.' We have repeatedly observed that many theaters where artificial refrigeration is used are maintained at much too low a temperature for health or comfort. Thirty degrees below the temperature on the street is repeatedly broadcast over the radio by advertisers of amusement places.

"Ultimately such low temperatures work harm to the theater, to the manufacturer of air cooling equipment, and to the public. There is a surprisingly large number of people, some of advanced age and infirm, some perfectly normal, who will not and who dare not patronize refrigerated theaters because of some unhappy experiences they had in amusement places that were 68 degrees cool. A theater in which the air is kept at 75 degrees and a humidity of 55 per cent, and in which there is a barely perceptible air motion, is close to the ideal for warm weather."

A difference of 10 degrees between the inside, where there is no light and but little radiation and where the air is still, and with the glare and heat outside, represents comfort and makes for health.

The human body can adjust itself to much greater differences in environment, but after the expiration of a few minutes the low temperature becomes trying. We hope that eventually homes, business places, offices, and factories will be refrigerated in hot weather. Mistakes made in theaters and restaurants tend to retard this development.

YOU MAY HAVE GOUT.

L. J. B. writes: I have arthritis of the finger joints next to the little finger of the right and the middle finger on the left hand. It is the second joint on each finger, each heading up into a small pocket filled with pus or a chalky deposit. These joints are more or less sore, especially when bent.

My breakfast consists of bran, corn flakes, whole milk, one-half glass orange juice. For dinner vegetables and tea or coffee. For supper lamb or chicken, vegetables, and fruit dessert.

What suggestions have you for relief, or is there any cure for my trouble?

REPLY.

It is possible that you have gout. Analysis of the chalky material would settle that question. It is probable that you have a form of chronic arthritis that elderly people are very subject to. It is somewhat inconvenient, but it is not a serious matter. Probably your diet is not an important factor and it does not need to be changed. Exercise to keep your joints in use will be helpful.

IT IS NOT CONTAGIOUS.

R. J. W. writes:

1. Is arthritis deformans infectious or contagious?
2. Could a husband be in danger of acquiring it from his wife, who has had it for ten years?
3. Is it communicable by kissing?

REPLY.

1. It is probably due primarily to an infection, but it is not contagious.
2. No.
3. No.

CHASM CLOSED.

Chicago, June 25.—[Friend of the People.]—I wonder if any one can explain why the hole in the asphalt street pavement at the intersection of West Van Buren street and South Kilbourn avenue is not repaired? This opening is growing larger all the time and has become a positive menace. It is so located that automobiles traveling from any direction are obliged to turn out in order to avoid it, and whenever a truck by any chance hits the spot all the buildings on the corner feel it. Isn't the vehicle tax fund supposed to care for just such things as this? C. L. M.

Report is made that depression in the asphalt pavement at Van Buren and Kilbourn avenue has received a temporary fill Permanent repairs will be made without undue delay, as our vehicle tax repair forces are now operating in the 30th ward in this vicinity. JOSEPH J. BUTLER, Superintendent of Streets.

IN-LAWS.

Chicago, June 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If my husband's brothers and sisters are brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law to me, how can my husband's brother's wife also be my sister-in-law, as so many people consider her? Are they related to me or not?

B. C.

Relationships "in-law" have no important legal significance. It has been our observation of common usage that the term is applied only where the relationship is traced through one marriage.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 28, 1865.

WASHINGTON. — Assistant Judge Advocate Bingham delivered his argument in the conspiracy trial in behalf of the government. It was in answer to the plea of Reverdy Johnson urging the lack of jurisdiction of the military commission. Mr. Bingham argued that the court having been constituted by President Johnson it was not in their power, as inferiors, to disobey and declare the act a military usurpation. The conspirator who assassinated President Lincoln was not arrested by civil process, but pursued by military power, captured and slain. If the President is justified in this act, what law condemns him for arresting in like manner and subjecting to trial, according to military law, all other parties to this conspiracy?

WASHINGTON.—The farmers at Lynchburg, Va., have held a meeting and fixed the rates of compensation for freedmen at $5 a month for first class men and $2.50 for women and boys. A military order has been issued, however, prohibiting such meetings, which will probably render this action null and void.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 28, 1900.

CHEEFOO.—Admiral Seymour's international force which failed to reach Peking has been relieved, but there is no news as to the fate of the foreign ministers in Peking. Col. Schtelle, Russian, commanding a combined force of 10,000 men, is now supposed to be on his way to Peking.

CHICAGO.—The mercury reached 91 yesterday and five persons died from heat prostration.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — The Democratic state convention nominated the rest of its ticket to run with Samuel Alschuler of Aurora for governor as follows: Lieutenant governor, Elmer A. Perry of Brown county; treasurer, Millard Dunlap of Morgan; secretary of state, James F. O'Donnell of McLean; attorney general, James Todd of Cook; auditor, George B. Parsons of Gallatin; university trustees, Julia Holmes Smith of Cook, Charles W. Bliss of Montgomery, and Joseph Schwartz of Warren.

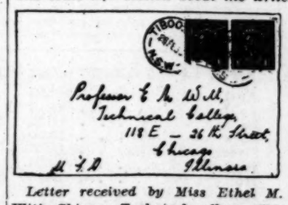
JUNE 28, 1920.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The McAdoo boom for President took a lively jump on the eve of the opening of the Democratic national convention when word reached his friends here that he would accept the nomination if it were forced on him. The wet and dry fight was launched on the convention by both sides to the alcoholic controversy. Mr. Bryan's "dry as a bone" plank came out of the box of secrecy and he says he will fight to the last ditch for it.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The Illinois delegation to the Democratic national convention went on record for a light wine and beer plank in the platform by a vote of 36 to 21.

INTERESTING LETTERS

If you have received a letter from an interesting or little known place send the envelope to The Tribune, stating name of place where it was mailed and some information about the writer of the letter.



Letter received by Miss Ethel M. Witt, Chicago Technical college, Chicago, Ill.:

"Tibooburra is a country town situated in the northwest corner of New South Wales," Miss Witt writes. "The nearest city, which is the Broken Hill of silver and lead mining fame, is over two hundred miles away, the nearest railway one hundred and eighty miles. The population is one hundred and fifty people. There are three hotels, which all manage to handle a fair amount of cash; about twenty-five private houses, and the government buildings, postoffice, public school, police station, and courthouse.

"Miss J. Nicholls, writer of the letter, is employed in the postoffice of Tibooburra.

"In the early days about thirty years ago Tibooburra was a flourishing town with a population of 7,000 people. Tibooburra is rich in gold, but to work it is the trouble; water is very scarce and, on account of the hard granite formation surrounding it, it is almost impossible to bore. The average rainfall for a year is seven to eight inches, but normal seasons seem to be a thing of the past. Four inches of rain recently has helped conditions. After a rain the townsfolk go out looking for gold and sometimes specks are found in the street."

IN MEMORIAM.

Chicago, June 27.—I've had some difficulty of late in collecting the names of the so-called solons who voted for the prohibition amendment some years ago. Already, after one short decade, these noble and inspired congressional names have been forgotten. The business should be remedied; the public should not so soon forget these men of lofty aim who voted a blatant "yea" to the "noble experiment." Their names should be engraved, if not in immortal bronze, then at least in limestone. I submit the following suggestion:

Let the park commissioners get together and let them order that the approaches to the new outer link bridge be embellished, not with goats' heads, as in the case of the Michigan avenue structure, but with the figures of jackasses in heroic size, rampant on the north and south pylons; and let them engrave on these massive structures, for all the world to see, the names of all who subscribed a hearty "yes" to the vote on Number 18 and the Volstead act. A mechanical braying device would be a unique feature and would serve to call continual attention to the names of the lofty ones who have helped to rid our jails of prisoners, our poorhouses of inmates, who have abolished drunkenness and crime and who have made of this land a veritable heaven of peace, quiet, and tranquillity.

As a patriotic citizen and loyal taxpayer I submit this plan gratis to my city. E. L. T.

WHY REAL ESTATE IS SICK.

Chicago, June 23.—The mortgage bankers are beginning to whine now that they are getting the same dose of medicine that has been meted out to other lines of trade since the readjustment began. Now they want a change in the foreclosure laws, but when they were getting big commissions for making loans and selling mortgages promptly nothing was heard about changing the real estate laws. On the other hand, all we heard from both mortgage bankers and high pressure real estate men was that prices were going to be pegged at a much higher level than before the war and would never come down owing to the much higher standard of living demanded by everybody, as though people before the war were not living, but just running around in skins and living in caves.

There is absolutely nothing the matter with Chicago real estate when it gets down to where it belongs; but high construction costs, and boom prices are the trouble, and, like a fever, must run their course. For one thing, Illinois has managed to get along very well under the existing laws and cannot see any reason for changing them to please a certain class of people. There will be plenty of money available where the cost and loan are reasonable. J. A. M.

REMARKABLY TAME ROBINS.

Chicago, June 24.—Speaking of tame robins, a few years ago a pair attached themselves to my little mortgage covered bungalow and made themselves generally useful, bringing in the groceries, placing THE TRIBUNE on the breakfast table, sorting the mail, putting campaign speeches on efficiency and lower taxes and "let me make you wealthy ads" where they belong. They would tune out prohibition orators, Hoover prosperity speakers, Legionnaires advocating elimination of profits during the next war, and downstate senators speaking at local banquets proclaiming their great love for the city of Chicago.

This year, I painted my house a different color and they got mad and quit.

WEED-CUTTING FOR UNEMPLOYED.

Chicago, June 25.—Now is the time that the weeds ought to be cut in the empty lots to prevent further growth. They should be cut near the ground and a few yards back from the sidewalk. If the owners of property were willing to have it done now it would provide work for some of the unemployed and also prevent pollination of the weeds.

ROUND SHOULDERED TROOPERS.

Chicago, June 26.—I would like to state a few words of criticism for the benefit of the Black Horse troop. I saw them parade Thursday for the first time. About fifteen minutes after they passed I noticed the cavalrymen in the military tournament parade by. It was quite noticeable, the difference in the posture of these two troops. The men of the Black Horse troop appeared round shouldered, caused by the men leaning entirely too far forward as if they were going to grab leather, while the men of the tournament troop sat in an upright position, which is the position of a well trained cavalryman.

It was also noticed that when one of the officers put his horse in a trot he leaned so far forward that it looked as if he were trying to whisper something in the horse's ear. The writer believes that the commander of this troop, after their next drill, will stand off to one side of his men so that he can note the posture of the men while at drill and make the necessary corrections.

EX-ARTILLERYMAN.

THE BEAUTIFUL DES PLAINES.

Chicago, June 23.—THE TRIBUNE quite recently had an editorial on the Des Plaines river and its possibilities for recreation. From Lake street south it flows through North and South Side this stream is the filthiest example of an open sewer.

Why has the sanitary board for the last six years kept promising that a few months this condition would be changed? Industrial concerns as well as towns should not be allowed to dump their filth into this stream and should be prosecuted, if not by the district then by the state of Illinois. It is generally understood that the intercepting sewers are all laid and in readiness to divert all sewage on both sides of the river south of North avenue. The why not get the plant in Stickney running, or at least turn the sewage through the new system into the drainage canal in the neighborhood of Stickney? Also why not now take measures to divert the sewage to the north of the territory mentioned? This action will be necessary in a short time.

We note the acquisition of new forest preserves. Would it not be best to take care of those already acquired by cutting the weeds and cleansing the streams? We are giving much attention to our highways. We should give immediate attention to our health and clean up the only scenic river highway in this community. This should be done and means devised to keep a flow in dry season either by a little water from the lake or by wells sunk along the upper reaches of the stream.

ROBERT E. WAGNER.

LOAFERS.

Chicago, June 18. — I today had the splendid opportunity of seeing why so much of the city's money is ruthlessly wasted.

The asphalt street in front of a building is being repaired. Today a gang of twenty men [the writer counted twenty, but at times there were more] tore up some of the asphalt on one street. Never in the writer's experience can he remember seeing so much standing done on any job. He does not know what they were waiting for, but presumes that it was for a wagon to take away the old asphalt and to bring the new. The work could easily have been done by three or four men in one-half of the time.

If this is where our taxes go it is no wonder that they are high.

EDWARD H. ZOELLER.

A SPECIAL ASSESSMENT.

Chicago, June 25.—I have a piece of property on 73rd street and Barry, and I paid more taxes on this vacant than hundreds of home owners did for their homes close in to transportation and better improvements. Now comes an assessment notice for a sewer system, of $423 for my piece of property, a charge of $4.23 per running foot. Some sewer; and I wonder if there is no chance of relief from such wholesale robbery and injustice.

SYNOPSIS.

Catherine West of Boston, on her way to Paris, meets Geoffrey Macadam. Catherine tells him that she is going to visit her cousin's widow, Mme. Belmont Bender. She is apprehensive about the coming visit, because she had received, just before sailing, a letter from Hermione Cushing, who tells her that Mme. Bender is far from well. Macadam is a lawyer and he tells Catherine that his firm handles Mme. Bender's affairs. He had heard that she was ill.

Arrived at Mme. Bender's apartment, Catherine is treated coldly by the servants. Jeanne, Mme. Bender's maid, tells her that Mme. Bender attempted to commit suicide the night before. The next morning Catherine goes in to see Germaine, who is pathetically glad to see her. She tells Catherine how she had taken poison by mistake.

Geoffrey invites Catherine to dine with him and she tells him of her vague fears. He is disturbed, too.

The next morning Catherine calls on Miss Cushing, who takes her to her milliner, where she sees a man she had noticed hanging around the Bender apartment. Back in the apartment she finds the gallery open for the first time and a number of pictures and tapestries missing. Jeanne says they were sold shortly before Mr. Bender's death. Catherine feels she is lying. She finds Jeanne is exerting a baneful influence on Mme. Bender. Geoffrey again takes Catherine out to dinner and she unburdens herself to him. He has already put an investigator on the case. He asks her to marry him, but she wants time to be certain of her feelings. Catherine goes to visit Geoffrey's sister at Fontainebleau.

Geoffrey discovers Blom, the mysterious person seen around the Bender apartment, is making a possible heir to the Bender fortune. Shortly after this discovery Blom's engagement to Mme. Baron, Miss Cushing's milliner, a widow, whose maiden name is the family name of Mme. Bender, is announced.

A fire breaks out in Mme. Bender's apartment early in the morning and she is burned to death. Most of the building is saved. Catherine had returned suddenly to Paris the night before. The servants deny to Geoffrey that she came to the apartment. Geoffrey follows Eduardo, the butler, to Blom's office. He sends for his investigator to watch the pair, then calls on the commissariat de police, who assigns Inspector Bazin to the case.

Catherine did return to Mme. Bender's apartment. Before retiring she smells smoke and finds it is coming from her cousin's room. The door is locked. She dashes to get the keys and arouse Jeanne, who fights with her to prevent her from opening madam's door. She sees the butler carrying a heavy candlestick—and then a crashing blow on her head rob her of consciousness.

Geoffrey's sister Elspeth meets him at the Bender apartment. She looks over Catherine's belongings and finds a hat Catherine wore on her visit at Fontainebleau. Geoffrey receives a telegram signed by Catherine, stating she is well and would telephone him on the morrow. After the first shock of joy he becomes doubtful about the message. He sends the inspector to watch from a room across the street, the Bender apartment building.

On regaining consciousness Catherine finds herself in a strange bedroom, securely bound. After darkness Jeanne and Eduardo enter, release her and take her out to a waiting car, where Blom joins them.

INSTALLMENT LXXVIII.

IN PURSUIT.

Geoffrey was met by a yawning concierge who, by the look of him, was at that moment revolving in his mind the suitability of closing up for the night. Apologizing for the lateness of his call, Geoffrey inquired if any of the tenants wished to sublet his flat. He was answered by a supercilious negative. No, these apartments were seldom sublet; all the locataires were in residence now, and not one of them had any intention of leaving. Yes, he would take the gentleman's address, but there was nothing to be gained by it. Monsieur would do better to go to an agent.

"You say they are all here now?" persisted Geoffrey.

"Certainly, monsieur—but it would be the same if they were not."

Geoffrey thanked him and departed, to repeat the questions in the house next door, where the result, framed with less discourtesy, was similar. Again in the fourth building he received a like response.

He was beginning to think there was nothing in his theory after all, but he did not mean to give up without trying the last of the five. He was in the act of entering the wide opening, through which issued sounds of laughter and high pitched voices, when a man's figure detached itself from the shadow of the chestnuts and took a step towards him. To his amazement he heard his name called in an undertone.

"Monsieur Macadam! A word with you, please!"

The subdued voice was charged with excitement. Turning, Geoffrey made out the lugubrious features of Bernard.

"Monsieur! It is fortunate you have come! Who do you suppose at this moment is with the concierge in that loge you were about to enter?"

Geoffrey shook his head, his eyes fixed on the other's face.

"S'sh—it is Adolph Blom. I have been watching this house because it is the one to which the butler went this morning, and I have had an idea that that fact might mean something to us. A quarter of an hour ago I saw the notaire go in. He is with the concierge now, chatting as though he were an old friend."

Blom—here, in this neighborhood!

"What do you think it indicates?" demanded Geoffrey quickly.

"I do not know. I glanced in the window and saw them tinkering with the radio, but I cannot believe it is merely a social call. It is my opinion he is waiting for some one, that the loge there is a rendezvous—but for what I cannot say."

Meanwhile Geoffrey was cursing his stupidity for allowing this particular scene to escape his calculations. Surely he ought to have guessed that Eduardo's visit here today must have had some significance, yet because he could see nothing in it he had all but dismissed it from his mind. Hurriedly taking stock of the situation, he explained his own presence, pointing out the window a hundred yards along the street where till recently he had been stationed.

"The police inspector is there now. Stay here while I tell him what has happened. Only a little while ago Blom gave one of his men the slip, so this may lead us to some clew."

"I understand, monsieur. I will remain on guard while you inform the inspector that Blom is here."

Three minutes later, panting from his dash up the stairs, Geoffrey opened the study door. A few yards away the red tip of a cigaret told him the inspector was still at his post.

"Blom!" burst out Geoffrey. "He's turned up in this street, in the loge of that last house there. It's the house the butler visited this morning.

"Sacré! What fools we are! That house below there is the one we should be watching—not this! How did you find this out? You have seen the fellow?"

Geoffrey related briefly what had happened. As he listened intently, Bazin consulted the luminous dial of his watch, the glimmering hands of which pointed to twenty-five minutes past eleven.

"It is getting late, but that concierge yonder will not close up till his visitor has gone. If they have got mademoiselle hidden somewhere in that building——"

Even as he spoke they saw the fat old porter over the way amble forth and begin swinging the heavy doors together.

"You think she may be there—that they have carried her across the——"

The sentence died in his throat as he leaned suddenly out the window, staring intently at a man who came running towards them between the lines of chestnuts. The swiftly padding steps reached the pavement beneath, and at the same instant a hoarse voice called Geoffrey's name.

"Monsieur, come down again—not a moment to lose! I have just seen the butler together with two women cross to the Square Lamartine and get into a car. I do not know, but I believe one of the women may be your friend!"

With a single impetus the two men sprang for the door, made a plunge down the broad main stairway and breathlessly confronted the excited agent.

"A car? What sort of car? When?"

"It is a large black limousine standing in the square. I watched the three of them come out of the house—a man and a woman leading an invalid lady between them, her face covered in bandages, so I could not see who she was. As they reached the car I recognized the butler."

Geoffrey's blazing eyes met the inspector's.

"It is they! I'm sure of it! Quick—we'll follow them! Like hell!"—and not pausing for a reply he led the way at top speed round the corner into the turning where showed the lights of the inspector's car.

No time to consider how the pair whom they had believed safely confined in the flat opposite had emerged from another building two hundred yards farther along the street. Besides, there was but one way in which such a trick could have been managed—a passage over the roofs. Enough that Bernard had seen and known Eduardo's face. The invalid lady must be Catherine, and at the thought Geoffrey's heart gave a great leap. She was alive still, but in imminent peril.

Within less than a minute Bazin was at the wheel with Geoffrey beside him and Bernard on the seat behind. Swiftly the car moved forward into the avenue, now empty as far as the eye could see. The Square Lamartine lay ahead of them on the right hand side.

"It has not been more than a few minutes," the agent assured them. "If we are lucky we can catch up with them. Here we are! Look sharp!"

They had entered the Square Lamartine, a secluded spot comprising a group of detached houses, each surrounded with its own patch of walled garden. Geoffrey leaned out, scanning the darkened roadway in every direction, then struck his knee with his clenched fist and swore aloud.

"Gone! My God, they've given up the slip!"

It was true. Short as the interval had been, the trio, car and all, had completely vanished.

Good Morning!

Jack Oakie puts over in great shape this rather slim little story that originally dripped from the pen of Octavus Roy Cohen. As a prize fighter he dreams of becoming a social lion, sees the dream come true—after a fashion—and, gratefully, goes back to prize fighting. A prety dumb boy, Marco Perkins, but, once having learned a lesson, that lesson stays learned. It is not HIS cheek that's crimson when, about to leave the country club for which he has won a polo match and the members of which have taken him for a humiliating "ride," he, as we say, "spills a mouthful." Thus—or words to the effect:

"It's all right. It's a good thing you did what you did. I'd been getting myself all wrong. There I was, trying to be like you people—and what have YOU got to sell, NOT A THING. I've learned my lesson and I'm going back where I belong—and make good."

He has learned his lesson. He does make good.

The picture opens with a hilarious boxing bout, lost by the trusting Marco because he believes his opponent's adjuration to "Look at your shoe lace—it's untied!" He looks at the lace and is laid low by his all but fainting antagonist. Film closes with a fight in Madison Square Garden. This time the would-be champ's shoes are closed neatly and securely with—zippers!

Much occurs between bouts, including some beautifully protographed polo games.

Though, first and foremost, just his own ingratiating self, Mr. Oakie causes memories of sad eyed Charlie Ray to flit across your mind and reminds you of a fresh thing known as William Haines. He's brasher, though, than Ray and much more lovable than Haines. There's a wistfulness behind the bravado and wisecrackery, and an assurance behind the pathos. Just Jack Oakie, after all, I guess. 'Snuff!

He has nice support. "Skeets" Gallagher as Marco's manager is a stout fellah. Mary Bryan is her own charming self as Cynthia, who is true, and Olive Borden is convincing as the False Note. Charles Sellon as Marco's father and the men who play the old chap's cackling cronies lend an honest touch.

Sound and photography are splendid. Lines are peppy and punchful. Direction is good, though perhaps there are times when there's too much play for laughs.

You can rest assured that "The Social Lion" is clean, zestful entertainment which the children as well as yourselves will enjoy.

"YOUNG DESIRE."

Produced by Universal.
Directed by Lew Collins.
Presented at the Monroe theater.
THE CAST.

Helen Herbert.....Mary Nolan
Bobby Spencer.....William Janney
Blackie.....Ralf Harolde
May.....Mae Busch
Mr. Spencer.....George Irving
Mrs. Spencer.....Claire McDowell

This Mary Nolan is an arresting person! She secures a persistent hold on your interest and sympathy. You feel that here is the ability, personality, and brain that go to make a great actress, and will, if only the girl to whom they belong has the stamina to add hard work to the category and the resistance to withstand obstacles. You sense in her a cynicism and impatience that make you a bit doubtful of her future—but you hope like everything that she'll come through, for she has a heap more than "it" and of that she possesses a goodly share.

"Young Desire," adapted from a play called "Carnival," tells the story of a "hootchy cootchy" dancer in a traveling carnival who is the sweetie of the manager. She detests the life and the man, Blackie, and runs away. She meets a nice, open faced, clean minded boy of good family, who worships her, and wistfully she plans to marry him and start a new life as his wife.

But the boy has parents who bring all they have to their effort to separate the apple of their eye from this "bad woman." Helen takes the matter out of their hands. Beau geste!

The story is not highly original and, in little things, fails sometimes to convince, but it is well acted, photographed and recorded, and holds your interest. Mary Nolan, you will agree, is the pith and halo of the production.

See you tomorrow.

Bishop Stewart Starts for Lambeth London Meeting

The Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, bishop coadjutor of Chicago, left yesterday on the Broadway Limited of the Pennsylvania railroad for New York, where he will sail on the Mauretania for England. He will represent there the local Episcopal diocese at the Lambeth conference of Anglican bishops in London, called by the archbishop of Canterbury. Later he will tour Europe, carrying the messages of Chicago's Century of Progress in 1933. Bishop Stewart was accompanied by Mrs. Stewart and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. White and two daughters, Constance and Dorothy, of 1824 Chicago avenue, Evanston.

SEVEN STUDENTS VIE TODAY FOR COUNTY ACHIEVEMENT PRIZE

Seven students in the county public schools will compete for first prize in the annual Cook county achievement contest this morning in the office of Edward J. Tobin, county superintendent of schools. They are the champions of the county's seven educational divisions, having won the honors in competition with 211 other achievement students who will graduate tomorrow afternoon.

The contestants will present their data and tell in their own words to the seven judges why they believe they should be given first honor. First prize will be $25; second, $15, and third, $10. The graduates will be presented emblems at a banquet at 2:30 p. m. in the Rose room of the Morrison hotel. Sixteen school credits, earned through the completion of sixteen school home projects, are required for achievement graduation.

Jungle Terror at Night Told by Mrs. Akeley

But She Plans an Early Return to Africa.

New York, June 27.—[Special.]—Home from the pathless jungles of Rhodesia, Mrs. Dalia Akeley, first wife of the African explorer, Carl Akeley, was today laying the plans for her sixth expedition into Central Africa. Civilization has little allurement for this blue eyed silver haired woman, who knows her "darkest Africa" as New Yorkers know forty-second street.

She today was poring over maps planning her next safari into the upper Congo regions, although she has been back in this country only five days.

Her last sojourn of a year in the jungle was one of solitude, in which her only companions were blacks, as she had ridden off into the Walesse country on the front seat of a native carryall amid the snorts and pitying looks of a few whites.

"Yes, I confess there were times when I was afraid," she said. "I was actually terrified at night quite often."

She laughed as if to belie her words.

"I always slept with one eye open," she said. "Every one in Africa does."

It was on a transcontinental trip that Mrs. Akeley lived for a time among the pygmies, learning their ways and their language. When she left their little thatched huts she was able to state with authority that the race of little Negroes was not dying out, but was actually increasing in numbers and wealth.

It will take $150,000 to finance the next expedition into Africa. Mrs. Akeley hopes to get this sum from a museum, although she said it would be welcomed from a philanthropist who wishes to further the world's knowledge.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

How will the flight of the Southern Cross rank in aviation history?

The Answers.

Capt. John B. Holmberg, 132 West Lake street, president Holmberg Air Mapping company.—The Southern Cross flight will rank as one of the finest long distance flights of history. It is a fine example of a well organized flight carried out with skill, intelligence, and courage. It is a great demonstration of aerial navigation.

Daniel A. Carey, commander Aviation post 651, American Legion—Any trans-Atlantic flight takes its place alongside of any prior epoch making flight that has been made, especially when it is a western flight. Lindbergh's flight, we must admit, has as yet no parallel, but the flight of the Southern Cross should rank higher than the round the world flight of the Graf Zeppelin.

R. Eugene Harris, 208 South La Salle street, insurance broker.—The greatest thing about the Southern Cross' flight was the demonstration of the value of radio in aeronautics, otherwise Maj. Kingsford-Smith and party would be guests of Davy Jones. Of course, any east to west flight is more hazardous and requires more skill. Lindbergh is the greatest of them all, notwithstanding.

Martin C. McMahon, 7154 Eberhart avenue, engineer.—The flight of the Southern Cross will rank next to Lindbergh's, as it was the first real successful heavier than air flight from Ireland to America. It inaugurates the radio as the new means of navigation in fogs and stormy weather. We take our hats off to the gallant crew of the Southern Cross.

Jack Cope, 180 North Michigan avenue, parachute jumper.—This, as well as Kingsford-Smith's other flight, demonstrated the great strides in navigation and radio and no doubt will be the means of securing more valuable information on ocean flying. These men have carved their name in aviation history and their feat ranks as one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of flights.

Ravinia Shortening of "Louise" Not the Best; Singing Excells

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"Louise," like "Aïda," and some of the other works in the répertoire, is obliged as it is given in Ravinia to adapt itself to time limitations and submit to certain excisions in order to finish in proper season. One is not altogether certain, however, that the surgery has been as successful here as it is in some of the other operas.

The Ravinia version gives the first act, which is in the home of Louise, jumps from there to the celebration of the Muse, and ends again in Louise's home where she declares her independence and insurges out to her supposed freedom. It omits entirely the scene where Charpentier's imagination was most touched with fire—namely: the early morning scene on the hillside of Montmartre.

This carries through the bare bones of the story, but leaves out the finest musical scene. One feels like suggesting the inclusion of this one and the omission of the present final one, for in this case, where all cannot be used, the music is considerably more important than the story. It is better to have one act which is charged with imaginative glamour than three which merely strike a respectable average.

But again, like many other of the Ravinia operas, the performance transcends the version. Yvonne Gall was the Louise last night, an artist who has distinction of voice and distinction of manner, who conveys the appearance of youth and surrounds it all with personal charm. Edward Johnson was the poet, Julien, giving the part a characterization that paid attention to externals and also went beneath the surface, singing the while in the finest of voice and manner.

Two more principals completed the main cast, Leon Rothier, almost overwhelming in personality as the father, one of his greatest performances by the way, and Julia Claussen, a perfect picture of the short tempered French mother of the working class. Ravinia deserves congratulations for the scene of the Muse with its chorus numerically weaker than the customary operatic chorus, but vocally and artistically the equal of at least two of them.

Harding Will Seek Castle Abroad as Model for Museum

Accompanied by an architect and a party of friends, County Treasurer George F. Harding will sail for Europe on July 4 to select a castle which he plans to duplicate on the lake front to house his $5,000,000 collection of antiques and works of art. Mr. Harding said he hopes the building may be completed in time to be a part of the 1933 fair.

"The castle I have tentatively selected," said Mr. Harding, "is the property of Prince Ratabeau and is about 60 miles from Vienna. It has a wall and a moat, portcullis and postern gate, and all the rest, of a type—which I believe is representative of medieval times."

The architect will take all measurements so that bids on the duplicate castle may be asked when the party returns to Chicago. Mr. Harding's collection, begun by his father nearly 50 years ago, is at present housed in a miniature French castle, adjacent to his home at 4853 Lake Park avenue.

5 Scandinavian Nations Pledge Eternal Peace

Sign Pact at Celebration of Iceland Althing.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, June 27.—On the historic law rock, where Iceland established independence 1,000 years ago, the representatives of five Scandinavian nations today signed a treaty of friendship and arbitration, pledging themselves never to go to war but to submit all disputes of whatever character to the world court at The Hague and to accept its decisions without question. These nations were Iceland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway and Finland.

The signing took place in the presence of thousands of spectators, and immediately afterwards the althing (parliament) was called to order by President Asgeilsson, ringing an old Icelandic silver bell. Prime Minister Tryggvi Thorhalsson made a brief speech, thanking the delegates of all powers for coming to Iceland.

Then Jon Thorlaksson, leader of the Conservative party, now in opposition, proposed approval of the treaty just signed. The motion was seconded by Jon Baldwinson of the Socialist pary and passed unanimously by a standing vote.

Before the ceremony of signing, a long address on Iceland and its history was made from the rock by Benedikt Sveinsson, president of the lower house of the althing. All the speeches were broadcast from loud speakers on a tall rock on the other side of the gorge and were heard miles away. Probably no parliamentary orator was ever heard before by so many people.

This afternoon the American Icelanders were welcomed by Gudmundur Olafsson, president of the upper house. Judge Grimsson of St. Paul, Minn., replied.

Later a historical pageant was performed on the rock, reproducing the election of the first law speaker 1,000 years ago, and in the evening the prime minister held a reception in the great dining tent, after which open air dancing and sports finished the evening.

At the dinner given by the president of the althing last night, Queen Alexandrine of Denmark appeared for the first time in Icelandic dress. The queen and her husband, King Christian, were received with enthusiasm. The magnificent medieval style dress which the queen wore is also modern, for it is still being worn daily by the women here.

Sample conversations I've heard this past week. They happened in each case to be between boys—but the same could have happened with girls.

Sunday afternoon, packing suit cases.

"Do we have to go back to town? I hate to leave the country—can't we skip a day at school? O, I wish school was over."

Mournful looks.

"What are you going to do after school is over, John?"

"Skip—fly—run to the country as fast as I can go!"

"It's funny, you know I like my school but all of a sudden I'm so sick of it I can hardly wait until it's over. Each day seems like a week. I think of the country when I go to bed, and when I wake up, and when I read, even."

"And here's a newt. Come on—call pup and let's follow the brook to the deserted orchard."

"O, no! Let's go toward the gorge."

"I tell you—we'll go there this morning and to the brook this afternoon. We've got all day to wander in."

Their faces were transformed with a light actually showing from each boy's eyes at the mention of the country.

Such joy—such delight as that vision of it provokes! It almost amounts to reverence. I couldn't help thinking that particular day, that if those boys could put their feelings into words, they would be something like the anthem, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

By hook or crook, in small doses, if you can't manage large, give your children a taste of country this summer. Whether it's lake or sea or mountains or meadows, give them a taste of country. Even a day at a time can mean great delight. They need to get away from the angles and the bricks, smells and noises that mean town and city. Children need the natural world.

Tight Fitting Hats Demand Smooth Brows

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Do you have visits from perpendicular little lines whose favorite location is immediately between the eyes? Mean little wrinkles, these, at any period of hat style, but just now they are especially annoying. They cut off all attempt at the flapperishly rakish angle of bonnet coveted by women with whom, perhaps, it is just as well a wrinkled brow prevents.

But you know what I mean. Lines that run across the brow aren't nearly so agitating as these others that go up and down. The reason is that when the latter decide to camp on their favorite territory, they do it with a deep and penetrating vengeance.

The first step in getting rid of them is to find out the condition of the eyes. If they are being strained you can pretty well blame them for the wrinkles. With eye relief, they clear out and away without much more ado. And in half the cases, the eyes are at fault. The wearing of needed glasses, if postponed, will etch the lines deeper.

If they're caught young, however, and the basic difficulty is cleared up, all is smooth for the brow again. And a smooth brow is the kindest complement you can lend any of the small, tight fitting, brimless coverings with which we are wont to adorn our heads, these days.

There is a single, simple gesture of massage that can be made to serve brow and eyes at once. It is practiced in the East where women make a fine art of eye study, since these are the only features revealed by the provocative veil, or yashmak.

Cream your palms thoroughly, prop your elbows upon a table, close your eyelids and begin by pressing your palms lightly at the base of the upper lids. Thus your palm covers the area most susceptible to crow's feet. Now, with moderately firm pressure, bring your palms up to the hair line and outward in opposite directions, over the temples. Repeat again and again, and yet again. Do this for five, ten or fifteen minutes. It is a soothing gesture, a tonic gesture and a wrinkle eradicating one. The crinkled bit of eyelid so often neglected in massage work comes in for a share of rejuvenation, also.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Clothing Needed.

"My aunt, an elderly woman and a cripple, has come to make her home with me temporarily, as she is unable to get any help from her own children. We cannot do much for her, as my husband has been out of work for some time and I have three children. We can feed her and give her a place to sleep, but I am unable to get her the clothing she needs. Can you help her? She wears size 42 or 44. Perhaps you can get some for my children, too. The girls wear size 14 and 16 and the boy is 11 years old.

"MRS. P."

Here's a distressing situation and one where you, no doubt, can offer some relief. Clothing for the elderly woman and for the children of her niece would remove one cause for worry.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Just outside of a large department store I discovered a little girl, sobbing as if her heart were broken. I asked her what had happened and she said she had become separated from her mother.

"Whole hours" she could not find her. Thinking that I might see the mother in the crowd and recognize her by her clothing, I asked, "What did your mother have on today?" Tearfully, she looked at me and said, "Something warm." V. L. B.

Which Girl Does Man Love More, Good Time Pal or the Comforter?

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Gentlemen, here is something you will have to answer. I can't. I may have prejudices—but, after all, they're of female gender and only a man can tell which girl of the two referred to in the following query is likely to be his ring bearer. Now, for the question:

"Which girl does a man really love—the girl he takes around and has a good time with, or the girl he turns to when sorrow comes?"

We know what one answer will be, an evasive one. You will say that it is a man's dream to find the two girls rolled into one. That won't do, however, since they come that way sometimes, not always. It's every girl's dream to be all things to her man—the friend in need and companion of his happier hours. Obviously, with girls, too, the dream fulfillment has limitations.

There are any number of instances that seem direly in need of the answer as to which girl has the strongest lure.

Commonly I am told: "He seeks me out when he is in a serious mood; but in other moods I am not necessary," or words to that effect.

The girl who here projects the inquiry admits to being the "second" girl, the one visited when spirits run low. The recent death of the mother of the man in the case sponsored his return. "He comes to me for consolation," she says, wistfully. "Is that true love that brings him to my side at such a time?"

That paragraph revives the time honored argument about whether a man does not love more the woman who makes him sacrifice rather than the woman who makes sacrifices for him. I am taking no sides, understand, for who can do anything but generalize on so irrational a problem as love?

Food Talk.

The flavor of chocolate appeals to almost every one, which is reason why soda fountains, bakeries and ice cream manufacturers find chocolate products their most popular sellers. The eating of chocolate flavored foods is almost a mania with some people. They enjoy them to such an extent as to exclude others of fine flavor.

Chocolate appears in many rôles in food. Some of these are most satisfactory. Others are not. In some combinations chocolate makes trouble for the cook. Its composition is such that it is sensitive to heat. It has a high percentage of fat—about 50 per cent — which is in emulsion in the chocolate as we purchase it. If chocolate is heated to a high temperature the fat separates out and gives the appearance of being curdled. It is this effect of heat on chocolate that causes the grayish streaks which we often see in chocolate candy exposed to sunlight or in chocolate bonbons that have been dipped in chocolate melted at a too high temperature.

Chocolate also contains starch and acid which present difficulties. The acid may cause chocolate mixtures containing milk to curdle. When the starch in the chocolate is thoroughly cooked the effect is to thicken the mixture and reduce the tendency to curdle. For example, in making the chocolate sauce using the proportions in the recipe which we are giving today, curdling appears when all the ingredients are combined at the first.

The usual method in making a sauce of this kind is to put the sugar and water into a sauce pan and then add either the unmelted or melted chocolate. In developing this recipe we must have made the sauce in this manner a dozen times with curdling occurring in every instance. Then suddenly we happened to do it this way: the chocolate was first melted over hot water, then the water was added and the mixture cooked slowly over a low flame until the starch in the chocolate had thickened the mass. Then the sugar was added and boiling was continued without interruption to the desired temperature. The experiment was repeated a number of times and in no instance did curdling appear when the sirup was prepared in this way.

These Dependable Recipes Simplify Cooking Problems

PINWHEEL BISCUITS.

2 cups family flour.
3 teaspoons baking powder.
½ teaspoon salt.
3 tablespoons fat.
¾ cup milk.
1 tablespoon melted butter.
½ cup crushed pineapple.
½ cup finely chopped apple.
1 tablespoon lemon juice.
1 tablespoon sugar.
3 tablespoon sugar.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Sift flour, then measure. Resift with baking powder and salt. Rub fat into flour until mixture has appearance of coarse corn meal. Add milk and mix quickly. When all dry ingredients are dampened stir three or four times to smooth and to stiffen the dough. Turn on to a floured board or a floured paraffin paper.

With lightly floured hands pat out to ⅝ inch thickness. Brush with melted butter. Sprinkle with a mixture of pineapple and apple. [Be sure pineapple is well drained.] Add lemon juice and one tablespoon sugar. Roll up like a jelly rool. Cut off one-half inch slices. Lay on an oiled pan and press into oval or round shape with palm of hand. Sprinkle top with a mixture of the 3 tablespoons sugar and the cinnamon.

Yield: 18 pinwheels. One pinwheel: total, 99 calories—protein, 7 calories; fat, 28 calories; carbohydrates, 64 calories.

FRENCH DRESSING.

½ teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon mustard.
1 teaspoon sugar.
Few grains cayenne.
¼ teaspoon paprika.
6 tablespoons salad oil.
2 tablespoons vinegar.
3 tablespoons lemon juice.
1 tablespoon orange juice.

Mix dry ingredients until well blended. Put the oil, vinegar [tarragon, wine or cider vinegar are excellent and each gives a quite different flavor] and fruit juices into a large mouthed bottle or a cocktail shaker. [An inexpensive cocktail shaker is ideal for making French dressing.] Add dry ingredients and shake vigorously until an emulsion is formed.

Paisley Ball Leads List of Brides Today

BY THALIA

The last batch of June weddings, which have been unusually numerous this year during the month of June and wedding bells, will take place today. One of the most important ceremonies will be that uniting Miss Paisley Ball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Ball of Winnetka, and Dr. Stewart Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beardsley Butler. The service is to be read at 4:30 o'clock at Christ church, with the Rev. Duncan Brown officiating, and only a small group of friends and relatives present. The wedding reception at the Ball residence is to be a large affair.

The attendants include the bride's sister, Miss Adelaide Ball, as maid of honor, and as bridesmaids Mrs. L. G. Campbell Jr. of Minneapolis, Miss Carolyn Woodward, Miss Charlotte and Miss Marion Eckhart. Marion Peck, the groom's niece, is to be flower girl. Francis Peabody Butler is to be best man for his brother, and the ushers include Webster C. Ball II., Henry E. Pearson, Dr. H. D. Countryman, Harlow Pearson of New York City, Dr. George Shambaugh, and Dr. Richard Light of Boston and Dr. Neil Feeley of Montreal.

The party of relatives and friends coming from Cleveland for the wedding includes the groom's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Peck; Mrs. S. P. Shane, Miss Ball's grandmother; Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Shane, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Andrews, Mrs. D. E. Morgan and her daughter, Miss Nancy Morgan; Mr. and Mrs. A. Donald Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Julian K. Tyler, Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Moses, Mrs. James R. Garfield, and F. Grant Hall of Cleveland Heights. Mr. Moses, Mr. Williams, and Mr. Tyler were ushers at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Ball.

The wedding of Miss Katharine Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Brown of Evanston, and Robert Lindsay Scott Jr. is to take place this evening at St. Luke's church in Evanston, with a very small informal reception for near relatives and a few intimate friends to be held afterward. Miss Brown's attendants will include Mrs. William A. Murray of Highland Park as matron of honor, and as bridesmaids Miss Mary Louise Hays, Miss Georgia Lloyd of South Orange, N. J.; Anne Robinson of Glen View, Alberta Woodruff, Dorothy Welch, Ruth Seanor and Ann Stevens of Evanston, and Mrs. Donald W. Rogers (Margaret Scott) of Hubbard Woods. Donald W. Rogers is to be best man, and the ushers are Clarence B. Jones, Elmer P. Eldridge, J. H. Sheldon Lee Jr., Frederick H. Scott Jr., Frank F. Fowle Jr., Norton M. Cross Jr., and John and Richard Shoaff of Fort Wayne, Ind. Mr. and Mrs. Brown gave the bridal dinner last night at the Georgian hotel.

Still another wedding is that of Miss Florence Boyd and Gordon T. Beaham Jr. of Kansas City, Mo., to take place at 5:30 o'clock this evening at the Highland Park Presbyterian church. Miss Olive Deane of Philadelphia and Miss Marion Smith of Highland Park are to be bridesmaids for Miss Boyd, and her other attendants are Miss Elizabeth Tuttle of New York City, Miss Nancy Deane of Philadelphia, Miss Ethel Harmon of Highland Park, Mrs. William Irwin Smith, Miss Virginia Hunter Boyd, and Miss Virginia Tayloe Boyd of Winchester, Va. Thomas G. Beaham Jr. of Kansas City is to be best man for his brother, and the ushers include Henry W. Boyd Jr., Ralph J. Sharp of Perth Amboy, N. J.; E. Munroe Raymond, Joseph C. Pennelly, Harold R. Jones, Webster Townley, John A. Townley, and John H. Goodwin.

The fifth annual Wheaton horse show will be held this afternoon at Col. William J. Sutherland's Polo farm. Proceeds will benefit the American Legion. There will be eighteen classes, including sweepstakes jumping, a five gaited saddle class for women riders, a hunt team class, a fine harness class, and two classes for children. Eighteen entries, comprising six teams, have been received for the hunt team competition, for which full dress hunting costume or military uniform is required. The Olympic team is entered in the jumping sweepstakes and will stage an exhibition as a grand finale to the show.

Mrs. John G. Shedd of 1550 State parkway sails today on the steamship Bremen for a trip to Europe. Accompanying her are her daughters and their respective families, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed and Mary and John Reed; Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, Jean and John Shedd, and Marjorie Goodman, Mrs. James M. Hopkins' daughter, Mrs. John A. Orb, mother of Mrs. Neil B. Dawes, also sails on the Bremen.

[Roehlk Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunter of 1500 Lake Shore drive announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth, to Philip M. Watrous, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip E. Watrous of 5104 Kimbark avenue. Miss Hunter attended Mrs. Dow's school at Braircliffe, N. Y., and the University of Chicago. She is a member of the Quadrangle club and of the Junior league. Mr. Watrous was graduated in 1927 from the University of Chicago and is a member of Psi Upsilon fraternity.

Janet Tietjens One of Today's Brides; Two Other Weddings

Miss Janet Tietjens, daughter of Mrs. Cloyd Head, and Chester Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hart of Oak Park, are to be married at St. Luke's Episcopal church today. A group of children will form the wedding party. Anne Strong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Strong, and Mildred Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurens Hammond, are to be flower maids, and Marshall Head, Leonard Shepard, David Shepard, and David Strong will be human pickets in an aisle of flowers. Willis Wells is to be best man, and Laurens Hammond and John Nelson are to usher. A small reception at the parish house will follow the wedding. Mr. Hart and his bride are to reside in Chicago after Aug. 1.

Miss Mary Anthony Drake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lauren J. Drake of 900 North Michigan avenue, and Louis Samuel Hardin, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hardin of Charleston, Ill., are to be wed at the Drake apartment at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. Richard H. Lamberton, the bride's twin sister, is to be matron of honor, and another sister, Miss Julia Campbell Drake, is to be maid of honor. Thomas Strachan is best man, and Hugh M. Driscoll and Richard H. Lamberton will usher. Mr. Hardin and his bride are to motor through New England on their wedding trip and will be at home after Aug. 1 at 786 Locust street, Winnetka.

The marriage of Miss Mary Gray Peck, daughter of Mrs. Frederick B. Peck of Easton, Pa., to James F. Koehler, son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Koehler of Wheaton, will take place at noon today at the residence of the bride's mother in Easton. Mrs. Hardy Shirley of Minneapolis will be matron of honor for Miss Peck and Robert Graves of Rome, Ga., will be best man for the groom. After July 15 Mr. Koehler and his bride will reside at 142 Nassau street, Princeton, N. J.

M. J. Kelly, Union Head, Marks Silver Anniversary

Michael J. Kelly, head of the Chicago Meat Cutters' union, last night celebrated his silver wedding anniversary at the Columbian Country club, Wheeling, Ill. Several hundred guests attended the luncheon and telegrams of congratulation were received from Secretary of Labor James Davis, Gov. Emmerson, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. Kelly is also president of the Cook County Wage Earners' league.

Pastor to Devote Service to Praising Planetarium

The new Adler planetarium, as an institution of "great importance to Chicago," will be the subject of a special service tomorrow morning at the Third Unitarian church, 5521 West Lake street, the Rev. Walter E. Cole, pastor, announced yesterday. "The planetarium is a reason for justifiable pride in our city," said the Rev. Mr. Cole yesterday in announcing the service. "The world hears altogether too much of Chicago in terms of gang wars and political corruption."

Congress Votes $1,500,000 to Purchase Rare Books

Washington, D. C., June 27.—(AP)—Three thousand rare books of the 15th century, including a copy on vellum of the Gutenberg Bible, will be purchased for the library of congress for $1,500,000, under the second deficiency appropriation bill passed today by the senate.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., June 27.—[Special.]—Representative Grant M. Hudson of East Lansing, Mich., went to New York today to be married tomorrow to Mrs. Mary E. Bloomer in the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Allen, in Unionville, N. J. He was accompanied by Representative Ernest W. Gibson of Brattleboro, Vt., who will be the best man at the wedding. Mrs. Bloomer is a widow with several children, while Representative Hudson is a widower. Miss Helen Hudson, his daughter, has acted as his hostess here since the marriage of her elder sister to Roger W. Birdsell of Milwaukee.

Miss Caroline Hyde, daughter of the secretary of agriculture, and Miss Jean Kincheloe, daughter of the representative from Kentucky, who flew to Langley field early this morning, flew back again this afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Kincheloe entertained a company at a musicale last evening in honor of the mother and sister of Secretary Hyde, Mrs. D. Hyde and Mrs. Brown Glenn of Missouri.

Sally's First List of Party Guests to Be Printed Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

The news to which you have all been looking forward, boys and girls, is but twenty-four hours away. You will know whether or not you have been successful in winning an invitation to our first party of the summer at White City, for the names of the winners will appear in tomorrow morning's TRIBUNE. There will also be an announcement of another splendid party so do not miss it.

Just think, our big day is less than a week away! On next Thursday, we will be whizzing through the air on the "flash," shooting the chutes, racing over hills and down dips on the giant coaster. We will be enjoying a circus and watching an elaborate display of pyrotechnics. If you can think of anything that will be more exciting, thrilling or enjoyable than this afternoon at White City, I'd like to know what it is!

Would you like to read one or two of the letters than won an invitation? This was written by a girl who knows what a grand time we're going to have:

"Dear Sally: O, for a glorious afternoon at White City, riding on the racing coaster, the flash, and all the others. And I know the beautiful trip through Venice in gondolas will freshen us and give us time to get back our breath. I can't imagine the flash having a dip of one hundred feet, almost straight down, because I've never been on such an exciting ride. In fact, I've never been to White City, but I know all these attractions will give us thrills that I've only dreamed of.

"Sally, if you only knew how impatiently we have waited for this to open again and the chance to tell you how much we enjoy going on your wonderful parties! I'm one who surely would love to go to White City.

"B. M."

The boy who wrote this letter is eagerly awaiting our party, too:

"Dear Sally: The year has rolled around again and once more we will meet for the first party of the year. Gee, Miss Sally, what a treat it will be to slip around the curves on the high rides, to ride the racer, and to be in the Crystal Maze. There are so many different things, I suppose, that if we were to ride on all of them we would never get finished.

"And then you say there is to be a special performance for our amusement. Gosh, I can't begin to tell you how much I would like to be one of the winning one hundred as it is not only to be a great party but the first party of the year. G. L."

Sorority Tea Today.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, June 27.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Freeman left today for a motor trip in Maine and Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barret will introduce their daughter, Miss Audrey Barret, at a dinner-dance on Nov. 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas E. Craik have taken a house at Greenwich for the summer.

A welcome home party was given last night at the Central Park casino in honor of Eugene St. R. Reynal and Louis R. Reynal, who returned from Europe on the Bremen.

E. Francis Hyde will sail tomorrow morning on the Cunarder Franconia on his usual summer trip to London.

Marquise de Polignac Chooses Even Hems

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The famous forty best dressed women in Paris are coming out in their smart summer clothes. They are setting the standard of chic that will prevail throughout the entire season. One important style detail that these women have established is the long, even skirt for evening—the skirt that doesn't trail anywhere, nor yet rise in points anywhere else. The Lelong evening gown sketched shows the way the evening skirt behaves in the smartest society in Europe, and gives you a pointer on the decorative bodice that is equally chic.

Lelong designed this ensemble for the Marquise de Polignac, who was born Nina Crosby of the U. S. A. and who is one of the first leaders of the famous forty.

The frock is made of transparent lamé with red, blue and violet flowers printed on a green and gold ground. The bolero jacket on the bodice indicates the normal waistline of the frock, and the descending bands on the skirt flare into floating petal panels, making the most delightful fullness imaginable for the dance dress. These petals are grace incarnate when the wearer moves.

Over this frock the Marquise de Polignac wears the draped velvet cape coat shown in our smaller sketch. The color is green to match the foundation shade of the dress and the velvet is transparent. Three petals of velvet make the cape, the two at the sides being shirred on the shoulders. The one in back is gathered at the neckline under the gray fox collar.

Dance Tonight.

"Years of Grace" Is Calm, Impressive Story.

BY FANNY BUTCHER

"Years of Grace," by Margaret Ayer Barnes [Houghton Mifflin].

"Years of Grace" is, let us say at the start, our idea of a swell novel. It has the charm of the early Edith Wharton. It is a long, leisurely record of manners as well as morals, a colorful picture of the rapidly shifting background of a Chicago emerging from the self-consciousness of the days just before the world's fair of 1893 to the even greater self-consciousness of the front pages of 1930. It is a quiet but somehow very exciting record of a life that was lived in the utmost calmness.

For almost six hundred pages nothing at all out of the ordinary happens to a girl, a woman, a wife, a mother and a grandmother, but by the pure skill of her pen Mrs. Barnes has made you, the reader, so anxious about what may happen—although nothing has yet and nothing probably will—that you don't realize either the really extraordinary length of the book or the fact that, unlike most modern novels, there is no assorted raping, drugging, psycho-analyzing or bootlegging in it. It is, in truth, a record of years of grace.

There were three men—and three only—in the long life of the heroine. To all she was romance in one form or another. To the first, a boy, she gave something that flowed from the fingers of his manhood—years after he had last seen her—as sculpture. To the second she gave two daughters and a son and peace and a happy life. To the third she gave a sacrifice which in its way was, too, romance. And yet life never really touched her—it was always just about to quicken her, it never really did.

Mrs. Barnes has managed to get into the character of Jane that quality of the awareness of life, that vividness of expectancy, that gives grace and charm to a woman no matter how many years have passed since her christening. Jane, her heroine, is as delightful a person—perhaps a more delightful person, on the last page when she looked at her grandchildren and "reflected solemnly, you could never believe that" a child "would grow up to disappoint you," as she was at the tremendous moment when she quivered with the bitter ecstasy of her first realization of love and its sadness. To outsiders probably Jane was a commonplace suburban wife and mother. It is because Mrs. Barnes has succeeded so completely in making her an exciting person about whom you want to know more that we must add another name to the—really very few—first novelists of importance in America.

The contrast between the generations is sharply defined. Jane's children shock her, but they are as consistent in their way as their mother and her generation are in theirs. And Jane realizes that nowadays at least no human being can ever really live another's life for him, not even a parent for a child, although in her generation it was considered not only possible but the only thing to do.

She has done a real piece of work in "Years of Grace," a satisfying, fine impressive novel, with the grace of the old school of writing now so seldom found. It is a rich chronicle, rich in character and background and in the texture of its writing.

Mrs. Barnes knows her Chicago well—she has lived here all of her life. Her sister, Janet Fairbank, has preceded her in novel writing. Although this is Mrs. Barnes' first novel she is the author of a volume of short stories, "Prevailing Winds," and co-author of three successful plays, "Dishonored Lady," "Jenny," and "The Age of Innocence."

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS

BY THE LITERARY EDITOR.

FICTION.

"Casanova Jones," by Joseph Anthony [Century] is a gay, amusing novel all done in verse by the author of "The Lost Shirt," a late epic of the late Wall Street Bye and Bye.

"Fourteenth Street," by Percy Shostac [Simon & Schuster] is another novel in verse, "prose verse" its publishers call it. It is an auto-psycho-analytical study of a love affair which ended and the reasons for its lack of success. A strange book, but a vigorous one.

"Hooper Dooper," by Fitzhugh Buckner [Barse], is the record of a serious [but light hearted] drinking tour of the Pacific coast by a trio of young bucks who are as at home in Tia Juana as they are in a Santa Barbarba house party.

"Queer People," by Carrol and Garrett Graham [Vanguard], is about Hollywood. It is written by two brothers who are now, they say, trying, after living in Hollywood, to "go straight." They certainly make an experience meeting of the book.

MYSTERY.

"Smoke Screen," by Lawrence Saunders [Sears], has as heroine a girl reporter and as murderers an old man and a handsome young woman. "Smoke Screen" ran serially in Liberty.

"The Blue Rajah Murder," by Harold MacGrath, and "One of Us Is a Murderer," by Alan Le May, both very popular with the fans, are among the new $1 Crime club publications. The MacGrath book appeared serially as "Impromptu," and the Le May as "The Jungle Terror."

NEW $1 FICTION.

Among the new novels published by Doubleday-Doran at $1 are:

"High Fences," by Grace S. Richmond, a love story with a city girl writer and a country man writer as participants.

"A Little Flat in the Temple," by Pamela Wynne, another love story, made in England this time.

"Very Good, Jeeves," by P. G. Wodehouse, a decalogue of priceless yarns by the funniest living writer [according to our lights].

ABOUT PLACES.

"Egyptian Day," by Princess Marthe Bibesco [Harcourt Press] is a delightful record of a "tour" to Egypt.

"Ethnology of the Mayas in Southern and Central British Honduras," by J. Eric Thompson, is one of the excellent Field museum anthropological series.

"Tepoztlan," by Robert Redfield [University of Chicago] is a scholarly analysis of the daily round of life in a modern Mexican village from the ethnologist's point of view.

"A Shopping Guide to New York," by Gretta Palmer [McBride] is an invaluable compendium, written in a gay and dashing Americanese.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

"Paul Robeson, Negro," by Elsanda Goode Robeson [Harpers] is the biography of probably the most popular colored man of his generation written by his wife.

"Carl Schurz, Militant Liberal," by Joseph Schafer, superintendent of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin is volume one of the Wisconsin Biography series published by the society.

"Scandal Sheets," by E. R. Conde [Watt] is a novel based upon the not too idyllic life of Pietro Arentino.

DRAMA.

"Lysistrata" [Farrar & Rinehart] is a new version of Aristophanes' pleasantly shocking comedy by Gilbert Seldes, the version used in the current production in New York which is packing them in.

"Hotel Universe," by Philip Barry [Samuel French] is the text of the last play of the Theater Guild season in New York. It is very unlike Mr. Barry's previous light touch.

NONFICTION.

Writes of Chicago

Margaret Ayer Barnes, of our town, is the author of an Edith Wharton-like novel of Chicago, "Years of Grace."

Finishes Australian Trilogy with "The Way Home"

"The Way Home," by Henry Handel Richardson [Norton], completes for American readers the trilogy of an Australian family which ended with that remarkable novel "Ultima Thule." American copyright exigencies made it impossible to publish the three volumes in the order of their composition. They are: Vol. I., "Australian Felix," which was published some years ago in an imported edition with the title "The Fortunes of Richard Mahoney"; Vol. II., "The War Home" and "Ultima Thule."

700 PAGES PRESENT EXPERTS' VIEWS ON THE NEW GENERATION

"The New Generation," edited by V. F. Calverton and Samuel D. Schmalhausen [Macaulay], in 700 pages, is perhaps the most important volume of its kind. It is a symposium on the subject of the child and his relations with his parents, his environment, his education, and his time, from the pens of men and women who are qualified, if any one is, to speak with authority about the problem of the new generation.

Such men as Bertrand Russell, the philosopher who, in order to be able to bring up his own two children, became an educationist of the first water; Fritz Wittles, Viennese psychoanalyst, who has specialized in domestic relations (for the relations of the parents have their immediate effect on the child); John Langdon-Davies, British anthropologist, an authority on education in primitive societies; John B. Watson, the well known behaviorist.

Then there are the views of Agnes de Lima, Florence Cane, Elizabeth Goldsmith, Mary Cover Jones, who are connected with children's experimental schools; Phyllis Blanchard, who is with the Philadelphia Child Guidance clinic; Bronislaw Malinowski, noted anthropologist; Margaret Mead, who has made brilliant researches among primitive peoples; Sidonie Gruenberg, director of the Child Study Association of America; William Stekel, former associate of Freud and Adler.

And what they write about is not only the child but the relations of man in these days to his world. No phase of life which touches the child is neglected, and that means that the business of living generally is pretty thoroughly discussed, for any normal human society includes the child as an integral part of its life. The book even is a fascinating volume for some one who has no children and who knows none intimately. For forward looking parents it must seem the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Emily Hahn Pens Dialogues on Topic of Seduction

"Seductio ad Absurdum," by Emily Hahn [Brewer & Warren] is subtitled "The Principles and Practices of Seduction," but it is far from being a handbook to what has been called by some of the younger wags "the eighth lively art." It is rather a series of Dolly dialogues on the subject—the patter being set down with veracity by a keen eyed and eared observer. Emily Hahn, although of London these days, is a Chicagoan, pretty enough to have been able to gather the material for her book at first hand if she weren't that perfectly grand sort of person who always has to be excused at an emotional crisis to laugh. It's not, as is obvious, a serious book.

List Books to Make Children's Summer Happy

Agatha L. Shea Reviews Popular Stories.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

"Judy," by Faith Baldwin [Dodd-Mead].

"Boy with the Parrot," by Elizabeth Coatsworth [Macmillan].

"Under the Pig-nut Tree," by Berta and Elmer Hader [Knopf].

"Two Minute Stories," by Carl Patton [Willett, Clark].

Among the lighter stories which will help while away the idle summer hour for the girl of 12 or 14 are Faith Baldwin's "Judy" and Pemberton Ginther's "The 13th Spoon." The first is a story of camp life, its good times, its near tragedies, all enlivened by the discovery of a hidden cave and its attendant mystery.

The second story has for its theme the disappearance of some rare spoons from a collector's house, and the part a college girl played in solving the resultant mystery. Both are books which will undoubtedly be popular with girls who like mysteries.

For the boys there is Ramon Kessler's "Treasure Trove of Pirate Stories," an excellent collection of pirate stories which will delight pirate lovers of all ages.

The younger children will find pleasure in Elizabeth Coatsworth's "The Boy with the Parrot" and Berta and Elmer Hader's "Under the Pig-nut Tree." The former is a story of a jolly little boy of Guatemala who sets out with his peddler's pack to make his fortune. Children will enjoy reading of his travels. The Haders' book is an amusing little tale of a wee elf who wanted to know more about spiders, crickets, and other denizens of the fields.

For the camp director or leader of summer activities mention should be made of "Story Telling to Live Wire Boys," by George T. Miller, and "Two Minute Stories," by Carl Patton. In the first the technique of the art is set forth, story types analyzed, and a very full bibliography of available material appended. The author is a member of the National Story Tellers' league and has had years of experience in story work with boys of scout age. The table of boys' preferences in stories is valuable for the beginner. "Two Minute Stories" is a collection of short, pointed stories or incidents stressing fair play, justice, ambition, consideration for others, etc.

"Hitty," by Rachel Field, was reviewed in these columns last fall and under the illustration was the caption, "Some experts say 'Hitty' should receive the Newberry medal for the best juvenile of the year." It is a pleasure to announce that "Hitty" has just been given that award.

Shopping Guides to London and New York Invaluable

"A Shopping Guide to London," by Thelma H. Benjamin and "A Shopping Guide to New York," by Gretta Palmer, both published by McBride, are priceless aids to the traveler. They both list shops of all varieties and degrees of luxury. The London one has three pages about Jac, who makes the lovellest artificial flowers in the world and whose two tiny shops are two of the most entrancing spots in London. And it even mentions our favorite [we thought somewhat private] English bath essence.

The New Novel by the Author of THE WINDOW and VISITORS TO HUGO

The YOUNG and SECRET

ALICE GRANT ROSMAN

AMERICAN readers took Alice Grant Rosman to their hearts with her very first novel, "The Window". Over 72,000 copies have been sold to date. And her second charming love story, "Visitors to Hugo", has been bought by 84,213 readers, and is still in great demand. Now comes her most delightful story—the best yet! "The Young and Secret" is a refreshingly different novel with all the emotional drama of "The Window", and young people more captivating than those in "Visitors to Hugo"—not to mention the dog!

Yankee Authors Visit London, Britons Do, Too

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—American authors are passing through London in the great number. Thomas Beer was here a few days ago, en route for the continent, and his new book on Hanna is just published in England. Ernest Boyd was here some time ago, and so was Henry L. Mencken.

English authors also have arrived who no longer live in London. Among them, H. G. Wells has been active and mobile. Another dweller upon the Mediterranean coast is now among us in the person of Somerset Maugham, whose book of travel in Burma—sadly topical in view of the fact that an earthquake seriously has damaged many of the places to which he describes his visits—is one of the successes of the season.

A book of an unusual type, which should meet with a very warm welcome—at any rate from the happy few—is Walter de la Mare's odd and enchanting study of "Desert Islands." This book originated in a paper, read before a learned society, on "Robinson Crusoe" and the imitations of "Robinson Crusoe." It is now much more than a paper for a learned society. It is a miscellany of strange knowledge, marked with all Mr. de la Mare's charm, and all his familiarity with out of the way books. It is beautifully produced, with decorations by Mr. Rex Whistler [whose work is already being 'collected'].

And Henry Williamson's "The Patriot's Progress," is just ready with lino cuts by William Kermode. This book contains the first account of the Etaples "mutiny" of British troops—for it is a war book—and is in other respects unique.

Mme. Thompson Is Feted in New York; New Novel Ready

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Summer time festivities in literary circles forecast the books of autumn. Joseph Brewer's at home on Monday afternoon was in honor of Mme. Valentine Thompson, whose gay novel, "You Don't Know Charley!" is to be issued in the fall. It is based on her comedy, "Charlot," which has already reached the stage in Paris and is scheduled for Broadway next season.

Mme. Thompson is a cousin of Marcel Proust, a friend of Anatole France, Pierre Loti, and other French literateurs. Her father was at one time minister of marine and she knows all the Who's Who and What's What of French political circles. She has lived in North Africa, saw Russia during the revolution, always crosses the Atlantic in its worst storms. A true cosmopolitan, she now writes in English, speaks it with a piquant stress of the "r's."

At the age of fifteen Mme. Thompson plunged into journalism, writing fashions, literature, and politics for Clemenceau's L'Homme Libre. She sails for Paris in a few weeks, will remain to spend Christmas with her father, now seventy, and return to the United States in January for a cross country lecture tour.

Mme. Thompson's second book, announced by Brewer & Warren, is a psychological novel, in which one of the chief characters is drawn from Proust. Her third book will be a volume of reminiscences—Loti, France, Clemenceau, "that man always at the boiling point," and other French international figures.

A luncheon on Tuesday at the Colony club was given by Mrs. Robert Grigg Reese for Francis Griswold, whose new novel, "The Tides of Malvern," has roused to enthusiasm all who have read the manuscript. Edwin Bjorkman, author and critic, was its first discoverer and cheer leader, writing from Asheville, N. C., of "its maturity, finish, and artistic poise." William Morrow & Co. are featuring it among their fall offerings.

Mr. Griswold is not from the south, though his story traces the fortunes of a Charleston family from the 18th century to the present day. He was born in Albany, N. Y., and was known along Broadway some time back as a member of the little band which formed the Film Guild to uplift the movies. At its demise Griswold did a bit of reporting, surveying, teaching, advertising, banking, and traveling till he discovered the south.

YEARS OF GRACE

BY MARGARET AYER BARNES

She fought the battle of the generations victoriously because she understood both the years of grace and the age of jazz. Her story reveals the beauty, the drama, and the passion that can lie unsuspected beneath a quiet exterior.

Never has the American social scene been more vividly described, more keenly interpreted, than in this story of Jane Ward from the storm and stress of youth in Chicago through a respectable marriage and a passionate interlude to the wisdom of middle age. $2.50

Pinchot's Story of Trip to South Seas Is Interesting Book

"To the South Seas," by Gifford Pinchot, [Winston] is not only the record of a trip to the South Seas that was made by the former governor of Pennsylvania, but it is the realization of a dream of forty years which started when he was in college. And as such, the recording of it is obviously almost as thrilling a matter to the adventurer as the actual trip. Mr. Pinchot had a gorgeous trip and so much of his enthusiasm has got into the setting down of the events of the trip that the reader has a grand time, too. Salted with humor as well as sea air the book makes you curse the fate that nails you to office chairs when there is so much good sun and sea and island life lying around to be enjoyed before you get rheumatics.

CUBS BEAT ROBINS, 7-5, BEFORE 50,000 CROWD

hance for All in Tribune Meet.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The TRIBUNE today announces a golf tournament of the largest scope ever undertaken. It is designed not only for expert players but for those of every degree of skill. All will get a chance to compete on an equal basis. Each entrant will be matched against another of his own class and everybody will play on his favorite course at any time he chooses against an opponent whom he may never see. This is the way it will work: Go out whenever you get a chance, play on any links wherever you wish, and then send your card to THE TRIBUNE golf office. Your score will be compared with others sent in and an opponent of equal ability will be selected. If you beat him 120, you will be matched against another who shoots 120. If your score is 75, you will be sent up against somebody else who turns in 75.

Opponents Match Cards.

Watch THE TRIBUNE for the pairings and as soon as they are announced, go out and shoot another 18 holes. Meanwhile your opponent will be playing on his own course. Send your card in a second time and it will be matched against that received from your rival.

This will be carried out week after week through the summer and in the fall those who have won the most matches will receive prizes.

It promises to be one of the most fantastic tournaments ever undertaken, inasmuch as the unskilled golfer will have just as much chance as the expert. As most meets a player is automatically barred unless he is capable of shooting in the 70s or low 80s, but golf is a game which has won the following of hundreds of thousands and there is no reason why the thrill of tournament competition should be confined to a few.

Mr. John Doe of the west side, who never has broken 115, will go to Columbus or Garfield park, or a daily fee course, and step up to the tee feeling that the difference between victory and defeat depends on every stroke. And at the same time Gus H. Fan of South Michigan avenue will be following the ball over the fairways of Indiana or Marquette and each will have a mental picture of the other.

Imagination Gets a Play.

When John hooks his tee shot on the seventh, he will say, "O, well, maybe Gus sliced that one." Or when he lays a mashie pitch in the bushes he will console himself with the thought that that fellow Fan no doubt is in the water.

And both will be playing at their own time on their favorite courses, with no gallery to disturb them. They will be called upon to do nothing out of their regular routine except to mail their cards to THE TRIBUNE golf editor. And they will be in one of the biggest tournaments in the history of the sport.

Miss Collett, Mrs. Hill Meet in Tourney Final

Buffalo, N. Y., June 27.—(AP)—Glenna Collett, national champion, and Mrs. O. S. Hill, former trans-Mississippi titleholder, will meet in the 18 hole final of the women's invitation golf tournament at the Country Club of Buffalo tomorrow. Miss Collett defeated Maureen Orcutt of Englewood, N. J., this afternoon. Mrs. Hill won from Mrs. Leo Federman of Flushing, Long Island, the defending champion, 3 up, in the lower bracket.

King Bobby Sails for America, but Clubs Stay Behind

SOUTHAMPTON, England, June 27.—(AP)—Bobby Jones sailed for home on the liner Europa today, but the golf clubs that rendered him such glorious service in winning the British amateur and open championships didn't sail with him.

GALLANT KNIGHT FAVORED IN 48TH LATONIA DERBY

Latonia, Ky., June 27.—(AP)—The forty-eighth renewal of the $25,000 added Latonia Derby will feature the opening tomorrow of Latonia's 37 day summer meeting.

Out of 108 nominations the starting field is reduced to eight horses. Gallant Knight, which finished second to Gallant Fox in the Kentucky Derby, is the favorite. Gallant Knight also has the Fairmount Derby to his credit. The second choice is Bezonian and third Reveille Boy, a rank outsider until his victory in the American Derby.

WHICHONE OUT OF RACE.

New York, June 27.—[Special.]—Harry Payne Whitney's Whichone will not run in the Dwyer stakes tomorrow, it became known at Aqueduct today. The son of Chicle, which was the 2 year old champion of 1929 and suffered defeat by Gallant Fox in the Belmont stakes, has suffered a quarter crack which will throw him out of training for an indefinite period. Whichone's name was withdrawn from the Dwyer field today, leaving only three to run: Gallant Fox, Flaming, and Limbus.

It is practically certain that Whichone will not run at the Arlington Classic, scheduled for Chicago on July 12. A quarter crack in a hoof is a slow healing ailment, and it may keep Whichone away from the races until late in the season, or perhaps altogether this year.

MANGIN UPSETS RANKING BRITISH SINGLES PLAYER

BY EUGENE SPECK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIMBLEDON, England, June 27.—G. S. Mangin of Washington, D. C., upset the calculations of Wimbledon's seeding committee and blasted British hopes of coming near to the men's single tennis championship finals by a brilliant victory this afternoon over Bunny Austin, ranking singles player of England.

Mangin's triumph was a combination of dogged and daring tennis for a victory over the only seeded English player by scores of 9-7, 7-10, 8-6, 6-0.

Royalty Proves Jinx.

There was a great sensation at the center court as King George and Queen Mary entered in the middle of the match and took places in the royal box. Ten thousand stood and cheered and when the play was resumed Austin was never the same. He had been playing superbly before that, trying to prevent Mangin from taking the first set, and had held him to eight games when the entrance stopped the match. He blew up from stage fright thereafter, but the Yank was not cowed by the presence of crowned heads and volleyed and drove out the next eight games straight. Mangin won the third set and took the fourth at love.

But it was not all fair sailing for the United States players today. The worst blow felt was in the loss of the mixed doubles match between George Lott of Chicago and Helen Jacobs of California, and P. D. B. Spence of South Africa and Betty Nuthall of England. Betty played with her old brilliance and the British combination won by 1-6, 7-5, 6-2.

Allison, Doeg Win.

Mangin was joined today by two other Americans in the upper bracket for the quarter-finals in the men's singles. Wilmer Allison, co-holder of the Wimbledon doubles championship, beat G. P. Hughes, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3, while Johnny Doeg of California trounced H. F. David, 6-3, 6-3, 6-1.

Helen Wills Moody moved one match closer to retaining the singles title by defeating Miss Mary Canters, 6-0, 6-1. Helen Jacobs took her singles match from Mrs. W. D. List by the same score and they are now leading the field.

Mangin and Miss Sarah Palfrey, the 17 year old United States junior champion, advanced a round in the mixed doubles by defeating W. A. R. Collins and Miss G. R. Sterry, 6-2, 6-3. At the same time Allison and Miss Edith Cross beat another British pair, G. R. Sherwell and Miss V. H. Montgomery, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Regatta May Be Sport to Crews But It's Labor for Spectators

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 27.—Do you suppose it would be held against me if I were to say that the thrill of watching a boat race, even with nine shells on the water, as there have been these last two years at Poughkeepsie, is no compensation for the physical distress that the spectator must endure in attending the show?

I know that sports are for enthusiasts and that a true enthusiast will put up with considerable discomfort and be scarcely aware of it as in the case of the football crowd which sits through a bitter afternoon in some windswept arena, through snow and sleet, warmed only by draughts of such sheep dip or paint remover as happens to the wine of that particular section of the country.

Pegler Recalls Fights.

Several times I have achieved this detachment myself. Once at the first Tunney-Dempsey prize fight, where I noticed the rain only as a matter of professional observations for my piece, and plumb forgot that I had brought a raincoat until I was on my way out, where I tripped over it.

Another time I had no sense that I personally was being rained upon was the night of the prize fight between Mickey Walker and Ace Hudkins at the White Sox ball yard in Chicago, where the water stood in a two-inch pool in a depression in the middle of the ring.

And that was a cruel, cold day when Notre Dame beat the Army at the Yankee stadium last fall, but after some early shudders I didn't again realize how cold I was and how brittle my fingers were on the tiddle-de-winks of the keyboard until the game was over, the crowd was gone and the inmates of the press section were left alone in the dark.

Forgets Race for Crowd.

So I think I am an enthusiast about sport and being so minded I think this puts the burden of proof upon the regatta at Poughkeepsie where, every time I have watched the oarsmen row, I have been more aware of the physical wretchedness of the crowd than of the glory of the spectacle. In fact, any one who struggles up to the quite inadequate town of Poughkeepsie, over the inevitable detours from a road that is always being built but never will be finished, and then puts himself through the rigors of an afternoon down in the dusty, gritty valley along the railroad right of way, is bound to experience more stress than pleasure.

From the spectator's point of view, what is a boat race? Nine long splinters of cedar paddle about interminably, while a surveyor on the river bank squints through his finder, lining up little, flat bottomed stake boats so that no one shell will have an advantage of as much as eight inches in a four mile race.

At last, the surveyor decides that they are arrayed as close to an arbitrary hair line as they are ever going to be and passes the word to the referee in boat to send them away.

Away Goes the Referee.

The shells then pull into line and back their sterns into the hands of the stake boat attendants, who grab them by the rudder posts and, just when everything seems ready, the referee decided to go for a spin in his yacht. The referee's boat does a half-mile circle and comes up behind the line again and the spectators hear him yell through his megaphone, "Are you ready?"

They all look ready enough after six months of training. But just then number six in the Cornell boat decides that his tights are chaffing and passes the sign to his coxswain, who raises his arm. This causes another delay and when the referee's voice comes moaning over the water again, "Are you ready," up goes the Penn Coxswain's arm. It seems that in his boat, number seven's bangs have blown over his eyes and the boy needs a moment's time.

By now the people sitting on the flat cars along the right of way have not been able to twitch a muscle for five or six hours. You attempt to relieve your posture and you jam a knee into some stranger's back.

There is no breeze down in the valley, although the trees are nodding and showing the silver side of their leaves upon the palisades. The people are moist and sooty and gritty and shirts are clammy, and white pants look as though they had been slept in down some coalhole. Now, by some miracle, the referee, the stake boats, and the coxswains, finding themselves all agreed, the starting gun grunts sending the shells away.

It's Quite a Grind.

There ensues a 20 minute spell of rowing, which is quite spirited and brave and well worth seeing in the moving pictures. But the spectators on the train are thinking of the hell to come, the long mile over oily roads, the railroad ties, and cinders back to the ferryhouse, the hour of suffocation before they reach the Poughkeepsie shore, the uphill mile to the town in the stifling heat, the burnt steaks, and the soggy French fried potatoes in the Elite café, or the fried chicken table d'hôte at $4 per head in the roadhouses along the way out.

PEABODY STAKE ENDS HOMEWOOD SEASON TODAY

The Washington Park Jockey club's June turf season ends this afternoon with the running of the $10,000 added Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap. In the overnight wagering Sun Beau was the favorite with The Nut, High Foot, Whiskery, and Ironsides all coming in for stout support.

Twelve were named overnight for the closing stake and Sun Beau came from New York and Ironsides from the Fairmount track at St. Louis to take part in it. Washington Park officials believe the famous handicap stars will attract one of the largest crowds of the season.

Favorites Fail Fans.

The meeting closing at Washington Park today has been the most remarkable held in America this year. It has been out of the ordinary both from a racing and business standpoint. The attendance has been larger than it was last year. More money has been wagered through the pari-mutuel machines than was bet last year. It has been the only track in America to operate this year that has shown a gain in attendance.

It has been a meeting made almost famous by the number of long shots that have scored. The number of winning favorites has been below normal. Whether the horses have run inconsistently or the crowds have used bad judgment in making the favorites one only can guess. But the favorites did not win the number of races they do at most tracks.

Maybe Sun Beau will be an exception in today's closing feature. At least, the race goers in the loop last night were talking and betting that way.

Club House Beats Golden Prince.

The Homewood handicap, a dash at six furlongs, was the feature at Washington Park yesterday, and it went to the fleet sprinter, Club House. Over a track that was a trifle slow he stepped the three-quarters of a mile in 1:13 and came from behind in the stretch to beat Golden Prince by a length and to trim Cayuga, which got third money, by five lengths.

Cayuga and T. S. Jordan staged a desperate duel in the early part of the battle, running head and head most of the time until they reached the stretch. Jockey Landolt brought Club House up on the outside at this stage, and it was just a picnic for him to run on past the two tiring leaders. Golden Prince also came with a desperate challenge, but Club House easily held him safe.

WOMEN'S TRACK MEET TO DRAW FIELD OF 1,400

More than 1,400 girl athletes will compete today in the Central A. A. U. women's track and field meet at Ogden park, 64th street and Racine avenue. The meet is sponsored by the Chicago Evening American. Judge Walter C. Steffen, football coach at Carnegie Tech, will referee.

CUYLER BREAKS UP BATTLE WITH HOMER IN TENTH

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

One swing of Kiki Cuyler's bat pulled down the curtain on a tense, spectacular battle yesterday at Wrigley field. With the score deadlocked in the tenth and with a ladies' day turnout of more than 50,000 anxious for the finishing blow, Kiki delivered. He boomed one of Ray Moss' offerings over the wall with a mate waiting, two runs scored and the league leading Robins went to their nests. The final count was 7 to 5, and the present champions again are one game behind the team which hopes to supplant them as title holders.

The man on base at the time Cuyler came through was Guy Bush. The largest crowd, 30,500 being women, ever to squeeze its way into the north side park had seen the Mississippian survive ten innings in which the Robin attack time and again threatened to submerge him. But until the tenth he himself hadn't done any hitting, which is his hobby. He opened the inning with a single and scored ahead of Cuyler when the latter produced with two out.

Robins Tie Score in Seventh.

The heroic conclusion was the third time the Cubs had come through in the face of possible disaster. First they had to whittle down a 3 to 0 lead that had been built up against Bush. They did this by assaulting Adolfo Luque for three runs in the fourth. They added one in the fifth and another in the sixth, forcing Luque from the picture. That two run margin seemed sufficient, but the Robins brought on another tie in the seventh and that's the way it remained until the tenth.

It will be Malone against Phelps today.

The Robins were able to start scoring operations in the first inning because both Wilson and Stephenson insisted on capturing Frederick's fly. It fell between them for a double. Frederick scored on Gilbert's single.

A slight mishap also was involved in another Robin run collected in the second round. Hendrick led off with a double over Wilson's head, and a wild pitch let him move to third. This put him in position to register on an infield out. Then the great Herman swelled the hostile lead to 3 and 0 by bouncing a homer off the top of the left field bricks in the fourth.

Stephenson Starts Rally.

Stephenson delivered the first hit that led to the eclipse of Luque's three run advantage in the home fourth. Grimm flied out, but Hartnett uncorked a single to center, sending Stevie to third. Beck caromed a single off Gilbert, and Stevie tallied. Bush's infield out advanced the two runners. Blair then bounced a hit to Finn back of second and before Bissonette, who took the throw from Finn, awoke to what was going on, Beck had scored the tying run.

The batting services of seven Cubs were required to fetch home one run in the fifth. The inning opened with Cuyler being safe on Gilbert's error, but he was out in an attempt to make two bases on the overthrow. Wilson then walked and Stephenson doubled him to third with a drive into the right field overflow. Grimm singled Hack across and moved Stevie to third. A pass to Hartnett loaded the bags, but Beck popped out and Bush grounded into a force play.

The next happening was the passing out of Luque when Blair and English singled in the sixth. Moss stepped

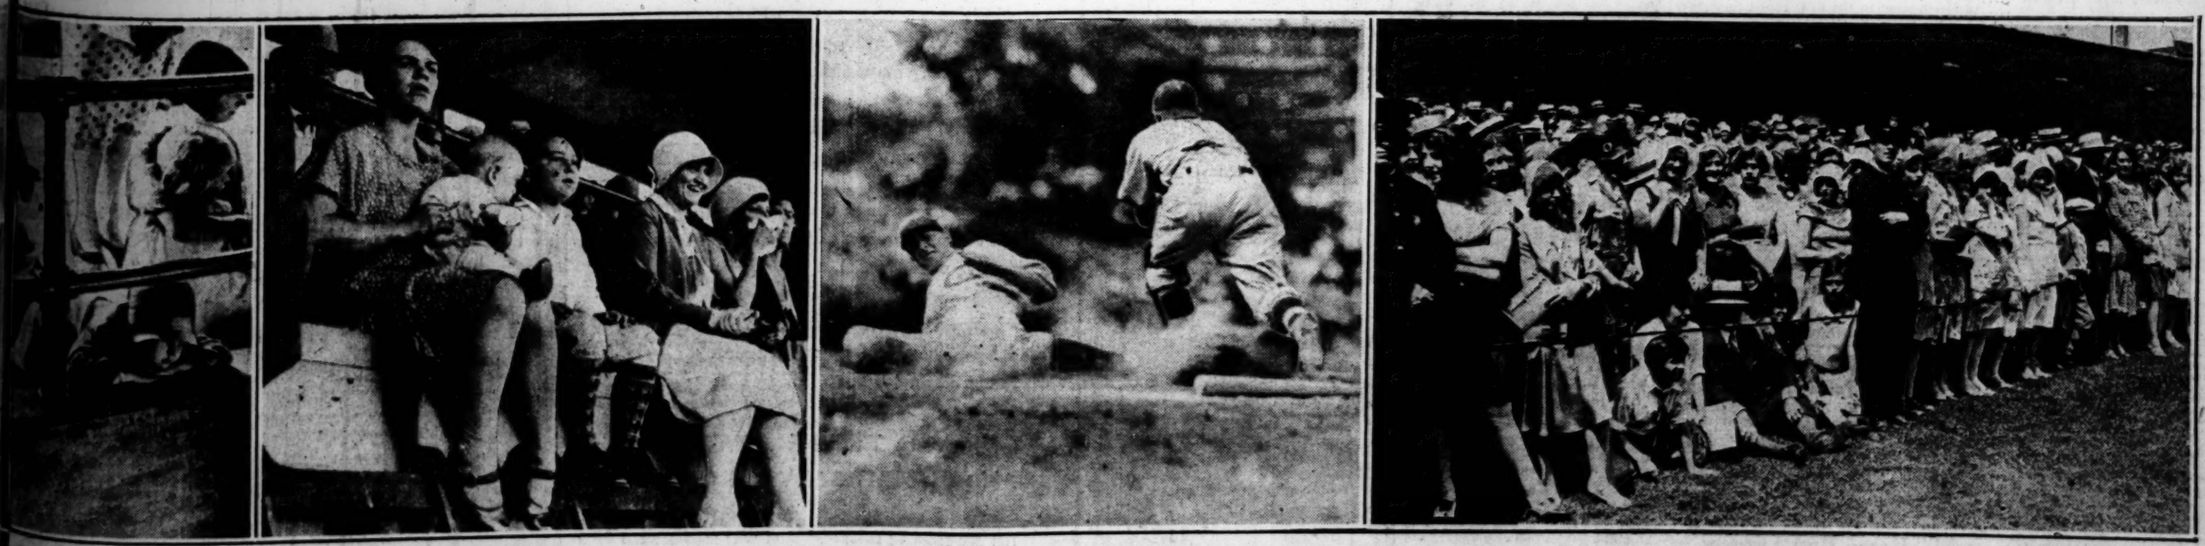
WHEN THE CUBS ENTERTAINED WRIGLEY FIELD'S LARGEST CROWD



Late arrivals had to be satisfied with most any place of vantage. Here's how these youngsters saw Cuyler et al. shoot down the Robins.

Baby Edward Myrick couldn't get interested in such a momentous affair as a battle between Cubs and Robins, but he remained to the finish, for his mother, Mrs. William Myrick, is a Cub fan. Master Myrick spent the afternoon eyeing nearby rooters and draining his bottle.

Clyde Beck catches the Robbins day dreaming in the fourth inning and scores from second base on an infield hit. While Bissonette was holding the ball after catching Finn's throw, Beck raced for the plate and slid safely past Catcher Lopez.

"Standing room only" was the greeting these Cub rooters received when they arrived after 2 o'clock. But that did not deter them for they paraded out to the space roped off in the outfield and cheered lustily even if a few line drives shelled their sector.

BLUE LARKSPUR ARRIVES TO TEST ARLINGTON TURF

He Brings Other Bradley Mounts with Him.

The "big horse" of last season's racing, Blue Larkspur, was the most distinguished arrival at Arlington Park's rapidly growing turf colony yesterday.

Blue Larkspur, apparently as sound as ever and ready to begin a hard campaign in the handicap and stake divisions, put in his appearance along with the other horses in the main division of Col. Edward R. Bradley's stable. The horses were shipped here from Belmont Park in New York.

"He shipped well and is ready to run," was the laconic comment yesterday of Trainer Dick Thompson. And when Thompson says a horse is ready he usually knows what he is talking about.

Blue Larkspur is eligible to the Inaugural handicap, to be run on Monday; to the Stars and Stripes handicap, to be decided next Friday, and to the Arlington handicap and Arlington Cup, which will be run later in the season.

Among the others in the Bradley shipment were Kai Feng, a recently acquired 3 year old; Buddy Bauer, Breezing Thru, Blar Hunter, Boy's Howdy, Buckeye Poet, Banal Girl, Baba Kenney, and Bathorse.

SCHMELING PAYS INCOME TAX BILL BEFORE SAILING

New York, June 27.—(AP)—Settling his accounts before sailing for the homeland, Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion, visited the internal revenue collector's office today to pay income tax on the $177,500 purse he received for defeating Jack Sharkey on a foul. The amount of the tax was not disclosed.

The German boxer also received permission to sail at midnight on the Bremen. He will spend a short vacation visiting his mother in Berlin and expects to return here in August. He plans five weeks' training at Endicott, N. Y., before his proposed return engagement with Sharkey at the Yankee Stadium either Sept. 18 or 25. Plans for the return bout have not been completed.

2 EX-CHAMPIONS REACH FINALS IN COLORADO GOLF

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 27.—(AP)—The trans-Mississippi golf championship will be decided tomorrow between Jimmy Manion of St. Louis and Bob McCrary of Des Moines, Ia.

The 36 hole finals will be a duel of champions, Manion having captured the trans-Mississippi title in 1924 and the Iowan having won the honor last year at Omaha.

The result of the day's semi-final match was just about as expected. Manion's superiority in driving and approaching gave him a 10 to 8 victory over Walter Crooks, former Colorado state champion, and McCrary's steadiness overcame the, at times, brilliant Logan van Zandt, 46 year old Tulsa campaigner, 8 and 7.

Favorites Win State Tennis Quarter Finals

George Jennings, defending champion and national public parks champion, will meet Louis L. Thalheimer this afternoon in one semi-final match of the Illinois state tennis tournament at the Town and Tennis club. In the other bracket, George O'Connell, seeded two in the draw, plays Fred Royer, Missouri state champion.

Jennings swamped Eddie Lejeck, 6-2, 6-0, yesterday, and Thalheimer, displaying the best tennis he has shown this year, swept through "Doc" Barr of Dallas, Tex., 6-2, 6-4, to reach the semi-finals. Royer was forced to the limit by Al Dahlquist, finally winning, 2-6, 6-2, 7-5. O'Connell had defeated Charles Lejeck on Thursday, 6-2, 6-4.

Royer and Thalheimer will meet the Lejeck brothers in one doubles match, with Jennings and Braudt opposed to Garland and Williams in the other. Royer and Thalheimer made short work of Frank O'Connell and Frankenstein, 6-1, 6-3, while the Lejecks were upsetting Walter T. Hayes and Ellis Klingeman, 6-0, 6-3. Jennings and Braudt were given a battle by Jack Harris and George O'Connell before they emerged with a 6-4, 8-6 victory. Barr and Karl Kamrath, a flashy junior from Austin, Tex., were beaten by Garland and Williams, 6-8, 6-4, 6-3.

Catherine Wolf of Indianapolis, the defending feminine champion, plays Ruth Oexman of Cincinnati. Miss Wolf defeated Marion Kronberg, 6-0, 6-4, and Miss Oexman beat Nelly Nador of Detroit, 6-2, 6-3. Clara Louise Zinke of Cincinnati meets Lucy Jane Hedberg. Miss Zinke defeated Theodosia Smith, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1.

Miss Hedberg defeated Mrs. Emily Johnson of Detroit, former western champion, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1.

Kamrath beat his fellow townsman, Joe Bill Bralley, 6-3, 6-2, to enter the finals of the junior event.

Imperial Air Beats Charon at Aqueduct

New York, June 27.—[Special.]—The Fair stable of Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, which has been encountering much misfortune this season, finally came in for a bit of the sunny side of racing when Imperial Air won the feature race at Aqueduct today. It was the first Fair stable color bearer to win at the Aqueduct meeting, which today reached its fifty-ninth day.

Before that there was no victory during the twenty-three days of the Belmont meeting, during which the stable had the misfortune to lose the smart filly, Chouette.

Louisiana Kills Last Anti-Horse Race Bill

Baton Rouge, La., June 27.—(AP)—The last of the anti-racing bills in the Louisiana general assembly was withdrawn from the files of the house today when the Jones-Armstrong bill to prohibit race betting in any form in the state came up with an unfavorable committee report. The report, tantamount to defeat of the measure, was followed by abandonment of the bill by the authors. The measure was shaped to prohibit every form of race betting in such a way as to eliminate the sport from Louisiana.

A'S LOSE FIRST TO BROWNS, 8 TO 2; WIN SECOND, 8-3

Grove, Quinn, Simmons, and Foxx Hit Homers.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 27.—(AP)—The Athletics divided a double header with the St. Louis Browns today, winning the second game by a score of 8 to 3 after turning in five errors that aided the Missourians to beat Lefty Grove in the first game, 8 to 2.

Dick Coffman kept the Mack hits well scattered in the opener but in the closing affair the world's champions gave Chad Kimsey a pounding. Grove hit a homer in the first game and Quinn, A's hurler in the second game, also hit a homer.

In the second game Jimmy Foxx hit his twentieth home run of the season, with two on in the third inning, and in the fifth Al Simmons walloped his sixteenth with one on base. Scores:

RAIN HALTS THAT STRUGGLE OF SOX FOR LAST PLACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boton, Mass., June 27.—Rain this afternoon caused postponement of the game that was to have determined the cellartenancy of the American league. In other words the contest between the White Sox and Boston Red Sox was washed out. There will be one game tomorrow and two Sunday. According to the rearranged plans the Sunday games will be played at Braves field. Henry will pitch against MacFayden tomorrow and Sunday Ted Lyons and Garland Braxton will oppose Ed Morris and Jack Russell.

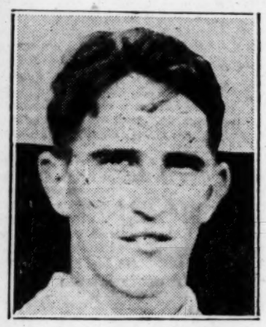
Notre Dame Star Vies for College Golf Title Today



LAWRENCE MOLLER.

Oakmont, Pa., June 27.—[Special.]—For the first time in the history of intercollegiate golf a player from the midwest threatens to take the crown to Notre Dame. A fighting, courageous player, Lawrence Moller, a senior at Notre Dame, triumphed over Harvard's last representative, Phillips Finlay, by 1 up at the 37th green, where he holed a birdie four to gain the final round over the championship course at the Oakmont Country club here this afternoon.

Opposing him tomorrow will be George T. Dunlap Jr., Princeton's star and the little fellow who has been playing great golf here this week over a course that was supposed to be too long for his type of game. But Dunlap, who weighs close to 120 pounds, eliminated Winton Fuller of the University of Southern California by 8 and 7, chiefly because of a fine closing nine this morning, in which he scored a 35 for par, winning five holes thereby. Starting out this afternoon he played the first nine in par, or 37, in another sterling exhibition of accurate shot making.

COMMISSION TO RULE TODAY ON SWIDERSKI CASE

The Illinois athletic commission will decide today whether Paul Swiderski will be permitted to fight Frankie Simms in the semi-windup of the Risko-Griffith bout at the Stadium Wednesday night. The commission received notice yesterday that Swiderski had been suspended in New Jersey because of failure to fill a contract.

Stadium officials will present the evidence this morning. According to Swiderski, Harry Lenny, his manager, signed for a bout in New Jersey after Paul's fight with Mickey Walker had brought him into the spotlight. Swiderski alleges he did not know of the bout until too late to fill the date. Injuries also kept him idle. Previously he had been forced to cancel a date at the Stadium.

Risko put in a busy afternoon yesterday. His speed and powerful punches encouraged those who believe he can take Tuffy Griffith's measure.

Robinson, Fetz Meet in Finals of State Golf

Eldridge Robinson, defending champion, and Gus Fetz will meet today in the finals of the Illinois state amateur golf championship at Ris park. In the semi-finals, Robinson defeated Frank Phillips of Lincoln park, 7 and 6, while Fetz was beating Al Huskie, the Elgin long hitter, 1 up.

In his quarter-final match Fetz was carried to the 20th green by Clyde Homans of Lincolnshire in the closest match of the meet. Homan's putter failed him on the second extra hole to let Fetz win.

Robinson won easily in his quarter-final, trimming A. Tamburrino, 7 and 6. Al Huskie advanced to the semi-finals at the expense of Harold Nilles, 2 and 1, and Frank Phillips progressed by defeating Robert Ahlbeck, Pickwick, 1 up in 19 holes.

The Chicago Automobile Golf association held its seasonal meet yesterday at Olympia Fields. Play was over the No. 4 championship course, which accounts for the number of twin sixes and straight eights appearing on the cards.

Charles Gerds won the all classes low net with 92—22—70, two strokes ahead of E. Jager's 79—7—72. H. Gross was third with 91—19—72 and G. Bird fourth with 92—17—75. High net for the meet went to E. Monast, who scored 125—30—95.

Tom Warren, former city champion, won class A low net with 82—4—78, while H. Fletchner was second with 81—3—78. Class B went to R. T. Badger, 95—20—75, with W. F. Arnold's 98—15—83 second.

Allen Clement's 78 won low gross in the Board of Trade directors and dedication committee's tournament yesterday at Bob o' Link. Frank Coe was second with 79. Robert Boylan won low net, 81—6—75. Among those who played were John Bunnell, president of the Board of Trade, and the two vice presidents, Edward Essrodger and Peter B. Cary.

Leonard Hicks won low gross in the Hotel Men's Golf association tournament at Glen Oak. He also took low net in class A with 72. Rufus Rightmire led class B with 102—23—79, and R. A. Bissell topped class C with 118—30—88.

Leading net scores were M. E. Fox, 87—15—72; John Harding, 88—13—75; Ward James, 96—18—78; Jack Palmer, 86—8—78; Walter Gregory, 102—17—85.

Rudy Wilhelm shot 77 to lead a field of 170 members of the Traffic club yesterday at Park Ridge. F. O. Stafford won second low gross with 81. Low gross for the first nine went to E. H. Bowen, 41.

Thirty-five members of the Central Lions played at Big Oaks. Bob Fultis and Sid King tied for low gross with 88, the former winning the draw for the prize. Low net was won by Jens Smith, 72, with A. A. McKinley second, 73, and W. P. Blunderfield third, 74.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: I am wondering how many old timers remember when Marshall Field's sent their traveling salesmen out on the road with horse drawn wagons loaded with merchandise, mostly notions.

As a boy at Nundao, now Crystal Lake, my grandparents, early settlers in McHenry county, conducted a general store. A. Mr. Sunderland used to drive up with a wonderful big black team with coach harness all trimmed with what he were told were gold mountings. The team pulled a big black peddler wagon, striped and lettered in gold. How he pulled out big trays of merchandise and carried them into the store for "grandma's" inspection, for "grandma" wore the pants and did the buying.

In those days a salesman had certain days each month when he stayed at the "house" and received "country buyers." He had his hands full in writing up the orders and taking his customers over to the Palmer house for luncheon and a little talk about business. D. N. Mallory.

O, those good old times when it was our Saturday duty to dust the corner whatnot and trim the wicks in the kerosene lamps before we would go to the circus at Madison and Elizabeth streets. O, that red circus lemonade!

Then there were those long steps up to Martine's dancing academy on Ada street which looked as high as the present Tribune Tower. Yes, and we climbed the 100 steps to the belfry of the old courthouse.

How the children in the Elizabeth school, later Samuel Tilden, all sat up and took notice of the tall woman, dressed in mourning [Mrs. Abraham Lincoln], when "Tad" Lincoln attended that school. They lived in the white stone block on Washington near Sheldon. C. W. Wheeler.

"Speakeasies."

Far be it from The Wake to appear violator of the 18th amendment, if any, but on our recent pilgrimage to New York for the Belmont stakes and Schmeling-Sharkey foul, we associated mostly with newspaper men of the Times square district. Almost without exception, they took their dinners in "speakeasies," either with or without liquid refreshment.

We have no such type of "speakeasy"—at least we do not know of them—in Chicago. The food was uncommonly good and the prices reasonable, a consideratum with newspaper men. Even if you quaffed one or two of "anything you want," the ultimate charge for dinner was less than at a first class hotel. We are not speaking of the night clubs with cover charges of $3 to $5 per person and everything else in comparison.

There is no particular moral to this tale except that such food could not be served at such prices without the profit on the contraband.

BLOOMERS RELEASE REESE.

Bloomington, Ill., June 27.—[Special.]—Harvey Reese, veteran right hander of the Bloomington Three Eye league club was given his outright release.

Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Zech to Meet for Title

Mrs. Rose Marshall and Mrs. Lillian Zech will meet today at Marquette for the public parks golf championship of Chicago. They advanced to the last round by one sided victories in yesterday's semi-finals, Mrs. Marshall beating Mrs. William Wallace, 6 and 5, while Mrs. Zech was turning back Mrs. O. C. Horn, 8 and 7.

Mrs. Marshall, defending champion, won the first hole by sinking a ten foot putt for a birdie 4. She took the second when her opponent drove into the bushes and totaled 7. Mrs. Wallace jumped a stymie to win the third, which was the only one credited to her. On the sixth she was short with her second shot, and stood 2 down at the turn.

Mrs. Marshall won the next three holes with 4, 3, 4, and the match ended on the thirteenth when Mrs. Wallace's spoon shot landed in a clump of bushes.

In the other semi-final match, Mrs. Horn failed to win a hole, due largely to the fact that her putting touch was uncertain. Mrs. Zech took the lead on the first green and increased it steadily. Her 25 foot putt on the seventh curved around her opponent's ball and rolled into the cup.

Results of the subordinate flights follow:

CHAMPIONSHIP CONSOLATION.
Mrs. Rose Long, Johnson, beat Mrs. Clara Morrison, Marquette, 3 and 2.
Mrs. Loring Aldrich, Marquette, beat Mrs. Thomas Ricketts, Jackson, 1 up on the twentieth.

FIRST FLIGHT.
Mrs. L. F. Jackson, Lincoln, beat Mrs. J. G. Mercer, Johnson, 1 up.
Mrs. B. Solomon, Jackson, beat Mrs. R. Baker, Jackson, 2 up.

The Robins tied the score with two runs in the seventh. Finn bounced a double into the left field crowd. He scored on a single by Lopez, who hiked to second on the throw-in. Moss doubled to left and Lopez scored. Bush managed to nail the next three batters, the last of whom was Herman. Herman was stopped because Bush made a daring stop of a terrific line drive and recovered in time to throw to first base.

W. B. THOMPSON, BANKER, IS DEAD IN YONKERS, N. Y.

Aided Hoover War Work; Owned Diamond Mines.

New York, June 27.—[Special.]—Col. William Boyce Thompson, 61 years old, mining engineer, banker, and philanthropist, died shortly before midnight at his country home "The Adlers," in Yonkers, N. Y., of pneumonia, which developed last Saturday. He had been an invalid since 1926 and recently had returned to Yonkers after spending a considerable time in Arizona seeking to recover his health.

Mrs. Gertrude Hickman Thompson, his wife, and his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Thompson Schulze, were at his bedside when he died. His brother, J. Edward Thompson, is on his way here from Phoenix, Ariz. Also surviving him is a sister, Mrs. Walter Filor of West Haverstraw, N. Y., and two grandchildren, the children of Mrs. Schulze.

Helped Hoover in 1917.

Col. Thompson was a mining man first and last. He is perhaps best remembered by the public for his aid extended in 1917 to the work of Herbert Hoover, then head of American relief activities in Belgium, and for his establishment in 1924 of the Boyce Thompson institute for plant research near his home in Yonkers.

Col. Thompson was born in Virginia City, Mont., on May 13, 1869, the son of William Thompson and Anna M. Boyce Thompson. His father owned copper properties that later went into the Anaconda Copper company. Beside his copper and sulphur holdings, Col. Thompson had diamond properties in Africa.

Friend of Roosevelt.

A friend and associate of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, he contributed more than $200,000 to the fund raised by the Roosevelt Memorial association which he served as the first president and later as honorary president.

In 1920 Col. Thompson was chairman of the finance committee of the Republican national committee. He also served as chairman of the ways and means committee. In 1925 Col. Thompson was cited by the Couzens senate committee investigating tax matters. He was alleged to have failed to report profits of $600,000 in the sale of mineral lands in the southwest. He claimed this was offset by losses in other deals.

MORE INFANTILE PARALYSIS CASES IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., June 27.—[Special.]—Eight more cases of infantile paralysis today made this city's toll sixty-five cases this month. Outside the city in Los Angeles county, thirty-seven cases were reported. Seven deaths are recorded. City and county health authorities have asked parents of child sufferers to permit taking of blood from those who have had the disease, the blood to be used in treatment of other children.

Orange county, adjoining Los Angeles, has experienced thirty cases and five deaths this month.

7 Typhus Cases in Maryland.

Baltimore, Md., June 27.—(AP)—The number of known cases of typhus in Maryland increased to seven today as Dr. Robert H. Riley, director of the state health department, received reports of three additional persons ill from the malady. Two deaths from the disease have occurred.

SALLY EILERS, FILM GIRL, WEDS "HOOT" GIBSON

Saugus, Cal., June 27.—[Special.]—"Hoot" Gibson, movie cowboy actor and producer, was married here tonight to Sally Eilers, 21 year old film leading woman, with 200 of Hollywood's notables hovering in the background of the marriage party.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. James Hamilton Lash of Hollywood Congregational church, on grounds of the Saugus Rodeo ranch, recently acquired by the bridegroom. Miss Carmen Pantages was maid of honor and Miss Eilers' bridesmaids were Marion Nixon (Mrs. Edward Hillman), Marie Prevost, and Mrs. Mae Sunday. William (Buster) Collier was best man.

"Countess" Von Buelow Again Drops Her Divorce

Mrs. Lottie Brenner Von Buelow, 55 years old, yesterday withdrew her second suit for divorce against "Count" Enrique Dechow Von Buelow. Superior Judge Joseph Sabath dismissed the suit at the request of Attorney Otto Kolar. The suit was filed April 15, four days after the first divorce bill was withdrawn. Von Buelow will appear before Judge Daniel Trude of the Criminal court next Monday on a warrant obtained by his wife, charging perjury when he secured the marriage license at Crown Point, Ind., under the name of von Buelow. He is 36 years old.

Senate Increases Funds for Pioneer's Memorial

Washington, D. C., June 27.—(AP)—A bill increasing from $1,000,000 to $1,750,000 the original authorization for a memorial at Vincennes, Ind., to George Rogers Clark, midwest pioneer, was passed today by the senate and sent to the house.

MAITRE D'HOTEL KNOWN TO MANY ENDS OWN LIFE

August C. Dittrich, for more than 20 years maitre d'hotel at the Blackstone hotel, shot and killed himself at his summer resort, Liberty camp, on Spider lake near Hayward, Wis., yesterday. He was 52 years old and had been in ill health since February when a nervous breakdown made it necessary for him to leave the Blackstone. In his years at the Blackstone he served many of Chicago's most notable visitors, including Queen Marie of Rumania. Among his friends were many persons of political and social distinction. His widow survives him.

Lindbergh's Birthplace Is Advertised for Sale

Detroit, Mich., June 27.—[Special.]—A real estate company is glaringly advertising the home at 1120 Forest avenue, west, as being for sale. The house was purchased in April, 1929, by the Swedish Engineering society, but it has decided to sell. The bronze memorial tablet marking the place as Lindbergh's birth site still remains and will go with the house.

DR. WISE SEES MODIFIED DRY LAW AS CERTAIN

Providence, R. I., June 27.—(AP)—In what he said was the most comprehensive statement he had ever made about prohibition, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York City declared here today that "we now have to choose between enforcement, which, alas, seems impossible, and modification, which, alas, seems inevitable."

Rabbi Wise made his statement in explanation of his opposition yesterday to the introduction of a resolution urging repeal of the eighteenth amendment before the forty-first annual convention of the central conference of American rabbis. The resolution was tabled.

"The central conference, having taken no stand in other days on behalf of prohibition and the eighteenth amendment, would come rather belatedly into the picture if it, at this late date, expressed itself in favor of repeal," said Dr. Wise.

TROOPS, PLANES, BLOODHOUNDS IN HUNT FOR SLAYER

North Liberty, Ia., June 27.—(AP)—Two hundred men, including 30 mounted Iowa National Guardsmen, tonight combed the Iowa river valley seeking the slayer of Sheriff Fred Sweet and Marshal Aaron Bailey of Washington, Ia.

James E. Risden, chief of the state bureau of criminal investigation, directed the searchers. Two airplanes flew back and forth over the area where the killer was reported seen last night and today. Bloodhounds were brought from Waterloo.

Sheriff Sweet was killed as he prepared to search the man after arresting him as an automobile theft subject. The bandit wrestled with the officer, fired a bulle through Marshal Bailey's heart, and then sent five shots into the sheriffs body.

Open Bids for Viaduct and Outer Drive Bridge

Bids for construction of the outer drive viaduct over Grand avenue and Illinois street and for erection of the substructure of the Ogden slip bridge were opened by the finance committee of the Lincoln park commission yesterday. Contracts will be awarded next week at the regular meeting of the board. The cut is being made through the Navy pier terminal building for the outer drive.

Head of Canadian Bank, Once Office Boy, Dies at 73

TORONTO, Ont., June 27.—(AP)—Peleg Howland, who rose from office boy to president of the Imperial Bank of Canada, died suddenly at his home here last night. He was 73 years old. He was one of the most powerful figures in the financial and business life of the dominion.

FRED WITT, 83 years old, of Lake Villa, a resident of western Lake county for 40 years, died yesterday at his home following a paralytic stroke suffered Sunday. He is survived by his widow and a daughter. Funeral services will be held this afternoon at the home.

Leader of Women Drys in Canada Dies Suddenly

LONDON, Ont., June 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Gordon Wright, president of the Women's Christian Temperance union in Canada, was found dead in her apartment last night shortly before she was to have appeared as a speaker at a church rally. Death was believed caused by a heart attack.

"My daughter suffered from a form of eczema which caused a mass of blisters to form on her arm. As these blisters broke the trouble spread. The doctor was treating her, but she did not seem to be improving very fast. I heard of Resinol Ointment and asked the doctor about it. When he said it was all right, I tried it and want to tell you that after using three small jars, my daughter's arm was quite well."

W. D. MESSINGER, PIONEER DEALER IN PAPER, IS DEAD

William D. Messinger, pioneer wholesale paper dealer and prominent Presbyterian layman, died last evening at his residence, 265 Prospect avenue, Highland Park. He was 86 years old.

Born in Peterboro, N. Y., Mr. Messinger enlisted in the Union army at the age of 19 years, was commissioned a second lieutenant and served until 1864, when ill health compelled him to resign. He came to Chicago in 1865 and in 1870 founded the paper company bearing his name, which, upon his retirement in 1920, was the oldest of its class in the city.

Prior to his change of residence from Chicago to Highland Park in 1900 Mr. Messinger was a trustee of the First Presbyterian church here. Since 1900 he had been a trustee of the Highland Park Presbyterian church and of the Presbyterian home in Evanston. A son, Edwin D. Messinger, and a daughter, Mrs. Edmund H. Eitel, survive him.

RUSH 5 MILLION BY PLANE TO AID CINCINNATI BANKS

Cincinnati, O., June 27.—(AP)—M. J. Fleming, deputy governor of the Federal Reserve bank, Cleveland, said $5,000,000 in currency had been brought here today by airplane from Cleveland and placed in the federal reserve branch to add assurance to the banking situation in this city.

He said it was the first time that money ever was sent out of the Cleveland Federal Reserve bank by airplane, and that the step was evidence that the Federal Reserve bank was ready at all times to aid any city.

Six armed guards accompanied the money in the plane.

The currency was brought here following the closing yesterday of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks National bank and the closing seventeen days ago of the Cosmopolitan Bank and Trust company.

HIGHWAY COPS SUFFERING FROM RUM EXPLOSION

Two county highway policemen were burned, one of them perhaps fatally, by the explosion of a still early yesterday in a barn at 160th street and Blue Island avenue, Harvey. Sergt. John Orgel, 46 years old, and Walter Remillard, 28 years old, are in the Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey. Remillard is in serious condition with burns on his face, hands, chest, and legs.

Smell of fermented mash led the policemen to the barn where seven 1,000 gallon vats and a 150 gallon still were in operation. They were little more than inside the door when the still unaccountably blew up, spattering them with hot mash. Orgel drove to the hospital. No trace was found of the owners of the still. John Kut, owner of the barn, was arrested.

Announce Jury for Next Exhibit of Hoosier Art

The seventh annual Hoosier salon will be held next January in the Marshall Field galleries, according to plans announced yesterday by the Hoosier Salon Patrons' association. Those listed for the jury are Charles W. Hawthorne, New York and Provincetown; Mrs. Grace Rhoades Dean, Toledo; Miss Ruth Sherwood, Francis Chapin, Charles A. Willmovsky, and Otto J. Schneider, Chicago. Harley L. Clarke of Chicago, and Col. Walter J. Riley, East Chicago, have been added to the board of trustees.

RADIOLOGISTS FORM BODY TO LOWER COST OF RADIUM FOR SICK

New York, June 27.—(AP)—Organization by leading American radiologists of a society for research to lower the cost of radium and X-rays for the sick was announced here today.

Recent advances in radiation, such as generation by human flesh of actual X-rays believed somehow connected with restoration of health, and effects in curing cancer were sketched in the announcement as the field upon which the new scientific body will concentrate.

The society was organized in Detroit yesterday at the meeting of the American Medical association. Officers elected were Dr. E. C. Ernst of St. Louis, president; Dr. Rollin H. Stevens of Detroit, vice president, and Dr. D. S. Childs of Syracuse university, treasurer.

President of Loyola U. Denies Change in Office

The Rev. Robert M. Kelley, S. J., president of Loyola university, denied yesterday that a change is contemplated in the office of president of that institution. His statement followed a published Associated Press dispatch from St. Louis that Loyola's president may become head of St. Louis university. He said he had not been notified of a possible change, nor had there been any discussion in that direction.

HUSTON CALLS COMMITTEE OF G. O. P. TO MEET

Washington, D. C., June 27.—[Special.]—Officers of the Republican national committee and the chairmen of the senatorial and congressional campaign committees were invited today by Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, to attend a conference on July 7.

The action was construed as notice by Mr. Huston that he intends to retain his post and to be active during the congressional campaign despite persistent reports that he would be forced to resign as a result of his connection with lobbying activities as disclosed before the Caraway committee of the senate.

Mr. Huston during the day again denied that he has any intention of resigning.

"There are some matters of importance concerning the forthcoming campaign to bring up on which I prefer to have your counsel and advice," said Mr. Houston in his letter to the officers of the three committees.

Film Director's Dog Bites Adolph Menjou's Wife

Hollywood, Cal., June 27.—[Special.]—An Airedale belonging to Lon Seiter, film director, severely bit the actress, Kathryn Carver [Mrs. Adolph Menjou] near Menjou's seaside home at Malibu Beach today. Menjou called the police and the latter ordered the dog held for observation. Miss Carver was bitten on the neck and arms.

11 DEAD, 21 HURT IN TWO CANADIAN RAILWAY WRECKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUDBURY, Ont., June 27.—Floods within an area of twenty miles in the district of Sudbury and Capreol took a death toll of eleven lives in two train wrecks on the Canadian National railways late last night and early this morning. Four children were drowned and 21 injured in the wreck of a train four miles east of Capreol last night. The engineer of a freight train was fatally injured when the train ran into a washout sixteen miles east of Capreol. The bodies of six hobos were found.

Divers today recovered twenty bodies from the twisted hulk of the drill scow John B. King, reposing on the rock bottom of the St. Lawrence river near Brockville. One body was recovered on the surface, bringing the total found dead to twenty-one. Bodies of ten more victims are still believed beneath the surface.

Inquest proceedings were started today to establish the facts of the terrific explosion supposed to have been caused by a lightning bolt striking the dynamite carrying craft as she lay at work in the Brockville narrows.

Parley Fixes 8 Hour Day for 'White Collar Workers'

GENEVA, June 27.—(AP)—The draft of a convention fixing the hours of salaried employés was adopted by 78 to 31 on the first vote tonight by the international labor conference. The draft limits the hours in commerce and in offices to 8 a day and 48 a week, thus endeavoring to do for the "white collar" workers what has been done previously for industrial workers.

French Deputies Consider $973,000,000 State Lottery

PARIS, June 27.—(AP)—Persistent talk in parliamentary circles for the last few weeks, favoring a national lottery for the conversion of national defense funds, came to a climax today with the introduction of a bill for a national lottery to produce 30,000,000,000 francs ($973,000,000).

SLOW BUT SURE BUSINESS GAIN AROUND CORNER

This Is Viewpoint of State Leaders.

BY O. A. MATHER.

How do Illinois leaders in business and industry feel about the present and future? A survey along this line has just been completed by the Illinois Manufacturers' association and the concensus, while not glossing over current unsatisfactory conditions, is that business is recovering slowly but surely.

The latter half of this year will show distinct improvement, according to many of these men. Despite recession and readjustment, there is still a large volume of business. Profits this year probably will be as large as they were in 1928 and next year will be prosperous. Some of the individual answers to the association's request for opinions follow:

E. J. Buffington, president, Illinois Steel company—It is expected a revival in demand for steel products will take place, as it usually does, in the early fall of this year.

Reynolds Comments.

Arthur Reynolds, chairman, Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company—Although business is not as good as most people expected a short time ago, still it is running along in a comfortable way and I feel that the results at the close of the year will be reasonably satisfactory.

Martin J. Insull, president, Middle West Utilities company—The fact seems to be that fluctuations—whether booms or depressions—are not as important in the long run as they appear close at hand. The trend of business activity and prosperity is gradually higher year by year and this is more significant than the short term changes.

Edward G. McDougall, president, Libby, McNeill & Libby—I think I see indications in our own industry of a little better trend in business and the outlook is not bad. It also seems to me that with cheap money and under production, the general business outlook is bound to improve during the second half of the year.

DeForest Hulburd, president, Elgin National Watch company—Although many businesses are not doing particularly well, the total business of the country now is not far behind 1928, and that was a good year. I hope and expect to see business improve toward the latter part of September and I am looking forward to a good fall trade.

V. L. Alward, president, American Furniture Mart Building corporation —We do not look for any marked improvement in the furniture industry during this quarter but we expect a gradual improvement in the last half, reaching very substantial proportions by the beginning of 1931.

Bigger and Better.

Samuel M. Hastings, president, International Machines corporation—General business will move on bigger and better than ever. Speculation will not be as rampant in the future for a long time as it has been in the past.

Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher, CHICAGO TRIBUNE—The times demand from business a degree of enterprise, need for which was not felt in the boom years. Business must make improvements in all production methods and in the character of products. In doing this, business men will employ capital, move real estate, give orders to other factories and hire labor, thus beginning a new business cycle. The effects of these operations will become apparent in the near future.

F. F. Affleck, president, Universal Atlas Cement company—In this more nearly normal year there are, of course, unfavorable factors. But there also are certain encouraging conditions that afford a basis for the hope that a gradual but definite improvement may begin within the next few weeks, to be followed by a steady upward movement later in the year.

Paul F. Beich, president, Paul F. Beich company—My opinion is that the bottom of business has been reached and that it should improve steadily from now on in a moderate way and should show a decided improvement during the last half of the year.

Billions Administered in Many Varied Endowments

BY SCRUTATOR.

More wealth than most of us dream of, and more certainly than any of us can grasp a clear idea of, is being administered in foundations and endowments of various kinds.

The amount runs well up into the billions. Just how far, is a matter of uncertainty. Huge gifts from the wealthy flow in such profusion to religious, educational and welfare organizations that it is impossible to keep up with statistics on a country-wide scale. Yale university announced gifts of twenty-three million dollars in the last year and ten millions the preceding year. Northwestern university increased its funds by gifts seventeen millions in a twelvemonth.

Lists Donations.

More than four years ago James C. Young, in Current History, listed $1,664,000,000 of capitalized welfare that had been donated to the public in lumps of ten million dollars or more. Smaller gifts, it was estimated then, brought permanent endowments in this country to two and a half billions.

Consider now the giving of the last two years. A compilation of public gifts in 1928 showed a total of $2,200,000,000. Not all of it was designated for perpetual use as capital, with only the annual income to be expended, but much of it was so set aside. One item of twenty-five millions that year was a trust fund left by Payne Whitney for educational and scientific progress. In 1929 the total giving was estimated at $2,450,000,000, including two trusts, the Couzens and Falk, of ten millions each.

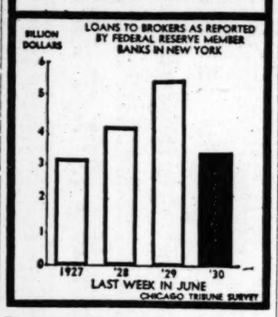
It is difficult to segregate the amounts that are held as income producers and those which are to be expended in the immediate future, but a hazarded guess is that the permanent funds will reach a conservative four and a half to five billion dollars. If we count in the lands of the endowed schools, universities, hospitals, parks, orphanages and other institutions, it may be that 3 per cent of the national wealth is administered for public or semi-public benefit.

Cites Danger Point.

Such developments are nothing new in economic history. In the days preceding the so-called modern era the monastic orders or the church held so large a portion of the lands in England that Henry VIII. found it wise to defy them and take control. Such concentration of financial power for educational and eleemosynary purposes is not yet approached in this country. Yet there is a disturbing element in what there is.

The danger, where one exists, is that too much capital may become too rigidly fixed. Men are not wise enough to look many decades ahead. Benjamin Franklin established a loan fund which is a failure because there are no people of the sort he desired his executors to lend to. There is, of course, something comforting in the knowledge that the Rockefeller and the Harkness millions are flowing from the oil fields by stages into public welfare. The wise givers, however, are beginning to stipulate that their donations shall be completely gone in twenty-five or thirty years.

BROKERS' LOANS ARE LOWEST FOR THE SEASON SINCE 1927



CHICAGO RESERVE BANK NOTES GAIN IN MERCHANDISE SALES

The business conditions report for May issued yesterday by the Seventh Federal Reserve District bank shows several slight increases over April in merchandising sales, but a continued decrease in comparison with last year.

Wholesale grocery, hardware, and dry goods sales increased one, four, and three per cent, respectively, over the previous month. Other reporting lines of wholesale trade, however, showed losses; drugs, two per cent; shoes, 23 per cent, and electrical supplies, 10 per cent.

Declines for the first five months of 1930 from the same period a year ago averaged 15 per cent for hardware, 21 per cent for dry goods, 8 per cent for drugs, 29 per cent for shoes and 15 per cent in electrical supplies. Groceries showed a gain of one per cent in this period.

Department store sales in the district—which includes Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa—were five and a half per cent less in May than in April and nine per cent less than in May, 1929.

Chicago and Detroit of the larger cities showed the greatest falling off in business from the preceding month, the report says, recessions amounting to 7 and 6½ per cent, respectively. Detroit stores reported the heaviest decline from a year ago—15 per cent —and Milwaukee the smallest, with four per cent.

Chain stores reported a slight increase in May over April and a six per cent gain over a year ago. Average sales per store declined, however, because of larger gains in the number of stores operated than in aggregate sales.

Corn Products Refining Co., Others Pay Extra Dividends

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 27.—Directors of Corn Products Refining company today declared an extra dividend of 50 cents on the common stock in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents.

An extra dividend of 50 cents a share was announced on the participating preferred stock of an American Electric Securities corporation. Directors also approved the payment of regular dividends bi-monthly or six times instead of quarterly, the first payment to be made Aug. 1, according to a statement issued by G. V. Grace & Co., fiscal agents. The regular quarterly of 10 cents a share was declared, payable July 15.

Usual Extra.

Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining company declared the usual extra of 25 cents and regular monthly dividend of 25 cents on common, both payable July 5 to stock of record June 26.

Teleautograph corporation declared the usual extra of 5 cents and the regular quarterly dividend of 30 cents, both payable Aug. 1 to stock of record July 15. Dictograph Products Company, Inc., declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents, payable July 15 to holders of record July 1. In previous quarter company deferred action on dividend.

The board of the General Cable corporation has reserved consideration on the class A dividend, payable Sept. 1, until the meeting to be held on Aug. 12, it was announced today. The regular quarterly of $1.75 a share was declared on the preferred.

A quarterly dividend of 30 cents a share was declared on the stock of Bank of Sicily Trust company, placing the issue on a $1.20 a share basis, against $2 previously.

Reduce Payments.

Dividends on the class A and B shares of Devoe & Reynolds were reduced to $1.20 annually, against $2.40 previous, when directors declared a quarterly rate of 30 cents a share.

Directors of Eagle-Pitcher Lead company announced the omission of its quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share on the common stock, due at this time. The regular quarterly dividend of $5.50 a share was announced on the preferred stock.

United States Fininshing company has omitted the quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the common, due at this time. The regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on preferred was declared. Directors of the Kansas City Public Service company decided not to declare or pay the dividend on the preferred stock due July 1.

U. S. GOVTS. ARE BIG FEATURE OF BOND TRADING

New York, June 27.—(AP)—The movement of bonds was mixed today with the result that the level of prices was little changed.

A small list of railroad issues made some improvement, but others eased, so that the irregularity of prices which has characterized the bond market throughout the week, ruled. Secondary issues, stock privilege and speculative issues were reactionary.

A feature was the broad market in United States governments, especially Liberty 4th 4¼s. Sales of the issue totaled $1,039,000, the largest for any bond of the group in many weeks.

Some bonds were sold at a concession and the Treasury 3⅜s of '43 and '47 were the only governments to break through the high prices of the year established some time ago. Two $500,000 blocks of the 4th Liberty changed hands.

Best carrier bonds were steady to firm, but the turnover of most of the gilt edged liens was only nominal. Gains and losses were small. Atchison 4s were active and gained ¾. Baltimore and Ohio gold 4s sold at the year's top with a point rise. Near the high level were Chesapeake and Ohio issues. Pennsylvania issues were higher.

Erie 5s of '67 advanced 1¾ points and several prime bonds gained about ¼. Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5s broke 5½ points. The Seaboard refunding 4s yielded 9¾ points on a few bonds and is 20 points under the year's high.

MERCHANDISE MART TRADE GROUP FORMED

The Merchandise mart chamber of commerce, including in its roster manufacturers and wholesalers from all parts of the country who are tenants of the Merchandise mart, has just been organized, according to an announcement made yesterday. W. O. Owen becomes its first president, with Sol H. Shoninger and C. J. Singer as first and second vice presidents, respectively, and Will H. Howell as secretary, all of whom are Chicagoans.

W. C. OWEN.

Its membership includes about 500, according to Secretary Howell, who states that the prime purpose of the new group will be to promote Chicago as the great central wholesale market center of the continent and indirectly thereby to benefit the manufacturing and wholesale trade in the big new mart.

The first major activity of the new chamber of commerce will be directed towards promoting the annual summer market and dedication of the Merchandise mart during the semi-annual convention of the Interstate Merchants' council early in August.

Fabricated Steel Plate Orders Show Decline

Fabricated steel plate orders in May totaled 28,678 tons, against 37,709 in April and 47,716 tons in May, 1929, the United States commerce department reports. For five months orders totaled 188,846 tons, against 238,895 tons in the corresponding period a year ago.

N. Y. Telephone Approves $11,637,280 Expenditure

New York, June 27.—(AP)—Directors of the New York Telephone company have authorized an expenditure of $11,637,280 for new construction throughout the state, J. S. McCulloch, president, announced. This figure brings the total appropriations since the beginning of the year to $61,858,095.

Magazine Tells of Ford Motor Profits in Italy

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 27.—The Ford Motor Company of Italy in 1929 made a profit of $441,000 on a capital o $26,300, Sales Management will say in its next issue in the discussion of European efforts to resist American invasion of the foreign automobile market. The capital, according to the magazine, will be increased to 50,000,000 lire from the present capitalization of 500,000 lire, with prospects of a public offering.

Harvest First Wheat of Season Near Logansport

Logansport, Ind., June 27.—[Special.]—The first wheat to be cut in this section of the state was that harvested today on the J. J. Woltz farm near here.

SAYS WHOLESALE BEEF PRICES ARE OFF 20-35 PCT.

Wholesale prices of sides of beef have declined since th corresponding week in 1929 by 20 to 35 per cent, it was announced yesterday by William Whitfield Woods, president of the Institute of American Meat Packers. He attended a conference of the National Live Stock and Meat board here.

Mr. Woods said that the medium and lower grades have shown the greatest recession in price. Shoulder cuts, the source of pot roasts, chuck roasts and stew meat are off 30 per cent at wholesale. Retail prices were not mentioned.

Announces Conversion Basis for Ely & Walker

New York, June 27.—(AP)—C. M. Lawson, president of the Ely & Walker Dry Goods company of St. Louis, announced the basis of conversion of Ely & Walker stock into that of the recently formed United Dry Goods corporation, a holding company. United Dry Goods will be incorporated with a capital of 60,000 shares of 6½ per cent convertible cumulative preferred stock of $100 par and 270,000 shares of no par common. Three shares of Ely & Walker common will be exchanged for one share of United Dry Goods preferred up to one-half of the holdings of each stockholder. The remaining common will be exchanged share for share and a 40 per cent stock dividend will be declared, making the final exchange 1 2-5 shares for each share of Ely & Walker

Call Meeting for July 15 on World Bank Situation

BASEL, Switzerland, June 27.—(AP)—Conference of international financiers at which the world's banking situation will be discussed has been called to meet here on July 15. The conferees will represent the banks of issue of twenty countries participating in the Young plan loan recently issued by the Bank for International Settlements. The first purpose of this session will be to discuss the loans to their countries. Two hundred million dollars of the Young plan loan already has been distributed. There remains about $80,000,000 more, which will be received within the next ten days and which, it was announced today, has been reserved for South America and South Africa.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 27.—Today's stock market was a listless drifting affair with the majority of active issues showing losses ranging from a fraction to 3 points at the close. Minor shares, in the main, did little more than mark time.

Apparently the market was tired out from the exertion of its two day struggle to recover some of the ground it has been losing so steadily for the last three weeks. It opened rather firm under stimulus of Thursday's cut in the call money to 1½ per cent and a further reduction in brokers' loans, but the buying movement soon petered out and the anvil chorus opened its concert.

The selling was directed against such issues as United States Steel, General Motors, North American and Southern Railway and the relative ease which they gave way had an unsettling effect on the whole list.

Developes Resistance.

After backing off 1 to 4 points, the market developed stern resistance and most stocks made up a considerable part of their earlier losses before the closing gong sounded. Many even recorded net gains on the day. A few widely scattered issues were consistently strong because of special conditions. Among them was Electric Storage Battery, Bangor & Aroostock, Continental Baking preferred, and Missouri Pacific.

Publication of another batch of keenly disappointing railway earnings statements for May paved the way for renewed selling of a rather heavy nature in the carrier group. Southern Railway and a number of others were driven to new lows for the year, while stocks like New Haven, Norfolk and Southern, Atchison, and Delaware and Lackawanna were hammered down from 2 to 5 points.

Other Bear Victims.

Other stocks to come in for rough usage at the hands of the bear marauders included Case Threshing Ma-

News and Gossip of Stock Markets

Remove Stocks.

Seven stocks will be removed from active trading to the inactive post, with trading in units of ten shares, on Tuesday, July 1, the stock exchange announced yesterday. The issues are Adams Express company 5 per cent cumulative preferred, American News company temporary, Bayuk Cigar common, Brooklyn Edison company, E. C. Budd Manufacturing cumulative preferred temporary, Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor and United Piece Dye Works 6½ per cent preferred.

Shorts Covering.

Shorts in American Cyanamid are said to be covering their lines.

Show Interest.

Speculators are showing keen interest in the new American Tobacco common and "B" stocks which made their initial appearance Thursday. The dividend on these issues will be $5.

Has Many Holders.

Those who have sold Cities Service short on the theory of large capitalization are being reminded that the corporation now has about 365,000 stockholders.

Reflects Liquidation.

Decline of more than 40 points in Cosden Oil from its best level of the year reflects not only heavy selling for the account of professionals but liquidation by speculators who are disappointed over the failure of the corporation to take dividend action.

J. G. White & Co. to Vote on Capital Readjustment

Readjustment of the capital structure of J. G. White & Co., Inc., involving the issuance of five shares of common stock of $20 par value for each present share of $100 par value, and an increase in the authorized common stock from 30,000 to 500,000 shares, is proposed to stockholders by J. Dugald White. A special meeting of the stockholders will be held on July 21 to consider the proposals. Mr. White's letter states that the company may later offer additional stock to preferred and common stockholders at an attractive price and perhaps redeem the present outstanding preferred stock.

Says Santa Fe Expenses for June Will Be Lower

W. B. Storey, president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, said that the road's June expenses will show a material decrease from a year ago as a result of a retrenchment program announced June 1. The mechanical department is working only 5 days a week, he said, and track forces have been cut down. He added that the net for the balance of the year should be considerably nearer normal than it has been, though "at present I do not see how it can attain or exceed the figures for the corresponding period of 1929, which were exceptionally good."

Rural Grain Deficit of $185,132 Now Indicated

A deficit of $185,132 in the accounts of the Rural Grain company, which was recently suspended from the privileges of the Chicago Board of Trade, is shown by a partial audit of the company books, according to a statement given out yesterday. Other items on the books are now being audited and the actual deficit may vary somewhat from this figure. An official report from the company stated that all indications are that the losses were sustained due to unauthorized speculation by E. V. Maltby, general manager of the company.

Reports Department Store May Sales Show Increase

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 27. — Increase in sales of department stores reporting to the Federal Reserve bank for the month of May was the largest, with the exception of the period including Easter trade, of any month since last October, states the monthly review of the New York reserve institution. It exceeded by 5 per cent sales for May, 1929. Apparel stores reported decreases, but in their cases the decreases were the smallest since last October.

Jefferson Park Bank Boosts Dividend Rate

Directors of the Jefferson Park National bank have placed the stock on a 10 per cent annual dividend basis by the declaration of a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. Formerly the bank has paid an extra dividend of one per cent each quarter.

National Tea.

I should like to know something about National Tea company gold notes. Are there first mortgage bonds ahead of them? Would they be a good investment? C. H. S.

National Tea company has issued $4,000,000 of five year 5 per cent notes, dated May 1, 1930, and due May 1, 1935.

It is provided that neither the company nor its subsidiaries shall create any mortgage upon or pledge any of its assets while notes of this issue are outstanding, excepting purchase money mortgages not in excess of two-thirds of the value of the property purchased.

The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1929, after giving effect to this financing, showed net current assets of $8,757,791, equivalent to more than $2,150 per $1,000 note.

The equity junior to these notes, based on market quotations of the company's common and preferred stocks at the time the notes were issued, was in excess of $21,000,000.

The company's capitalization, besides this issue of notes, consists of $2,000,000 of 5½ per cent cumulative preferred stock [par $10] and 660,000 shares of no par common.

In the year ended Dec. 31, 1929, net profit, after all charges but federal income taxes, amounted to $3,081,002, compared with $3,199,833 in 1928.

The proceeds from the sale of these notes is to be used to retire certain purchase money obligations and to provide additional working capital.

The notes offer a high grade short term investment for a business man's funds.

American Radiator and Standard Sanitary.

The writer would appreciate your advising him at your earliest convenience concerning American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation. O. W. C.

Net income for 1929 was $20,012,171, equal to $1.91 per share on 10,154,677 common shares outstanding at the end of the year.

Net income of predecessors for 1928 was $20,566,193, and $19,286,044 for 1927.

The president of the company stated that the severe decline in building, especially in residential construction, had an adverse effect on 1929 earnings.

The common is rather high grade,

STOCK MARKET OUT OF SORTS; PRICES WEAKEN

Motor Shares Sell Near Low Levels.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A stock market plainly out of sorts idled lazily yesterday and finished the day moderately lower. The professional element which can usually be counted on to take things in hand in the intervals when the public is bored appeared to be wearying of the job of carrying the load. Transactions on the Chicago Stock Exchange dwindled to 192,000 shares.

The price changes which were mostly downward were minor in most instances. Almost uniform weakness was exhibited by the motor shares. Borg Warner eased to a new low for the year at 24 and finished the day a fraction above that price. Bendix finished about a point above its low but was off 1¼ from its previous close. Auburn slumped 7 points on sales of 350 shares.

Get Better Support.

The utility stocks received better support as a rule than other sections of the list. Middle West Utilities was off only ¼ of a point on heavy turnover, and Cities Service closed unchanged after dipping slightly on early trades. Missouri Kansas advanced a fraction, though transactions in the stock declined to a bare 750 shares.

In the investment group Chicago corporation sagged to a new low of 19 and moved up a fraction in later dealings. About 12,000 shares of the stock changed hands. Continental Chicago and Corporation Securities were unchanged on light trade. Insull Utility was actively traded in but moved within a narrow range.

Grigsby-Grunow and Majestic were active and each lower at the end of the day. Grigsby lost a fraction and Majestic was down 1½ when the session ended.

Monhigan Earnings Rise.

Despite the current business depression the Monhigan Manufacturing company earnings showed a substantial increase in the first five months of the year, officials report. Net profit for the five months was $89,968 as compared with $27,090 in the corresponding period of 1929.

The earnings are equivalent to $2.24 a share on the class "A" stock against 67 cents a share in 1929. Sales for the period totaled $518,773 compared with $264,915 in the first five months last year.

Increases Price of Its Southern Kraft Paper

New York, June 27.—(AP)—International Paper company has increased the price of its southern Kraft paper to $75 a ton from $70. The five southern Kraft paper mills of the company now are operating at capacity.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Straus National Bank and Trust company of Chicago celebrated its second birthday yesterday. Its banking quarters in the Straus building at Jackson and Michigan avenues were filled with flowers. Hundreds of people called during the day. Expansion and rearrangement of its banking quarters was begun three months ago. The enlarged quarters were formally opened to the public.

Adolf Gobel, Inc., has called outstanding 10 year 6 per cent notes on July 7 at 104 and accrued interest.

The National Supply company proposes to increase its 7 per cent preferred stock to 200,000 shares from 80,000 and common to 500,000 shares from 340,000 to provide for the acquisition of Spang, Chalfant & Co.

Top yesterday, $12.00; average, $11.00.
Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 1,000 cattle, 8,000 hogs, and 4,000 sheep.

The general market for hogs scored the first advance in two weeks on yesterday's session. Gains of 10@25c were recorded, underweights and packing sows leading the way up. The latter kinds, however, showed the sharpest losses during the recent break.

Range of prices reached the narrowest point since middle of the month, the extreme range covering $1.55, against $2.00 Monday. The extreme top and general average prices advanced 15c at $9.25 and $8.85, respectively, both being highest since Monday. The clearance was the earliest in some time. Only 2,000 remained at the close.

Hog Futures Are Uneven.

After a 10@20c higher opening in the hog futures market, about half of the gain was erased and trading at the finish was slow and weak.

July lightweights sold at $9.35. September light opened at $9.30, but closed at $9.20, only 10c above the low spot this week. August light carried bids of $9.15. July mediums were bid $9.20 and September mediums at $9.30, but there were no offers under $9.40. Heavy grades for September delivery were bid $9.10.

Yesterday's meager supply of cattle changed hands at about steady prices, but quotations are sharply above the low spot earlier in the week. Good 1,296 lb steers topped the market at $11.85, prime weighty beeves being absent.

Butcher stock showed some unevenness, but bulk of sales were about in line with the general selling the previous day. The cattle market this week shows a substantial gain over a week ago. During the first five days bulk of steers sold at $9.25@11.25, against $9.00@10.75 a week earlier.

Top Lambs Sell at $12.00.

Choice grades of fat lambs were in good demand at firm prices yesterday, while the market for thin kinds sank to new low levels. Fancy natives topped the price list at $12.00, while bulk of better grades sold at $11.00@11.75, and most culls at $5.00@6.00.

All points are swamped with a surplus of thin lambs that are almost unsalable, regardless of price. Many are selling at $2.00@3.00 per head, which is below production cost. Salesmen are advising farmers to hold back all but finished classes in an effort to reduce the drastic "sorts." Aged sheep and yearlings were scarce and unchanged.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 1,000 cattle, 8,000 hogs, and 4,000 sheep, against 299 cattle, 9,154 hogs, and 4,510 sheep on the previous Saturday, and 94 cattle, 5,522 hogs, and 2,160 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 40,000 to 55,000. F. W. Young marked 40,000; J. M. Waters, 42,000; F. M. Sherwood, 44,000; W. C. White, F. Knutzen, and W. T. Reneker, 45,000; G. Brittain, H. C. Carlson, J. T. Brown, and H. L. Johannessen, 47,000; S. Lund, G. W. Chandler, H. Turner, and R. W. Trotter, 48,000; C. Southwick, R. B. Ellis, and C. Daley, 50,000, and W. E. Morgan, 55,000.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, June 27.—(AP)—Cotton goods were steadier in the gray goods division today. Curtailment of production of a drastic character among cotton mills will take place next week over the holiday. Rayon production has been cut sharply and is not operating above two-thirds capacity. Prices are weak. Tropical suitings and dress goods are attracting the chief interest in wool goods channels. Raw silk continued weak.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, June 27.—(AP)—SILK—Raw futures closed weak; sales, 1,340 bales; July, $3.95; Sept., $2.90; Dec., $2.91. Open market quotation [60 day basis]—Shanghai crack extra, $3.40; Canton double extra, 14-16s, $1.75; Japanese crack double extra, $3.50.

STOCKS DRIFT; MANY LEADERS SHOW LOSSES

chine, Worthington Pump, American and Foundry, Corn Products, Columbian Carbon and National Supply, all being depressed from one to four points.

New lows for the year were established by Sears-Roebuck, Celotex, American Locomotive, Marmon Motor, Goodyear, American Stores, Borg-Warner, Consolidated Cigar, Du Pont, St. Louis Southwestern, United States Rubber preferred, Continental Motors, and several others, although it required only slight depressions for some of them to record the new figure.

Largely Professional.

While the rails yielded rather ea y, and industrials likewise slid off sharply under moderate pressure, it was interesting to note that the market again offered good resistance to selling on the lower levels. Incidentally, at the day's low prices stocks were still being maintained fairly well above the bottom prices reached earlier in the week.

Moreover, it was rather apparent that the decline was precipitated by the bear element in an effort to uncover fresh liquidation when it was evident that the market was making no further progress soon after the opening. Yet the tendency of trading to dry up on the reaction suggested that no great amount of fresh actual liquidation was forthcoming.

SAYS WABASH, TAPLINS HOLDING PARALLEL AIMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 27.—Parallel aims of the Wabash and the Taplins for the creation of a fifth trunk line in eastern territory, rather than either conflicting or concerted plans, characterize the present situation, according to William H. Williams, chairman of the Wabash.

"As far as the Wabash is concerned, we are going ahead with plans for consolidation of the roads needed for the system and are confident of a favorable outcome," Mr. Williams said.

At present the effort to acquire the Wheeling and Lake Erie through intervention in the proceedings ordering New York, Chicago and St. Louis to sell under the Clayton act was the Wabash's only public step in the direction of consolidation. Mr. Williams emphasized the necessity of proceeding in a logical manner to secure the roads wanted one at a time rather than in a complete plan to merge all roads desired.

With regard to the Taplins, Mr. Williams said that a number of conferences had been held with F. B. and C. F. Taplin, who through the Pittsburgh and West Virginia are seeking to create a fifth trunk line similar in most details to that proposed by the Wabash. Mr. Williams declined to comment on the Taplin plan, which is reported to contemplate the creation of a holding company for all the railroads of the proposed system.

The chairman of the Wabash said, however, that in their aims for the creation of a fifth trunk line the interests of the Taplins and the Wabash were parallel.

Both the Wabash and the Pittsburgh and West Virginia are making efforts to control Wheeling and Lake Erie, which was assigned in the interstate commerce commission plan to the Wabash-Seaboard group. The Pittsburgh and West Virginia has a direct application for control pending, while the Wabash withdrew such an application and is now planning to intervene in the proceedings to force sale by the Nickel Plate, or Van Sweringen interests, of their holdings of Wheeling.

JUSTICE DE YOUNG BUYS RESIDENCE AT 4805 KIMBARK

Food Firm Plans Factory on 74th Street.

Justice Frederic R. De Young of the Illinois Supreme court yesterday moved into the twelve room residence at 4805 Kimbark avenue which he bought from Paul H. and Ann B. Richter. The residence, which is of brick construction, is located in one of the best parts of the Hyde Park residential district. The lot is 50x238 feet.

JUSTICE DE YOUNG.

Mr. Richter, former owner of the Continental Bolt company, lived in the house for thirty years. He is now a resident of Pasadena, Cal. Justice De Young paid a reported $35,000 for the property. Edward B. Frysinger represented all parties as broker.

Another lawyer to acquire a large residential property is William S. Warfield III of the law firm of Cassels, Potter & Bentley. Mr. Warfield bought the former residence of Charles D. Dallas, president of the Dallas Brass and Copper company, at 1124 Pine street, Winnetka. The house, containing about fourteen rooms, stands on an acre of ground. Mr. Warfield plans to move into his new home next week.

Erecting New Factory.

Construction is under way on a two story factory building at the southwest corner of 74th street and Woodlawn avenue for the Jell-X-Cell corporation, manufacturers of food products. The site is 150x150 feet. Foltz & Co. are the architects. It is stated that the land and factory building will cost $100,000. Henry L. Trout & Co. have underwritten a $140,000 loan. Clarence E. Nelson is president of the company and Leonard J. Grossman is attorney.

The Veterans Park District of Cook county has purchased from Fred and Martha Kuhlmann a block of ground in Melrose Park bounded by Hirsch boulevard and 16th, 17th and Le Moyne avenues. The district also bought a half block adjoining this parcel on the east from A. F. Amling. The ground is to be used for park purposes.

Crawford Avenue Deal.

Frank Moulis has sold to Karen M. Bro the three story building at the southwest corner of Crawford and Oakdale avenues containing six stores and twenty-two apartments for an undisclosed consideration, subject to $90,000. The ground is 108x125 feet. In part payment Mr. Bro gave 82x95 feet of vacant at 6225 North Clark street. Johnson & Allen and Sherman & Lewis were attorneys in the deal.

Osborne, Kline & McGurren, attorneys who represented J. Meyer Friedman in the purchase of the property at 5208-10 West 25th street, Morton Park, state that the mortgage on the property was $35,000 instead of $80,000 as reported in this department recently. A new bond issue of $60,000 has been underwritten on the property by the Cicero Trust and Savings bank. Coen-Schrager & Co. were brokers in the deal.

WHEAT PRICES DIP, BUT CLOSE SHOWS ADVANCE

Larger Foreign Interest Noted in Market.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Investment buying of wheat futures is increasing, and while bearish sentiment predominates in some quarters, the rank and file of traders are less opposed to press the selling side. Reported heavy buying is regarded as having taken the slack out of the market, and it responds more readily to operations on the bull side than for some time past.

There was fairly aggressive buying at times yesterday by houses with eastern connections and also by shorts, and while prices dipped rather sharply at one time the finish was 1@1¼c higher with July closing at 1¼@2c and September, 95⅛@95½c. Strength in Minneapolis and Winnipeg had considerable influence, the former gaining ¾@1c for the day due to buying by mills and the country, and September there went to around 1c over Chicago compared with 2c discount recently. Winnipeg was up 1@1¼c.

Farmers Hold Wheat.

Foreigners seem to be taking more interest in the market, and houses with Liverpool connections were buyers of wheat futures early, and helped to advance prices around 1c over Thursday's close. Trade, however, was much quieter than on the previous day. Liverpool gained 1@2d, failing to fully respond to the sharp bulge in North America.

There is a noticeable lack of hedging pressure against the fairly liberal movement of new winter wheat in the southwest, although the receipts at interior markets now exceed 1,000 cars per day. Reports from Kansas indicated that farmers were decidedly dissatisfied with prevailing prices and were pulling the grain on the ground to hold it for a higher level of values. Weather was reported as excellent for harvesting and threshing.

In the past two days Europe has taken around 2,500,000 bu of North American wheat, probably more, as shown by messages from the seaboard and the buying was in a more general character than for some time past. Official reports indicate that the aggregate northern hemisphere crop will not be much different from that of 1929, with probably larger import purchases by Europe, and the world's carryover at the end of the season will be 100,000,000 to 150,000,000 bu under the quantity on hand a year ago.

Canadian crop reports were mixed with rainfall in the three provinces from April 1 to June 26 averaging 1.13 to 5.24 inches, compared with 1.15 to 2.97 inches in 1929, and a 10 year average of 5.21 to 6.12 inches. Reports to B. W. Snow suggest that the average condition is slightly under that of a year ago.

July Corn Acts Tight.

July corn showed a tendency to tighten up, and strength in the nearby delivery which developed after an early break was a factor in giving all futures a rather firm undertone toward the last. Final trades were ¼@¾c higher with July, 75⅝@75⅞c, and September, 74¼@74⅝c. Cash interests bought July and sold September, widening the difference at one time. Cash basis, however, was ¼@¾c at the last, despite shipping sales of 94,000 bu.

Local operators were on the selling side of oats and more than offset buying by cash interests with the close ¼@¾c lower, July being 35⅝c and September, 36½c.

Rye developed independent strength as the result of short covering and while local longs were sellers the finish was 1⅝c higher, July closing at 46⅜c, and September, 52¾c. Russian rye was reported as offered at 46c per bu, c. i. f. Hamburg, Germany.

COTTON SLOW AND LOWER

Cotton prices receded under scattered selling yesterday, and closed around the lowest of the day. The Chronicle's report on acreage was 6,710,000, a decrease of 2.75 per cent from last year. The Texas acreage is 17,320,000, a decrease of 5 per cent.

Traders await action of the cooperatives on the July holdings. The close on July was at losses of 4 to 10 points in the various markets. In Chicago new crop futures were off 6 to 14 points; in New Orleans 10 to 12 points and in New York 10 to 17 points. Liverpool closed 2 to 3 points net higher, with spot sales 3,000 bales.

Spots in New York were off 10 points to 13.60c, New Orleans was unchanged at 12.85c, Galveston finished at 13c and Houston was 12.85c. Prices follow:

JUNE BUTTER EASIER

June butter futures eased ¼c on the Chicago Mercantile exchange when a spring report on the four markets again exceeded last year's figure. November contracts, easier most of the session, rallied to the previous close. There were 34 cars and receipts 1,274 tubs. Gains in the storage movement over the week of a year ago were responsible for the failure of the opening bulge in egg futures to hold and relapse to the former level. Sales were 71 cars and receipts 18,500 cases. Prices follow:
